KIDNAPPING

Man Lurked In Area

By DON DINGWALL and TERRY IZZARD

LADYSMITH — Police are on the lookout for a mystery man seen lurking in the bushes outside the beachfront home of Mrs. Mary Knight, scene of a brutal kidnapping attempt Tuesday.

The man was spotted at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday by a neighbor of the Knight's, Mrs. Judy Jones.

It was around that time police believe 82-year-old Mrs. Knight was bound and gagged and hidden in a potting shed at the bottom of her garden.

Mother of two, Mrs. Jones was passing the Knight's secluded home when she noticed a red panel truck parked on the wrong side of the road.

As she drove past on the old Island highway she saw a man dressed in dark clothes standing beside the truck.

When he spotted her he darted into the bushes fronting the Knight home.

IN A HURRY

Said 33-year-old blonde Mrs. Jones: "I thought it was rather suspicious at the time.

"But I was in a hurry to get my car to the garage and I didn't give it another thought."

She recalled the incident when a friend rang up and told her of the kidnap attempt on Mrs. Knight.

Police have since taken a statement from her.

Said Mrs. Jones: "There have been some rather strange goings-on around here recently.

"Locks have been broken and gas stolen from garages."

Council recently installed street lights at the request of residents.

DOOR-TO-DOOR

Meanwhile, police began a door-to-door inquiry in the Ladysmith area.

Plainclothes and uniformed officers were asking residents for information concerning strangers or cars seen near the Knight's beachfront home Tuesday morning.

The intensive search includes checking the registers of 38 hotels and motels between Chemainus and Wellington.

The search was sparked Tues-

MURDER CHARGE

2 Desperados Free Hostages

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—A pair of desperate ex-convicts from Oregon released six hostages, including a 12-year-old Toronto boy, and continued their flight today to avoid capture for a two-day, 600-mile rampage that included bank robbery, murder and kidnapping.

Police say the two suspects, Carl Cletes Bowles, 24, and Wilfred M. Gray, 30, began a reign of terror with a $13,400 bank robbery in Portland Tuesday afternoon. They allegedly shot a deputy sheriff to death at Springfield, Ore., that night, abducted a Springfield, Ore. woman and her son early Wednesday, and then kidnapped four vacationers from Washington travelling in the rugged mountains of central Oregon.

District Attorney William Frye filed an information this morning at Eugene, Ore., charging the two with first degree murder.

The search for the heavily-armed desperados shifted suddenly to northern California late last night when the six hostages were released unharmed in the Sacramento area.

The Springfield woman, Mrs. Shriely Corbin, 33, immediately notified Oregon authorities, who contacted the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The other hostages, in addition to Mrs. Corbin, included her son, Clinton, 12; Mr. and Mrs. Uldis Riekstins, Renton, Wash.; their son, Janis, 14, and Zanis Bauze, Toronto, Ont., who had been visiting the Riekstins.

They were held under heavy guard at a motel in nearby Woodland for questioning, but were released shortly after 6 this morning and departed immediately for Oregon in the Reikstins' pickup truck.

"It wasn't bad for us at all," Mrs. Corbin told newsmen be-

NEW HOSTAGE GRAB FEARED

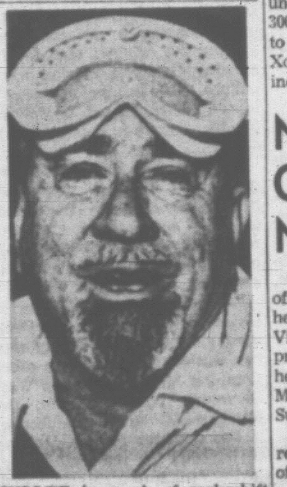
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—The California highway patrol issued an all-points bulletin today for California finance director Hale Champion, his wife and their two-year-old daughter, missing from their Sacramento home.

A California highway patrol officer said the patrol was "concerned over the possibility" they might have been kidnapped by two ex-convicts now sought in the area for the slaying of an Oregon officer, a Portland bank robbery and the kidnapping of six hostages.

Capt. L. G. Wililams said the bulletin was issued after Champion failed to arrive for a 9 a.m. appointment with Governor Edmund G. Brown.

Stand Kills Girl

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Muriel Fasthorse, 6, visiting relatives, died Wednesday after an iron flower-stand fell from a first-storey window and struck her on the head. Police said her three-year-old cousin accidentally dropped the stand from the window.



KILLED in crash of makeshift plane in which he was seated for this picture was Paul Mantz, 61, famed movie stunt pilot. He died near Yuma, Arizona, today while cameras recorded scene for the movie "The Flight of the Phoenix."

WIRE BRIEFS

Tourists Kept Away

BOSTON (UPI) — American travellers planning a trip to the province of Quebec were advised today to delay their departure until the gasoline strike in the province is settled. (See story, Page 18.)

3,000 Flee Fire

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (UPI)—A fire which raged all night in a nearby secret jet and rocket fuel plant and forced an estimated 3,000 persons to flee homes in the area because of the possibility of explosion, was put out today. There were no injuries.

Cattle Area Flooded

REGINA (CP)—Flooding of the Saskatchewan River at Cumberland House in northern Saskatchewan today isolated about 80 cattle and emergency feeding measures were being considered by the agriculture department.

Allies Fight Together

SAIGON (Reuters)—An Allied brigade began to withdraw from the Viet Cong jungle stronghold of zone-D today, after killing an estimated 100 guerrillas in three days.

There were reports of increasing Viet Cong guerrilla strength, in the area invaded by two American, one Australian and one South Vietnamese battalions.

Unconfirmed American casualties were four dead and four wounded. The Australians have suffered three wounded.

The Viet Cong are believed to have 8,000 fighting men in the zone, only 35 miles north of Saigon at its nearest point.

Just outside zone-D, the Viet Cong ambushed a government battalion 37 miles northwest of Saigon today, and a U.S. spokesman said most of the battalion apparently was wiped out.

The battalion, reported to be under the normal strength of 300, was ambushed while trying to relieve a besieged outpost at Xom Dua in Binh Duong province.

NATO Talks On Viet Nam Next Week

OTTAWA (CP) — A meeting of the NATO council will be held in Paris next week with Viet Nam expected to be the prime topic, it was learned here today. External Affairs Minister Martin will leave here Sunday for the meeting.

Though the meeting is a regular one of NATO's council of permanent ambassadors, several foreign ministers will attend.

It is understood that Undersecretary of State George Ball will represent the United States.

The foreign ministers of France, Italy, West Germany, and The Netherlands as well as of Canada will likely attend.

Mr. Martin will be accompanied by only one adviser, assistant undersecretary Basil Robinson.

Liberal MP Gets Boot From Party

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Pearson today ousted Yvon Dupuis, Liberal Member of Parliament for St. Johns-Napierville facing charges of influence peddling, from the Liberal party.

Pearson also repeated that he'd hoped for quick action on the federal-provincial investigation into the posibility of laying criminal charges as a result of the Dorion report.

Dupuis, former minister without portfolio, Wednesday was committed for trial this fall on a charge of influence-peddling—allegedly accepting $10,000 to use his influence in a bid to get a race track franchise in his riding.

He was quoted in a Montreal paper today as saying he will seek re-election to the Commons.

"I will continue to be a Member of Parliament," said Dupuis, "and following the conclusion of the present case, I will offer myself as a candidate for my constituency."

Referring to the story and obviously annoyed by it, Pearson said:

Row Erupts In Commons

(Times News Services)

LONDON — Prime Minister Harold Wilson told Parliament today he has sent one of his junior ministers to Hanoi "to get a dialogue started" with the Communists on possible Viet Nam peace talks.

Wilson said the serious crisis in Viet Nam "should be brought for negotiations to the conference table."

Wilson identified his emissary as junior minister Harold Davies, joint parliamentary secretary at the Ministry of Pensions and National Insurance.

He is described as having friendly relations with North Vietnamese leader Ho Chi Minh.

Davies was a member of a parliamentary delegation which visited North Viet Nam in 1957.

Diplomatic officials here were skeptical of the chances of success of the mission.

The move was seen as an indication of Wilson's determination not to give up his plans for a Commonwealth peace mission on the Viet Nam crisis. Hanoi, Peking and Moscow have rejected such a proposal.

Last week Davies, 61, was approached by two North Vietnamese journalists with a suggestion that he should visit Hanoi. The journalists are accredited in London.

DETAILS SECRET

He left London earlier this week, en route to Laos and Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital. Details were kept secret until today.

It was reported that members of the Commonwealth peace mission were consulted and they agreed to the project.

Uproar broke out in Parliament today when Prime Minister Wilson and Opposition Leader Sir Alec Douglas-Home clashed over the mission.

Douglas-Home asked Wilson to say whether the United States was consulted first and stressed the dangers of any tendency toward appeasement in the Viet Nam crisis.

The row broke out on both sides of the lower chamber when Wilson started to retort: "Should there be any question of my wanting lessons in appeasement, I know who . . . ."

His voice was drowned by the uproar before he could finish his sentence.

Douglas-Home, as Lord Dunglass, was with Neville Chamberlain when the then British prime minister went to Munich in 1938 for talks with Hitler.

CALLED 'SWINE'?

A fresh outburst came when a Labor government supporter claimed a Conservative backbencher had called the prime minister "you swine."

After the speaker intervened, Wilson said the United States and all other interested parties were told of the flight to Hanoi by 61-year-old Harold Davies, a parliamentary secretary to the pensions ministry.

The prime minister said: "It will be his job there . . . to make plain what the purpose of the Commonwealth mission is, and to get a dialogue started."

Girl, 9, Snatched By Bandit

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—A 9-year-old girl who was sleeping near the office of a motel operated by her grandparents was kidnapped early today by a gunman who robbed the motel of $230.

Red-haired Denise Clinton of nearby Independence, Mo., was apparently seized by a bandit who robbed the grandmother shortly after 2 a.m.

No one saw the girl being abducted. But she was missing immediately after the robbery and police Lt. Elza Hatfield said "There is nothing to conclude except she has been kidnapped."

The gunman, a white man with short brown hair wearing a light blue sport shirt, rang the night bell to awaken Dorothy Reynolds, the child's grandmother. Mrs. Reynolds got a card for the man to register but he laid a gun on the counter and said "I want your money."

BOUND BOTH

The bandit forced Mrs. Reynolds, about 50, to go to a back room where her husband Chelsea was sleeping. He bound them both with adhesive tape he had brought with him and left them lying on a bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds worked their way free and went to the office to call police. Then they discovered Denise, who had been sleeping on a divan less than 10 feet from the office where the robbery occurred, was missing.

Police said it was likely the bandit came across her on his way out and decided on impulse to take her.

If she screamed, her cries were not heard by other guests in the motel.

Denise, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Russell Clinton of Independence, was spending the week with her grandparents.

Hatfield and 25 detectives plus the highway patrol and officers from surrounding counties set up a search plan for the Metropolitan Kansas City area.

Great Train Robber Now Great Escapee

LONDON (UPI) — One of Britain's "Great Train Robbers" escaped from a London prison today with three other convicts after a fight with guards and the capture of a hostage. The fugitives fled in a fleet of getaway cars.

The escape apparently centred around Ronald A. Biggs, serving a 30-year sentence for his part in robbing the Glasgow-to-London Royal Mail train of $6.3 million in bank notes Aug. 8, 1963. The escape was as well planned and executed as the robbery itself.

Because another of the great train robbers had escaped in an equally intricate fashion special guards had been posted for Biggs. But he fled the prison today in this series of events:

—An accomplice threw a rope ladder and a tubular steel ladder into the prison exercise yard.

—The prisoners fought off guards and scurried over the wall onto the top of a waiting furniture van.

The prisoners slipped through a hole in the roof of the van into the vehicle while an accomplice held a prison officer hostage on top of the van with a gun at his back.

The men then jumped out of the van and scrambled across the road to one blue and two green cars which then streaked away.

Dief Denounces Shift In Eskimo Authority

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker today denounced the transfer of the administration of Eskimos in Quebec to the Quebec government.

(See story page 6.)

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Eskimos were being "pushed around" as though they were "political chattels." He said it was a "scandalous perversion" of Eskimo rights, by Prime Minister Pearson.

He said, "The Eskimo people must be given the right of self-determination. They are constitutionally a responsibility of the federal government, whether or not they become subject to provincial control."

Mr. Diefenbaker suggested this was "another under-the-table deal" made by the prime minister. He said that Wednesday the prime minister could not remember what he and Premier Jean Lesage had talked about "until his memory had been shaken up."

"The minister of northern affairs has been honorable and fair in this matter, stating that nothing would be done without the consent of the Eskimos. Does this mean that the minister has been overruled?" asked Mr. Diefenbaker.

In Quebec, Premier Lesage said that "Mr. Pearson has simply confirmed what I said" in the legislature.

"Did you think this business would not be settled when Mr. Pearson and I had taken it in hand?" he asked.

Reading through a report of what Mr. Pearson said at his press conference on the subject of the Eskimos, Mr. Lesage made comments such as "That's true," "That's what I told you" and "That's right."

OTTAWA TO SPEND $148 MILLION

CAUSEWAY, TUNNEL, BRIDGE

Prince Edward Island to Be Linked to Mainland

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson announced today that tenders will be called later this year for a combined tunnel, bridge and causeway between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Construction is expected to start next April and, Mr. Pearson said at a press conference, he hopes it will be completed in late 1970.

The cost is estimated at $148,000,000.

The federal government will bear the entire cost.

The prime minister said the "massive" undertaking will include a three-mile bridge, nearly a mile of underwater tunnel and five miles of causeway.

The nine-mile link between Jourimain Island, N.B., and Port Borden, P.E.I., will include both rail and highway facilities.

Mr. Pearson said the first tender will be called in December for the New Brunswick land approaches. This would be followed by tenders for the bridge piers, the tunnel, other causeway sections, the Prince Edward Island land approach and the steel bridge superstructure.

The prime minister said that no similar project had ever been attempted where tidal, weather and ice conditions were so severe.

He said the highway section of the link is designed to accommodate four lanes of traffic but that present plans call for the use of only two lanes. It would cost an additional $10,000,000 to convert the highway to four lanes later.

The project will begin at the New Brunswick shore with a 13,000-foot causeway supporting the railway line at an elevation of 26 feet. The highway will be on a structure above the rails at an elevation of 59 feet.

This section will lead to the 16,000-foot bridge which will carry the rail line at an elevation of 60 feet and the highway at 114 feet. This bridge section will connect with another 7,000 feet of causeway, then the tunnel and finally a 5,000-foot section of causeway to the P.E.I. shore.

The intention to build the causeway was first announced by former Conservative prime minister Diefenbaker during the 1962 federal election campaign.

Mr. Pearson said the decision to call tenders was followed by studies by the fisheries department which indicated that neither the lobster nor oyster fisheries would be adversely affected.

The decision to proceed fulfilled what many considered to be part of the terms under which P.E.I. entered Confederation.

We arrived a few car-lengths too late to get on the 3 p.m. ferry from Tsawwassen one Sunday recently. We were waiting in line outside the gate when a black limousine came boldly up the truck lane. The driver spoke to the gate tender, showed a B.C. Ferries pass and was waved through.

The limousine was too late also, but we were burned anyway because it went into the compound ahead of us who were waiting in line. We told the gateman so, pointing out that we were paying passengers while the limousine driver had a free pass on OUR ferry.

He replied sheepishly, "That was a VIP car." VIP means Very Important People. We thought we were just as important and our dander went up another notch.

Well, we found out later the VIP was Mrs. Bennett, wife of the premier—and because we know her to be a gracious lady, we dropped the matter.

(Aboard the ferry Mrs. Bennett stood in line to get in to the dining room and was one of the last to enter.)

A companion suggested it was probably the chauffer's idea to jostle her car past those waiting in line and we agreed.

But how about all the others in line who still don't know why they were downgraded? It's reasonable to suspect they were irritated—and many of them were visitors to our country.

Were we petty to object? Perhaps some Roundabout readers would like to sound off?

FIRST CALL with Ben Wicks

day afternoon after the kidnappers demanded $4,000 ransom for Mrs. Knight's safe return.

Mrs. Knight's husband, Jocelyn, 85, answered the phone call and immediately informed police.

It was not until Wednesday morning that Mrs. Knight was found beneath a pile of rubble in a potting shed only 100 yards from the house.

Mrs. Knight was in satisfactory condition in Ladysmith Hospital today.

Said her physician, Dr. P. J. Mitchell: "She's a strong, old girl. I don't suppose she was fed at all, but she's pulled through the ordeal well."

Dr. Mitchell had still not given police permission to interview Mrs. Knight at press time.

She is suffering shock, bruises and minor cuts.

Inspector George M. Mackay, who is heading the hunt for the kidnappers, said in Victoria today:

"We are treating this case the same way as Susan Freschi's murder (14-year-old Susan was bludgeoned to death in the Parsons Bridge area on the night on May 11.

Eight officers have been moved into the area from Victoria and Nanaimo to assist in the search.

All information is being sifted at Ladysmith RCMP headquarters, then passed on to Inspector Mackay.

Said the Inspector: "We have several names we are checking out and there are several cars we would like to trace which were seen in the area."

tion he will be opposed by an official Liberal candidate."

Pearson said this will happen regardless of the outcome of the court case now pending against Dupuis.

He said he didn't discuss the snap announcement with Dupuis before making it.

It was the second disposal this week of a Member of Parliament by Pearson who has developed a new "get tough" attitude following tabling in the Commons Tuesday by the Dorion report into charges of bribery and coercion by ministerial aides.

Dupuis had no connection with the report, but Pearson's toughened attitude has apparently extended to all MPs within the party who become connected with any wrongdoing.

ALL-OUT BATTLE

Following tabling of the report by Mr. Justice Frederic Dorion, Pearson announced he has launched an all-out war on the invasion of organized crime into Canadian politics. It will be a chief topic of the federal provincial conference opening here July 19.

Pearson Tuesday announced that he had asked for and received the resignation of his former parliamentary secretary Guy Rouleau as Liberal Member of Parliament for Montreal-Dollard.

Rouleau was charged by Dorion as having committed a "reprehensible act" in seeking bail for suspected narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard.

AFTERTHOUGHT

Today, at the end of a news conference — and as if in an afterthought—he said in effect that Dupuis was no longer a member of the Liberal Party.

He has not asked Dupuis to resign his seat in the Commons, but if he attempts to run for the Liberals at the next election "an official Liberal candidate" will be put up against him at any nomination meeting.

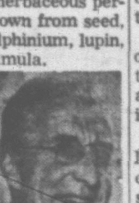
HOME GARDEN

Many Perennials Grow From Seed

By JACK BEASTALL

Many kinds of herbaceous perennials can be grown from seed, such as geum, delphinium, lupin, gaillardia and primula.



Jack

As with all plants grown from seed there will be some differences among the seedlings, but those mentioned above give mainly color variations and most of the plants are worth keeping.

This is not true with all perennials of which seed is obtainable. Quite often as many as 80 or 90 per cent of the seedlings are undesirable for one reason or another.

Named varieties of plants, whether herbaceous perennials or shrubs, will not come true from seed, even the seed taken from a named plant. Examples of named plants are Phlox "Spitfire" and Aster (Michaelmas-daisy) "Winston Churchill."

All named plants are increased by cuttings, division, or by grafting, every plant in cultivation coming from the one original plant (called a clone) that was selected for naming.

It is not too late to sow seed of herbaceous perennials, but the plants will need a little more attention to catch up with sowings made in June.

After germination, the seedlings are planted out in boxes or coldframe to develop and later set out in rows in the garden.

Here they are allowed to flower, usually in the next spring or summer, and the best plants are selected for permanent planting in the garden.

It involves quite a lot of work, including care over winter, but it is also quite a lot of fun, for you never can be sure what will appear when you sow a packet of seeds.

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Negotiations for Nigerian association with the European Common Market were successfully concluded here today.

But the French boycott of all ministerial meetings of the six-country trade bloc is likely to delay approval of the association agreement.

Such agreements require the approval of the Common Market's ministerial council. The French foreign ministry has said it would be "unthinkable" for a French minister to attend Common Market meetings at present.

It was originally hoped that the association agreement would come into effect next Jan. 1.

Another hurdle facing the agreement is the lack of diplomatic relations between France and Nigeria. They were broken off several years ago after Nigerian protests about French nuclear tests in the Sahara.

Nigeria is the first member of the British Commonwealth and the first African country that was not directly linked with one of the six before they formed the Common Market to negotiate an agreement with the community.

Meanwhile, the president of the Common Market's executive commission, Walter Hallstein of West Germany, said he will meet Italian Foreign Minister Amintore Fanfani in Duesseldorf Friday.

Fanfani is accompanying Italian President Giuseppe Saragat on a state visit to West Germany.

CALL FOR CALM

The Italian and West German leaders have called in a communique for calm and confidence during the Common Market crisis.

Hallstein presided at a secret meeting of the commission in Brussels Wednesday to work out compromise proposals replacing the original plan for financing Common Market agriculture, the original plan collapsed under French objections to its "supra-national" character.

The commission decided to meet next Tuesday and Wednesday to continue discussion on the compromise, and to round off the plan before it is communicated to member governments.

France's delegate, Maurice Ulrich, kept away from Wednesday's meeting of deputy representatives from the five other Common Market partners, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, in line with the French decision to boycott, for the time being, further market meetings.

SEARCHER:

Knight Abduction 'Cruel, Brutal'

"I'd like to have the guy who did it for an hour.

"He'd be wishing he'd never set eyes on Mrs. Knight."

These words were spoken today by Sedgewick Barnes, the volunteer searcher who first stumbled on the bound body of Mrs. Mary Knight Wednesday.

The Chemainus mill worker described the kidnapping as "cruel and brutal."

The father of three attributed Mrs. Knight's discovery to his training as a volunteer fireman.

"We even look under matchboxes," he said.

A search the previous day failed to turn up grey-haired Mrs. Knight, even though the potting shed in which she was found was investigated.

"It's not hard to understand how they missed her," said Mr. Barnes, of 340 Gatacre Street, Ladysmith.

"When I first looked in I thought 'there's no use looking in there.'

"The old lady was hidden well under a pile of old boards and rubbish.

"Remembering my training, I pulled away a few boards and there were Mrs. Knight's feet.

"Without waiting to see any more I called the doctor and police officer and they removed the rest of the junk."

'TIED TIGHTLY'

"The poor woman had shoelaces tied tightly round her wrists and ankles. There was a piece of cloth wrapped round her head."

(Police later identified this as Mrs. Knight's apron which had been draped over her head and tied round her neck by the strings).

Said the 26-year-old plane feeder: "Mrs. Knight looked rather shocked but not hysterical. She said something to the police officer though I couldn't hear what.

"We placed her on a stretcher and she was carried to an ambulance."

Mr. Barnes was one of eight men who had started the Wednesday morning search of the Knight property off the Old Island Highway only five minutes before the discovery.

Three years a volunteer fireman, he went to work as usual that afternoon.

fore their departure. "I just hate them for killing that policeman, that's all."

The attractive red-haired woman said the two ex-convicts seemed "confused and inexperienced." "I had to show them how to get out of town," she said.

But Mrs. Corbin added there was no opportunity for the hostages to escape, "and if we had tried, they would have plugged somebody."

She said the two suspects jumped out of the pickup at a bus stop in Sacramento Wednesday night "and didn't even say goodbye."

Authorities said the two men abducted Mrs. Corbin and her son early Wednesday at their home three miles from where a rookie deputy sheriff was shot to death shortly before midnight Tuesday.

BOGGED DOWN

They commandeered the pickup truck of the Riekstins family in central Oregon when Mrs. Corbin's car became bogged down in the mud.

Bowles and Gray were released recently from Oregon State Prison, where Bowles had served a term for larceny and breaking and entering and Gray was imprisoned for assault with a dangerous weapon. Gray also had a record in New York State of burglary, larceny and assault with a shotgun.

All-Out Battle Looms In Viet Nam Buildup

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The war in Viet Nam is moving toward an explosion. All the signs point to it.

U.S. forces are building up. Viet Cong guerrillas are stepping up raids and attacks. The American commander, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, says more "substantial confrontations" may be expected.

Westmoreland also says the Viet Cong "are less confident of success than they were earlier."

Meanwhile, U.S. intelligence sources believe North Viet Nam's 325th Division, starting early this year, has moved into South Viet Nam to join the Viet Cong in the fighting.

Malcolm W. Browne of The Associated Press reports from Saigon that for the last few weeks, guerrilla forces of unprecedented strength have burst across the South Vietnamese highlands, smashing one government post after another.

Recently, he says, thousands of South Vietnamese government troops have been killed or captured.

The more the South Vietnamese are smashed, the more U.S. forces must get involved to bail them out.

DESTROY THREE PLANES

Only last week guerrillas slipped through the heavy marine guard surrounding Da Nang Air Base, killed one American and destroyed three U.S. planes on the ground.

Monday they overran the jungle outpost of Ba Gia and made off with two 105MM howitzers, the largest weapons they've captured yet, plus ammunition.

Still, there has been no big showdown between the marines and the Viet Cong or the 325th Division.

But more U.S. troops—about 8,000 marines—are being put ashore in South Viet Nam, raising American military strength there to about 60,000 men.

These don't include another 16,000 to 21,000 marines and soldiers who, Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said in mid-June, are being sent to Viet Nam.

And, while the United States builds up its ground forces, it gets deeper into the war in the air.

Three times now American B-52 bombers have flown the 2,200 miles from Guam to bomb Viet Cong locations in South Viet Nam, some within 35 miles of Saigon.

HAVEN'T HIT HANOI

At the same time, American bombers continued to plaster North Viet Nam, although staying away from such population centres as the capital city of Hanoi and the seaport of Haiphong.

While the American commander - in - chief, President Johnson, was pondering all this he learned of more unpleasant news that sooner or later may require a decision from him.

Several Russian - built missiles sites are nearing completion in North Viet Nam, near Hanoi and Haiphong. These are for surface-to-air missiles that can be used against bombers.

It's possible they will never be used, unless the United States attacks those two cities.

But their very presence, and the danger implicit in them, raises the question: Should the United States wipe out those missile sites before they can be used against American planes?

But that might involve the United States with the Soviet Union, more or less.

Johnson has to make the decision to bomb or lay off. But Wednesday in the House of Representatives, Leader Gerald Ford of the Republicans said the United States should bomb the missile bases before they're ready for use.

Oil Workers Ordered To Leave Property

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Supreme Court injunction ordering 100 sitdown strikers to leave the Shell Oil Company's Shellburn plant has been served on the strikers.

The injunction was granted by Mr. Justice T. W. Brown Wednesday after the company complained the men were interfering with the plant's operation.

The men, members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union (CLC), have been in the plant since Monday.

They refuse to work until the company guarantees it will not discipline maintenance crews who refused to work overtime Saturday to repair a furnace.

An earlier injunction granted Tuesday restrained union members from dissuading persons from entering company property or dealing in Shell Oil goods.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said he has sent his deputy, William Sands, to Vancouver in an effort to mediate the refinery dispute.

The union also asked Mr. Peterson to bring the oil company around to the issue of firing of union chairman Jerry Le Bourdais. Union spokesmen have accused news media of playing up Mr. Le Bourdais' left-wing affiliations, which they say do not represent the union's views.

SEEING IS BELIEVING: NESSIE'S BACK IN TOWN

INVEMORISTON, Scotland (AP)—Two brothers reported they saw the Loch Ness monster Wednesday—and it's jet black, whale-sized and has shark-like fins on its spine.

William Cameron, 32, a Glasgow chef, and his brother, James, 17, said they were setting up a camp on the bank of the loch when Nessie, as he is affectionately known to resort owners of the area, showed up.

"We saw about 20 feet of the body," William said. "It had about a dozen fins like shark's fins on its back. Its skin was jet black and shining. It was easily as big as a whale, if not bigger."

Appearances of the monster, often at the outset of the tourist season, have been reported for decades.

LIVELY MEETING FRIDAY?

Mayor Clouding Issue Planning Official Says

The mayor's suggested new planning department for the city of Victoria is "clouding the issue" of internal strife at city hall, a Community Planning Association spokesman said today.

George Barr, CPAC capital region past-president, reconsidered a statement made Tuesday hailing the idea of setting up a new department of planning and civic improvement as a means of settling the complicated issue.

"Until planning is answerable entirely to city council, we are not getting anywhere," Mr. Barr said.

Mayor R. B. Wilson had said he will recommend to council Friday that a new department be established, taking the planning function out of the city engineer's jurisdiction, making it responsible to advisory planning commission.

The commission, consisting of outsiders appointed by the mayor and council, would be responsible to council.

CREATIVE IDEAS

This would allow creative ideas to come to the attention of the commission and council, the mayor said, although administratively the department would be controlled by the city manager.

"This is clouding the issue," Mr. Barr protested. "The manager would still have control of planning, and he's not interested in planning."

There are two issues, he said: The future of planning in the city, and use of special projects and architectural consultant Roderick Clack either on city hall staff or as an outside consultant.

Mr. Clack resigned his post last week and was followed by the other two members of his staff, closing the special projects section by the end of the month.

INTERFERENCE

They charge interference by city management and the engineer with work of the section.

CPAC has submitted several letters recommending a change in the planning setup without reply, other than a conversation with the mayor, Mr. Barr said.

Now, the association has asked to be allowed to give a detailed brief to council Friday.

"If they had followed our suggestion a year ago, they wouldn't have had this problem and it wouldn't have cost the city a cent," Mr. Barr said.

This was to the effect that APS, town planner and special projects section report directly to council as one department.

NO 'SPECIFICS'

Mr. Barr said the personnel problem goes beyond special projects, that other city hall departments are involved as well, although he would not make specific refences.

The mayor said acting planner Tony de Jong would be considered for the post of department head if council agrees to setting it up.

He said the job is one for a planner, pointing out that Mr. Clack is an architect.

Mr. Clack, meanwhile, said both planning and civic design elements should be represented in a department such as the mayor described. Architects, he said, plan overall long-range objectives and specially trained staff prepare bylaws and statistical information covering the work to be done.

The meeting of council Friday is expected to go into the resignations and personnel problems in some detail. Mayor Wilson said council will have full opportunity to ask questions and get at the bottom of the "innuendo and cross-questions."

Expansion, Not Split Major Quebec Need

SEPT-ILES, Que. (CP)—The main emphasis should be placed on "decolonizing" mentalities in Quebec and turning them towards scientific and technical pursuits rather than towards political independence, Gerard Levesque, Quebec industry and commerce minister said Wednesday night.

"Those who believe political independence for Quebec would solve the problem of economic emancipation are not taking into account current reality," he told the audience attending the opening of the regional New Quebec Fair.

Mr. Levesque said there is a lack of French-Canadian researchers, engineers and technicians at the same time Quebec has in its hands all the legal powers needed to effect a radical change in the economy.

Persons preaching political independence forget to speak about the industrial and technological revolution, he said.

It will take several years of effort to give Quebec an industrial framework and this is entirely apart from the question of political independence, Mr. Levesque said.

"French - Canada certainly missed the boat during the industrial revolution and could well miss the technological revolution unless we become truly aware of the developments of our present age."

The minister said current education trends are good but it must be noted that the majority of engineers are specializing in fields not necessarily those which will assure the province a greater control of its economy.

LAWNS

The days are not long ago when chemical fertilizers were unknown; so were chemical weed killers and insect killers that destroy man and beast as well. As for sprinkling of lawns a man was lucky if he had a well that produced enough water to keep in summer the household going. Yet when one wanders through the older country estates it is amazing to find their lawns look so well, lawns that feel like soft carpets and can take the beating of dry hot summer weather and look the year round green even though they are seldom if ever watered. In comparison our modern lawns are just synthetic products which not withstanding all the care we give them — miracle fertilizers, abundance of water and water bills as well as other expenses — often make a sight to make any gardener sick.

It is obvious that the solution of the problem is a combination of the knowledge of gardening of the past with the scientific discoveries in the way of lawn and plant care of the present. Neither depending exclusively on one or the other.

That is why we recommend top-dressing of lawns as one of the best operations to make your lawn into a real asset of your home while simultaneously reducing the need of watering and deweeding. Healthy, vigorously growing grass constantly pushes seeds of weeds as they blow in upwards so their roots cannot touch soil.

Top-dressing of lawns can however, be only successful if weed-free topsoil is being used. It also should contain a minimum of clay. In the tombs of the pharaohs of ancient Egypt packages of lawn seed have been found given to the mighty rulers of the Nile as a farewell present so they could beautify their celestial abode with a nice patch of green lawn. It has been found that after 3,500 long years those seeds still germinated. This will give you some idea of what you can expect in the way of problems if you buy topsoil infested with the seeds of weeds.

A Shift in the Line-Up

THE FEDERAL CABINET ALterations announced yesterday will be accepted but will arouse no great enthusiasm among the Canadian people.

Mr. Favreau, having given up his justice portfolio, remains in a figure-head post as president of the Privy Council but will have as his special concern the sometimes delicate, sometimes brutal, matter of federal-provincial relations. With a record of poor judgment on questions of vital political and moral importance he may find his leadership in this new function hampered despite a fairly widespread sympathy for his predicament.

Federal-provincial relations are one of the most sensitive areas in Canada today. There is a highly explosive potential in many of the questions on which Ottawa and the provincial premiers frequently face each other. Indeed, the future of Confederation may be shaped by the outcome of the trials of strength which now rule federal-provincial relations, and Canada may wear a markedly different face as a result of the manoeuvrings which are taking place today. With an important federal-provincial conference to be held only ten days from now, the echoes of the Dorion report will still be loud and Mr. Favreau will have little time in which to settle himself into his new responsibilities.

Mr. Cardin is relatively unknown to the country, as are most of the other members who have received new posts. It no doubt will be questioned whether there has been enough of a change in the cabinet to satisfy the public that the unfortunate atmosphere of fumbling which has clouded the whole Rivard affair is now a thing of the past. Are changes of a more major nature still required in order to bring a "new deal" air to the next session of parliament?

The important consideration of far-reaching railway recommendations which will be scheduled for the next session underlines the wisdom of giving Transport Minister Pickersgill an assistant of the calibre of Mr. Pepin, who has been parliamentary secretary to Trade Minister Sharp.

All in all, these are cabinet changes whose value remains to be proved. Some have been long expected, delayed by what was in reality little more than the formality of waiting for the publication of the Dorion report. What the country will hope is that the Pearson program of legislation, actually one of the most far-reaching in our history, can now be resumed without further shocks to public confidence.

Which Project Do You Prefer?

THE GREATER VICTORIA committee considering proposals for a special, permanent local project to commemorate Canada's centenary, has completed a major part of its duties.

It has narrowed down to four the large number of schemes suggested by individuals, groups and organizations and now invites an expression of public opinion on the ones which qualify for the available funds.

Selection of four feasible undertakings was made not only on the basis of practicability, but also according to specific regulations covering the disbursement of money for centennial plans. Projects which would normally be paid for by regular public expenditure were eliminated automatically by this stipulation.

The cardinal purpose of the committee, of course, is to present a plan which offers opportunity for use and enjoyment by as many Greater Victorians as possible—something that they could not expect to obtain in the ordinary course of community development. The centennial project is to be more than a bread-and-butter gift to the region.

The committee has done a painstaking job. It is now anxious to hear from the people which proposal they prefer. For that reason its selection processes are being complemented by the ballot appearing daily in this newspaper. Residents are being asked to express their views by voting for the project they favor and mailing the ballot to the Times according to the directions on the form.

By this means the committee can be helped in forming its final recommendations by the end of this month. The ballot is informal, of course, and not binding on the committee.

The committee's eventual decision will then be sent to the intermunicipal committee, the respective municipal councils and the designated officials of provincial and federal governments for their approval.

As a public service to all Greater Victorians, the Times is happy to conduct the ballot in co-operation with the committee in charge.

Sharp Medicine Needed

RECENT INSTANCES OF rowdyism in public camping parks strike at the basis of the province's excellent outdoor attraction for residents and visitors. The camps are used primarily by families and any suggestion of hoodlumism detracts immediately from their value to law-abiding persons.

Deputy Recreation Minister David Turner has announced that extra policing will be provided for the parks. That is called for, certainly. But the matter goes deeper than that. The objective should be to remove the harassment of campers and the need for the added costs of policing as quickly as possible by eliminating the louts who create the nuisance. This can only be done by the swift arrest of offenders and the imposition of severe penalties that will deter all future attempts by wastrels who try to demonstrate their bravery by throwing stones in the dark.

There is no need for the public to put up with this sort of thing for a moment. At least once in this province a camper has had to use a gun to defend himself and his children against drunken hoodlums; more recently a private camp operator had to defend his life and the safety of his camping families by shooting two leaders of a gang of fifty brawling youths.

These raids should be treated as major public hazards, for if continued they will ruin the whole provincial camping program. It will not take many such incidents to create a bad reputation for British Columbia. A few memorable punishments, widely publicized, will do much to scare off the witless bullies who annoy vacationists. They apparently seek excitement. They should get it in full measure.

The Freeze-Out

ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED Police officers at Merritt trailed the tire-marks of a 1957 Cadillac from the spot where a calf was butchered to the car owner's house and found parts of the slaughtered animal in his home freezer. For this modern day rustling, the Cadillac owner was sentenced to 18 months — a modest penalty compared with old west standards.

In this age, a tiger in the tank is condoned. Somebody else's veal in the trunk is not. But at least the culprit will live to learn the difference.

—Bierman, The Victoria Daily Times.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Follow the Experts — In Reverse

Hutchison

MOST Canadian investors have lost money in the stock market lately but not my shrewd neighbor, Mr. Horace Snifkin. Instead of playing his own blind hunches, like most ignorant laymen, he listened to the experts. As a result, Mr. Snifkin is better off than ever. As he told me last night (celebrating the occasion with a bottle of champagne), you can never lose money if you listen to the experts and know how to interpret their advice. But you must follow it consistently, day in and day out, never wavering for a moment, never losing your confidence in the experts' infallible judgment.

Mr. Snifkin committed his substantial fortune to the experts some six months ago. Reading the optimistic New Year messages issued by the President of the United States, the ablest financiers of Wall Street, the prime minister of Canada and Mr. Walter Gordon, Mr. Snifkin saw that for once they were all in complete agreement. The big boom was going on forever. The stock market was bound to rise.

Time to Sell

He therefore instructed his broker to sell a quarter of his stocks immediately. The broker objected rather violently but in vain. Mr. Snifkin knew his experts. When they agreed unanimously in their optimism, it was time to sell stocks.

The market kept rising and Mr. Snifkin lost a great deal of money, as his broker frequently reminded him. Having made a handsome profit on his sale, Mr. Snifkin did not quite understand how he had lost anything but he was not an expert. He was only a layman with cash in the bank.

Throughout the spring Mr. Snifkin read the Financial Post of Toronto, many other authoritative publications and various learned news letters from the best banking houses in Wall Street. They all predicted a bull market.

That being clear, he sold another quarter of his stocks at figures far above the original purchase price and again suffered heavy losses. His broker was in tears by this time but Mr. Snifkin coldly rejected his protests. He knew how to interpret the opinions of experts.

The good news poured in week after week, the market rose and the broker told his friends privately that poor Mr. Snifkin, once an intelligent businessman, had become senile in his old age.

Everybody else was making money. Alone among countless millions of North Americans Mr. Snifkin was losing it. Yet nothing could shake his faith in the experts. He continued to accept their advice, following it in reverse, of course, like any experienced investor.

Even Mr. Gordon's budget speech could not shake Mr. Snifkin. In fact, after reading the finance minister's assurances of perpetual prosperity, Mr. Snifkin sold another quarter of his stocks. His broker invited him to take his business elsewhere and urged Mrs. Snifkin to consult a psychiatrist about her husband's condition.

Mrs. Snifkin failed to act in time. The tragedy swept toward its climax. Mr. Snifkin was beyond saving.

By long study of the latest reports from President Johnson's council of economic advisers he was almost an expert himself by now. He knew the figures by heart—the indicators all pointing upward, the Gross National Product growing fast, the inventories in good order, demand and supply in balance, prices stable, everything under control. Accordingly, he sold the rest of his stock, with the usual losses.

By the oddest coincidence, as Mr. Snifkin's ex-broker remarked, the market suddenly fell when Mr. Snifkin was safely out of it and kept falling, against all reason, in defiance of all logic, in disregard of all the experts, but Mr. Snifkin was not surprised. He had known the experts from away back.

In Champagne Penury

At present he is waiting with his cash, a new car, and several cases of champagne, to buy stocks again whenever the experts agree that their price will fall still farther. Then he will leap in and make a cleanup. Meanwhile, out of his losses, he is planning a leisurely trip to Europe. As he says, you can always trust the experts, so long as you stand on your head and read their advice upside-down.

CAREER GIRLS

I think the most distinctive feature of American musical life is the prevalence and influence of what are called "symphony women." They are unswervingly loyal, tireless in their activity, and they divert woman's natural aptitude for nagging away from their husbands and towards local plutocrats, who are bombarded with appeals until they give in, and fork out, for the cause.

Cracks in Albania's Rock

ALBANIA has so completely cut itself off from normal relations with other countries that it seems impossible that outside ideas might make their entry. But that is what seems at last to be happening.

For nearly 20 years Albania has been little more than a name to the outside world — a tiny enclave of Communism frowning from a fastness between the Adriatic and the savage mountains which separate it from Greece and Yugoslavia.

It is something one can listen to on the radio, as the Tirana shortwave transmitter pours forth its nightly diatribes against Khrushchev, Tito and all the other "revisionist" renegades of the Communist world.

It is still technically at war with Greece. It is at loggerheads with all the Communist East Europeans who were once its allies and, though Khrushchev is out, it still equates Soviet Russia with American "imperialism."

It belongs to the United Nations, yet has trading contacts with only 40 of its 100-odd members and will allow none of U.N.'s purely social-economic agencies to set foot inside its frontiers.

One Friend Only

Its only "friend" is distant Communist China, which came up with $123,000,000 worth of credits to finance its industrialization after Moscow had cut off aid because Albania's incorrigibly Stalinist leaders switched their ideological allegiance to Peking when the rift between the Communist giants opened in 1960.

China also saved Albania's five-year plan from collapse and equipped 25 major enterprises, all of which will be in production by next year.

China has just promised more credits —amount so far undisclosed—to help the country through the 1966-70 plan starting next January.

Albania's politics and ideology, of course, are pure Peking—or the "only genuine Marxism-Leninism" and "proletarian internationalism" in a naughty "revisionist" world, as its party chief, Enver Hoxha, and Mao Tse-tung would have it.

For two decades, Albania's 1,500,000 people have lived on an economic shoestring and been ruled with a discipline comparable to Stalin's in his heyday. No liberalization here, no curbing of police power. The mice of Yugoslav "heresy" have nibbled vainly at that mountain wall.

And yet, recent news from Albania itself begins to suggest that it is no more so completely immune from the ideas which have swept other Communist countries and changed them dramatically in recent years.

Soft Youth

Youth, it is said, it getting "ideologically soft." Young dramatists are writing plays which flout "our reality." There are complaints of the "danger" of radio and other foreign (Western) influences.

One has heard all this before, from Poland to Bulgaria. But not previously from Albania.

The threnody over youth comes from Mrs. Nexhmije Hoxha, wife of Enver Hoxha but a party career woman in her own right. Today's Albania youth, she says in an article, "lacks class and revolutionary warfare experience." It "looks at life through the prism of individualism."

It copies "everything which is 'new' and alien to our ideology and national traditiions . . ." "Indifference towards this danger," Mrs. Hoxha solemnly warns, "opens the road to liberalism."

She urges the educationists to combat this outside "threat" by putting more stress on "national tradition," the ingredient with which the dramatists also have now been told to spice their plays.

At a recent meeting of the Writers' and Artists' Union, the party spokesmen complained of "modernist" authors who are refusing to write "national" plays about the "fez and the sword."

Blamed for all this backsliding was the "harmful influence" of the "lost generation" in Western World literature.

'New' Economic Ideas

Other "new ideas" are cropping up in Albania's economic world. There is some courageous talk going on about improving the quality of Albanian products as a means of expanding trade, not only among the Communist countries but with the few Western countries — principally Italy, France and Austria—which have relations with Tirana.

There are demands for improved management to cut out delays and waste. Producers are being warned to pay more heed to the requirements of export agencies.

"It is not our producer who determines the demands and taste of the foreign buyer," the official newspaper "Zeri I Popullit" declared, "it must become clear once and for all that in foreign markets as well as at home only those products can be sold which fully meet the requirements of the consumer."

Good "revisionist" talk this! Not long ago Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin announced that "what is good for society and the consumer is good for the enterprise."

It is the first time in five years and more that Tirana and Moscow have agreed on anything. It is also a tiny sign that not even the mountains of doctine as well as rock guarding Hoxha's fortress can quite keep out modern ideas!

Looking Back

From The Times of July 8, 1890:

Washington: Two men representing the Spanish government visited here to determine the feeling of the United States and Cuban residents in Washington as to the possible eventual annexation of Cuba to the U.S. One of the men said he is "almost positive" Spain would give an offer of $200 million serious consideration. With the money from the sale, Spain would be in a position to secure its long-projected alliance with France and the eventual absorption of Portugal, he said.

Who Pushed Ben Bella?

From the Suddeutsche Zeitung, Munich

WERE there foreign influences at work behind the fall of President Ben Bella of Algeria? Many Western commentators presume there were. But which foreign power could possibly be interested in seeing power change hands in Algeria?

The Soviet Union is mentioned by some, who say this was her way of preventing the Afro-Asian Conference from taking place in Algeria. But most of the delegations taking part in it were already committed to inviting the Soviets. China's influence is not yet decisive in North Africa.

President Nasser of Egypt has indeed welcomed the new man in Algeria, and is said to have received him in Cairo shortly before he took power.

Yet Nasser and Ben Bella got on very well together. Considerations of foreign policy probably played a very secondary part in the coup.

The Algerians have every reason to be deeply dissatisfied with their economic position — unemployment, a fall in the standard of living, and a shortage of capital. It is more difficult for them to adapt to this sort of situation than the fellaheen in the other North African countries. The latter have never been so well off, whilst the Algerians were at least prosperous during the period of "national servitude." They are also a highly educated people on the average.

'Charlatan'

Ben Bella's treasury would also have remained empty but for French financial aid. He was therefore interested in a certain amount of collaboration with Paris — in exploiting the Algerian oil reserves, for instance. But he had so strongly concentrated all power in his own hands by eliminating his rivals that he also had to bear the entire responsibility for the wretched economic situation. Colonel Boumedienne, the Commander in Chief, and his officers, have therefore withdrawn their loyalty from the "charlatan," as they are now calling their former national hero.

The soldiers may well have their own reasons for this. Ben Bella did owe his position to them. But lately he had been trying to make himself a little more independent. To this end he founded a People's Militia. This could possibly have become a sort of counterweight to the army.

Colonel Boumedienne and his army officers have nipped any such intentions in the bud.

Counter-demonstrations in favor of Ben Bella have taken place in various cities. These do show that even the head of the army cannot count on general support. He will have to pull at least as strongly on the bit as his predecessor.

The change of leadership in Algeria is not going to mean a change in foreign policy, the new leaders say. The conference of Asian and African Prime Ministers and Heads of State is to take place as planned. The hosts have no decisive influence on the conference program any way. They have so far refrained from exercising any influence on who should take part in it and who should not. They do not even belong to the Commission set up to decide on this.

Chinese Plan

It remains to be seen whether the new masters in Algiers are going to maintain this position. There are several indications that the Chinese are planning a new move to exclude the Soviet Union, this time with certain counter-offers — such as a promise to put an end to strife within the community of Communist parties. This would, of course, have little hope of success, but would be not entirely without effect as a piece of agitation. More radical politics in Algeria could form a favorable background to such a step.

As pointed out, these are hardly the causes of the events in Algeria, yet they could possibly be the consequences.

Other consequences could be the spread of these radical politics to other Arab countries in North Africa. So it is not only in Paris that Ben Bella's departure is regretted. General de Gaulle has retained a certain amount of sympathy for this former NCO in the French army, whom he once personally decorated.

Spain is also looking at North-West Africa with some disquiet. She still has considerable interests there. In more than one of the countries in the West Arab area, the Maghreb, the internal situation has not yet finally stabilised itself. Of course, since the first risings against the French, it has always been Algeria itself that has seethed most violently. Now the revolution there is eating its own children. It is impossible to tell when this dangerous development is going to end.

To the Editor

Not Into Temptation

In the May 29, 1965 issue of the Times I saw a report of a church lecture by a Rev. Mr. Dickenson of Toronto, which I find very disturbing. In one of his lectures as a United Church councillor he says "Extra marital affairs are accepted. One enters every situation in life asking not so much what is right or wrong—but what does love of the other person require of me. From the point of view of the New Morality one tries to understand what effect a man's action has on him, and what it has meant to him."

I have never been deeply attached to the church, but I always thought the 10 Commandments were quite sound guideposts, if we would use them, or try to.

So much publicity is given these days condoning and even advocating this so-called New Morality (which isn't new at all but old as people). When we read these things by a Pierre Berton or some such it isn't good, but when it comes from a United Church official it seems horrifying to me. What happened to "Lead us not into temptation"?

A resurgence of self-control and self-discipline would be more beneficial in all departments of life. More stress on character and courtesy, less on emotion and more on thinking constructively, not just "to be good and God will love you"; but because if we all did this maybe we could go a little way towards cleaning up the moral mess the world seems to be in.—Out of Date.

British View of Arnold Smith: 'North American in JFK Mould'

By PATRICK KEATLEY

LONDON—"The division of humanity between the white and the other races, which coincides too closely for comfort with the division between the affluent industrialized peoples and the poor underdeveloped peoples, is, I think, the most difficult and potentially dangerous problem in the world."

The man who said those words, in a speech in London three months ago, is the new secretary-general of the Commonwealth.

First Man In Job

It is an awesome title, carrying grave responsibilities and enormous possibilities. So perhaps it is just as well that Arnold Smith, the Canadian diplomatist who now becomes the first man to hold this job, is anything but a stuffed shirt.

He is a North American in the Kennedy mold—tough, dedicated, cultivated, and bursting with energy. Like the late American President he has something about him of the student: the boyish face (for all that he is 50 and the father of three children), the ready laugh, the keen mind that strains like a greyhound on the leash in the quest for new frontiers of the spirit.

Lest this suggests someone too lofty for the harsh realities of this world, let me quickly add that this durable Canadian has been "through the mill" on some of the toughest assignments in his diplomatic service. The two years he recently put in as Ambassador in Moscow took him through the Cuba crisis and other strains of the cold war.

ARNOLD SMITH
. . . baseball and cricket

But as a rising young attache he had been through the colder strains of the Stalin era.

Others Respond

Spartan, dedicated men like Abubakar of Nigeria and Eric Williams of Trinidad respond with instinctive warmth to this quiet Canadian; they recognize someone whose code is their own. In domestic terms he is, of course, a "Pearson man" as the Ottawa phrase has it: The egghead who went from Upper Canada College to Grenoble, then Toronto University and on via a Rhodes scholarship to Oxford. A brilliant career in the department of external affairs rising to assistant under secretary of state.

The hankering for the academic: he must be the only Commonwealth citizen ever to teach political science at a university in Estonia, and when on attachment to the British Embassy in Cairo he somehow doubled as a lecturer in politics and economics at the state university there. He belongs to another exclusive group in the Commonwealth, too: those who can play not only cricket but baseball as well.

De Gaulle Firm In Saddle

PARIS—With five months to go before the presidential elections, 58 per cent of the French population is satisfied with Charles de Gaulle's handling of the office of president of the French Republic.

Twenty-seven per cent are dissatisfied, and 15 per cent wouldn't say.

This is the result of the latest poll conducted by the French Institute of Public Opinion, published this week in "France-Soir."

Although this indicates that de Gaulle should be a hands-down winner if he chooses to run for re-election in December—all political prophets also think he will be—there has still been a slight drop in his popularity since he recovered at the beginning of this year from a moderate slump.

Remember the Manifesto?

OTTAWA—"We have," grumbled Tory MP Alf Hales, "such a conglomeration of loan boards and assistance boards from this government that we hardly know where we are."

We're "galloping into state control," warned Socred leader Bob Thompson.

Both were reacting to the government's plan to lend capital to auto parts manufacturers for expansion. Having created new economic opportunities through the Canada-U.S. "free trade" pact on cars, the government now intends to finance industrial expansion so manufacturers can take advantage of the opportunities.

Old line Socialists, like those who framed the Regina Manifesto 32 Julys ago, would say let's have government ownership of the industry and be done with it. But that would be Socialism-in-a-hurry. The Liberals prefer the creepy kind.

* * *

The old manifesto is worth rereading. It provides a rough scorecard showing how far Socialism has crept since 1933.

1. The manifesto called for state economic planning. We have it—in the departments of finance, trade and industry; in the Grits' Economic Council that expanded on the Tories' Productivity Council.

2. Socialization of finance. We have it in substance: first, in rigid controls and restrictions on lending institutions; second, in the government's deep involvement in lending—for housing, farming, fishing and industry—and third, in the marriage of private and public investment capital proposed in the Canada Development Corp.

3. Social ownership of utilities. We have not expropriated the CPR, and we let "Texas buccaneers" build our pipelines, but otherwise social ownership has increased rapidly in the utilities field, as in Quebec's takeover of the private power companies.

* * *

4. Agriculture. We have crop insurance, farm improvement loans, ARDA, the Wheat Board, subsidies—in all, much more than the founding CCFers proposed excepting only parity prices.

5. External trade through state boards. We have it in grains, but in other fields state control and encouragement are found to suffice.

6. Encouragement of co-ops. Done.

7. A national labor code. Done.

8. Socialized health services. Hospital insurance in effect, medicare on its way.

9. BNA Act amendments. The CCF founders wanted Ottawa to have more constitutional power to deal with national economic problems (i.e., the depression). There is no doubt now that Ottawa has such powers.

* * *

10. Foreign policies to further economic co-operation, disarmament and peace. Done.

11. Financial policies. The manifesto is a mixture of soak-the-rich, share with the provinces, and Social Credit "debt-free" money. Grits and Tories have partly implemented the first two policies, but eschewed the third.

12. Freedom of the subject. Largely implemented; viz, the Bill of Rights.

13. Social justice and criminal law. The old CCF program is slowly being matched by enlightened legislation and penology practices.

14. "No CCF government will rest content until it has eradicated capitalism." In 1958 the CCF abandoned this goal. It is probably not true that this was done to discourage the Liberals from swiping it.

NATURE on the ISLAND

By Cliff Carl

The abalone may be well known to the seafood gourmet and to certain skin-divers but not to the casual visitor to the beach. This is primarily because this mollusc is found only in certain areas and most of these spots are along the more exposed sections of the coast where visitors are relatively few.

In fact it comes as a surprise to some to learn that abalones are native to British Columbia. True, we have only one species and it is rather small in size compared with those found in more southern waters, but it has all the characteristic features of members of this group plus a fine flavor when prepared properly.

Like most other snails the abalone has a single, coiled shell. This structure, however, is very much flattened and the coil forms a broad spiral which gives the shell a peculiar shape something like that of a human ear. Following the curve of the outer edge and near the front of the shell is a series of round holes with raised rims; some are filled with shelly material but the three or four holes nearest the front are open and serve as breathing pores for the animal.

* * *

The upper surface of the shell is knobby and an inconspicuous brown in color and is often further camouflaged with a growth of algae or other organisms so that the creature is most difficult to see in its usual rocky habitat.

The inside of the shell is lined with mother of pearl with the typical lustre and iridescence found in most shells in this group. Because of its attractive appearance portions of abalone shell were often used by the coastal Indians to decorate head-dresses and other wooden carvings, the bits of shell being fitted into prepared recesses by a system of inlay. Sometimes the shells of California species were imported for this purpose because they are thicker and possess a more lustrous and colorful surface than does our native species.

The animal which produces this shell has all the features of a typical snail, a flat, creeping foot, tentacles, eyes and mouth at the front and an enveloping mantle which encloses the body and secretes the shell.

The mantle is a frilly organ banded with dark brown and orange and most of the body is orange in color. The orange body is somewhat conspicuous when the relaxed animal lifts the shell free of the surface to which it is clinging, and this habit often reveals its position to the searcher.

It is the foot which is the desirable part for food. This structure is pure muscle with very fine texture and a delicate flavor. It is prepared by cutting it into thin slices and frying lightly in butter.

* * *

Needless to say, best results are obtained from freshly gathered abalone though frozen steaks are passable. Some connoisseurs advise pounding the meat well before cooking but this should not be necessary.

Abalones browse on rocky reefs usually where there is lots of surf action. For the first few years they feed almost exclusively upon coraline algae, sea-weeds protected by a thin deposit of limestone; older individuals vary this diet by including several of the larger species of algae usually found in the same general area. In their feeding activities abalones may range into fairly deep water but many are often exposed by the lowest tides where they may be collected fairly easily.

* * *

While these molluscs are not particularly abundant in British Columbia, the population around the north end of Vancouver Island and in the Queen Charlottes is large enough to support a small industry. Between 15,000 and 30,000 pounds are taken each year, mostly for export, and biologists say more could be harvested with proper equipment.

A word of caution if you have a mind to try abalone steaks. Regulations permit only abalones measuring more than 2½ inches across the narrowest part of the shell to be taken.

NLF Preparing To Expand Role

By RICHARD HALLORAN

The National Liberation Front, political organ of the Viet Cong insurgents, is showing signs of evolving from a typical Communist front into a provisional government.

If the front declares itself a provisional government, it will clearly signal that it has reached the next phase in its revolutionary strategy and feels close enough to victory that it must prepare to replace the government in Saigon.

Evidence of this not-so-subtle shift began trickling in about a year ago. Among the latest signs is an article and map in a recent issue of the "Peking Review," an authoritative Chinese publication.

Claim Disputed

The magazine stated that the front is "the sole and genuine representative of the South Vietnamese people." It supported its claim by saying: "Today, the liberated areas controlled by the NLF constitute four-fifths of the territory of South Viet Nam and contain 10 million people." About 14 million people live in South Viet Nam.

American figures dispute this. A civilian official recently back from Saigon estimates that the Viet Cong control nine to 10 provinces, 21 or 22 are contested, and the Saigon government forces prevail in 10 to 12.

Whatever the case, the Front has undertaken an increasing number of administrative tasks in the expanding area under its rule. In some places, they issue their own currency and postage stamps.

Tax collection has become well organized.

The flow of propaganda from the Front's press agency is steady and occasionally governmental proclamations on economic problems are issued.

To gain international standing, the Front has been active in the diplomatic field, especially in the Communist bloc. This spring, the Front opened a quasi-diplomatic mission in Moscow and before that one in Peking.

Formed In '60

The Front has sent delegations to a number of left-wing and Communist international conferences. With Peking's backing, it was trying to have its delegates recognized as the South Vietnamese representatives at the abortive Afro-Asian conference scheduled for Algiers last month.

The National Liberation Front was formed in late 1960. In February, 1961, it issued a 10-point manifesto that called for overthrowing the Saigoon government, adopting a neutralist foreign policy, reuniting with North Viet Nam, and undergoing economic reforms such as land redistribution.

Three parties are known to be included in the Front. The radical Socialist party and the Democratic party are both believed to have leftwing intellectual and "bourgeois" members.

The third unit, the People's Revolutionary Party, is an arm of the Lao Dong, or North Vietnamese Communist party. It is controlled from Hanoi by the reunification department of the party and the reunification commission of the government's council of ministers.

Although it has been acting more like a provisional government, the Front so far has stopped short of formally proclaiming itself an opposition regime.

Some observers argue that it won't take this step because the Viet Cong guerrillas can't take and hold a provincial or district capital for the Front to use as an operational base. American airpower could soon drive them out, they say.

Openly Outside

But the Algerian National Liberation Front had a provisional government during much of its seven-year war against the French, who had plenty of air power. The Algerian shadow government functioned secretly within Algeria and openly in various places outside the country.

One school of thought holds that such a government would be completely unwilling to negotiate, believing that it could win a military victory and seeing no need for political compromise.

An opposite school says that the establishment of a provisional government might be the opening move toward the conference table, where the Saigon government and the Front would meet as equals.

Washington and Saigon both say they will not negotiate under these conditions. So far, the Viet Cong have shown no desire to negotiate under any circumstances, other than American withdrawal.

'Liberated' Cuban Women Heading for the Fields

HAVANA—Cuba claims its revolution has reached the final limit of female emancipation—the incorporation of women into the country's manual labor force.

The new revolutionary housewife will rise at 5 a.m. and go out to the fields to tend the crops, resplendent in an ideology-backed equality different from that imagined by many Western feminists.

She will return home at five in the afternoon, complete her household tasks and study for two hours in the evening at special educational centres.

Premier Fidel Castro says the mobilization of a female labor force hundreds of thousands strong, in full equality with men, signifies the complete liberation of women from all the inferiorities and discriminations to which they have been subjected in the past.

Special facilities are being planned to free the housewife from the traditional chores of the home, which have turned her into what the regime calls a "modern domestic slave."

Bard Nears End of the Road In Romantic Indian Travels

By CYRIL DUNN

NEW DELHI—A film classified by one of its makers as "a sad little footnote to the end of an empire" has been shown this week as an Indian entry at the Berlin Festival. When it reaches Britain it will surely excite the emotions of those who venerate Shakespeare on purely patriotic grounds.

Called "Shakespearewalla," the film tells the story of the last British company of strolling players to go about India putting on the bard. It records a melancholy decline in their fortunes since India became free.

Its three principal makers can obviously have no deep tribal feeling about Shakespeare. The director is an American, slim and uncommonly silent, aged 37, called James Ivory. The producer is a Parsee of Muslim origins—Ismail Merchant, aged 28, with the vitality and chest development of a young tycoon.

The script writer is Ruth Prawer Jhabvala, a small and beautiful Jewess who is married to a Parsee architect, lives in Delhi and speaks Hindi with a Scottish accent. Mrs. Jhabvala is a novelist who writes quietly and with faintly acidulated penetration about the Indian middle-class society to which she now belongs. (Her latest book, "A Backward Place," was reviewed recently.) As a result, she has been called "the Jane Austen of India" until she could scream.

Through the Hills

Suspicion may well be evoked in Stratford-on-Avon by such backgrounds as these. But actually Mrs. Jhabvala swears they have nothing against Shakespeare — and then laughs at having to disown such an outrageous idea. He is treated in the film, she says, as a symbol of everything English now subject in India to inevitable decay.

The film is designed as a romance, but is in fact a mixture of fiction and reality. The last of the strolling English players are themselves the chief performers in the film. The script obliged them to live on several planes of experience at once—not only acting plays within a play, but also reliving a transmuted version of their own private lives.

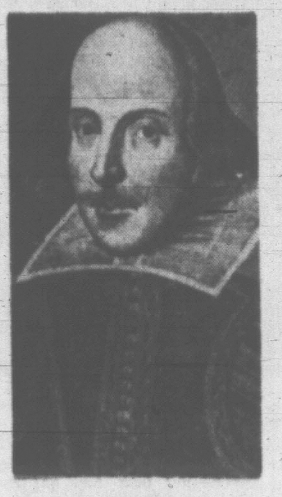
These surviving players are an Englishman with Edwardian whiskers, called Geoffrey Kendal, now aged 54, his wife Laura and their daughters, Jennifer and Felicity. They have been rejoined in the film by some of the Indian actors who formerly travelled with them.

Viceroy's Command

One of these is Shashi Kapoor, today a successful Bombay film star. He left his father's Hindi theatre when he was 18 to join the strolling Kendals. He fell in love with Jennifer and married her.

Kendal first took his company to India early in 1947. He kept a diary which shows the players threading their way through the vast turmoil of that year like a party of troubadours caught up in the medieval wars of France.

They were, of course, brushed from time to time by the mighty events occuring around them. Indeed, they might have had their own small place in Indian history. They were commanded to perform before the last of the Viceroys at his palace in Delhi, but the show was cancelled, aptly enough by the death of the King of Denmark.



SHAKESPEARE
. . . floods in Assam

But more often than not the players were preoccupied by the hazards of their journey—floods in Assam, a landslide in the Naga Hills—and by the basic rule of their business: If you don't perform, you don't eat.

Kendal does not seem to feel he had a mission to take Shakespeare to the Indians. He did it primarily to make a living. If the customers wanted something else, he gave it to them. Oddly enough, the play called for by the Mountbattens was not "Henry V" but Patrick Hamilton's "Gaslight."

After crossing the still untidy battlefields along the Burmese border, the company ran into Indian opposition at Imphal, in the extreme east of India. It came from the re-emerging soldiers of the Indian National Army who had fought beside the Japanese against the British. When the Kendals started setting up their stage in the Imphal Club these warriors marched through the streets denouncing Shakespeare through loudspeakers as an agent of British imperialism and then threw stones at the players.

Yet Kendal records even this event with detachment. He writes with much deeper feeling about an absorbed Indian audience in the same district, three-quarters of which had got in without paying. And he also showed that he felt the dignity of his players had been affronted when, at a place called Pantiola, some British planters prolonged the intervals by staying in the bar.

Kendal is plainly devoted to his profession. His diary is also loaded with evidence of Indian devotion to Shakespeare, though he records it without comment. He believes his company had to give up because of rising costs, not because of waning local interest in the bard.

Rough Passion

James Ivory says he did not try to direct the Kendals when they did their bits of Shakespeare in the film. One hopes this means people will in due course see what splendid professionals worked as the last of their kind in India.

Last October I saw them rehearse "Othello" in the green and gold theatre built by the British at Simla in Queen Victoria's jubilee year. It was late and the Kendals began by saying "and something, something" instead of their lines. There was a momentary break in the flow when Kendal, then throttling his daughter Felicity, cried: "Stop pulling me down, I am the bloody strangler, not you."

But then the whole thing suddenly caught fire and was done with such rough passion that everyone in the theatre was awed. The footnote is certainly sad.

Eskimos to Go To Provinces

Federal Government Plans Shift In Administration

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is looking forward to a gradual transfer of Eskimo administration to the provinces, but so far no agreement has been reached with Quebec beyond a transfer of municipal administration at Great Whale River, Prime Minister Pearson said today.

Mr. Pearson told a press conference that at a May 8 meeting with Premier Lesage of Quebec an agreement was reached that the province would take over "normal municipal services" at Great Whale River.

These include power, water, sewage collection and "other municipal services to all residents" of the community.

"The approach agreed upon for Great Whale River is expected to be the pattern that will be followed for other communities as arrangements can be worked out," he said.

"It is a normal responsibility of a province to provide such municipal services anywhere in a province and I will welcome the steps Quebec is now taking towards this end."

PREPARED STATEMENT

The prime minister prepared a statement on the Eskimos after Mr. Lesage said in Quebec earlier this week that agreement had been reached under which Quebec would gradually assume jurisdiction over Eskimos in the province.

The Quebec premier made the comment after it was announced in the legislature that the province plans to build a $186,000 school at Fort Chimo in northern Quebec.

Mr. Pearson said the question of providing other forms of services for Eskimos such as education and welfare is more complex than the normal municipal services.

While no agreement had been reached "We are looking forward to a gradual implementation, in consultation with the Eskimos concerned, of a transfer of the administrative functions involved in the services."

The prime minister was questioned by reporters on what form this consultation would take. He said it would be "consultation in the normal sense . . . getting their views."

He added: "It's not going to be done without the approval of those concerned."

Mr. Pearson said this matter concerns not only Quebec. Discussions had been going on with Newfoundland and a statement was expected shortly.

The prime minister said that both he and Northern Affairs Minister Laing have agreed on this approach, and the statement he gave to the press conference also had the agreement of Mr. Lesage.

He said the new school planned by Quebec at Fort Chimo will have a kindergarten, a facility not provided anywhere in the north by the federal government.

TEACH TWO LANGUAGES

"The kindergarten is, I think, intended for Eskimos and the teaching will be in the Eskimo language. The school is also, I understand, to provide teaching in French for the children of French-Canadian parents now resident in the area.

"This provincial service in education will therefore be supplementing ours and as time passes the Eskimos in the Arctic Quebec communities may well decide that all education should be provided to their children by the system the province will establish."

His statement went on:

"While therefore, at the moment, there is no agreement for a transfer of administration at any points outside Poste-de-la-Baleine (Great Whale River) the transfer there of municipal services will no doubt be followed by similar transfers of municipal services at other locations and, in consultation with the Eskimos, education, welfare and other services, especially for Eskimos, may gradually follow as time goes by."

Municipal services at Great Whale River had been provided by the federal government because there was a mid-Canada radar line site in the community.

With the closing of the site the time was opportune for new arrangements. The federal government would reimburse the province for any deficit incurred in providing these services.

'VICTORY IMPOSSIBLE' SAYS THANT

GENEVA (UPI) — United Nations secretary-general Thant said Wednesday there is no longer a choice between victory and defeat in Viet Nam.

"Total victory or defeat is out of the question," Thant told a news conference.

"The longer the war goes on, the more remote are the prospects for a peaceful solution," he said. "The choice is no longer between victory or defeat."

Thant said the first step toward any settlement is a cessation of all fighting to be followed by discussions which "must involve all those who are actually fighting."

Board Urged For Gov't Wage Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — An independent five-member board to regulate collective bargaining and arbitration in the public service was recommended today in a special committee report to the federal government.

The committee, headed by A. D. P. Heeney, said a public service staff relations board should be set up to determine bargaining units, and arbitrate disputes over pay, hours of work, holidays and related matters.

Prime Minister Pearson, who established the Heeney committee in the fall of 1963, said "the government intends to introduce legislation on this subject at an early opportunity."

He told a press conference that interested organizations would be able to make representations on any legislation when it is before a parliamentary committee.

CAPTAIN AIKAWA
. . . not exciting

'A GOOD LIFE'

Wandering Captain Has 12 Years to Go

Mitsuo Aikawa is a small, quiet-spoken man who has bullied a 14,000-ton freighter around the world three times in almost as many years.

He is master of the 576-foot tanker, Eiho Maru, tied up at Ogden Point docks loading wheat for Japan.

A youthful face and laughing eyes belie the man's 43 years, more than half of which he has spent at sea on freighters.

Wednesday he leaned back in a comfortable chair in his cabin and said almost apologetically: "My life has not been very exciting or adventurous.

"I haven't been on any sinking ships or caught in terrible storms. It's been a good life."

EVEY MAJOR PORT

The "good life" he speaks of has been a series of month-long voyages to every major port in the world on almost every one of the hundreds of ships owned by the Kawasaki Kisen Co., of Kobe, his employers.

During his annual nine weeks' vacation he lives with his wife and three daughters in southern Japan.

But it will be another 12 years before he can go home permanently.

The shipping company retires it's captains at 55 years of age and Mitsuo says he will have no regrets when he leaves the wheelhouse for the last time.

He has been in Victoria three times in the past year after an absence of about 10 years.

From here the Eiho Maru will sail to Vancouver to finish loading and then embark on a two-week voyage back to Japan.

"I could go anywhere after that," he said.

Pioneer Nurse's Funeral Monady

Funrela services will be held Evaline Pemberton — Canada's Monday at 1:30 p.m. for Miss in Hayward's funeral chapel first registered nurse, who died Tuesday at the age of 98.

Canon Hywel Jones will conduct the service, which will be followed by interment at Ross Bay Cemetery.

HAY CROP THREATENED

Rain Falls, But Ont. Needs More

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Southern Ontario got a wide band of rain Wednesday but too little of it fell over the drought-stricken Ottawa Valley where dry conditions have already ruined one hay crop and a second is threatened.

In the worst-hit counties of Renfrew, Prescott, Russell and Lanark, farmers and agricultural officials said the light and intermittent drizzle that fell was not enough to raise hopes for a second hay crop.

"There's only been 1-32 of an inch of rain at most today," one livestock farmer in the Renfrew area said. "We'd need a lot more to give us enough hay crop for winter feed supplies."

Meanwhile, Agriculture Minister Harry Hays announced his department had bought 72,000 pounds of hardy Sudan-sorghum hybrid seed for distribution to drought-plagued farmers. Planted now, the seed could provide summer and fall grazing.

The department was also bringing 12 water pumping trucks from Manitoba. The trucks carry mile-long hoses and can pump 450 gallons a minute from natural water sources to parched fields.

The seed purchase and importing of the irrigation trucks is part of a federal agricultural assistance plan.

An agricultural assistance plan being considered by the federal, Ontario and Quebec governments could involve acreage payments to cover some crop losses and freight subsidy to transport feed to drought areas, sources in Ottawa said. A similar subsidy last year cost $800,000, shared equally between the provinces and the federal government.

Everitt Biggs, Ontario deputy agriculture minister, said the province will continue to experiment with hired rainmaking machines for the rest of the summer.

A bureau of statistics report released in Ottawa Wednesday said crop prospects and moisture supplies on the Prairies were favorable, but dryness in parts of Eastern Canada is hampering crop growth.

The report said crops in many areas of the Maritime provinces were showing the effects of dryness. Hay and strawberry yields were down.

INSIDE DOPE SAVED THEM RED FACES

TORONTO (CP)—Who says the weatherman doesn't really believe his own forecast?

The meteorological branch of the department of transport was to have had a picnic Wednesday on an island in Toronto Harbor for its staff and their 400 dependents.

But late Tuesday the duty forecaster said it was going to rain Wednesday.

The picnic was postponed.

It rained most of Wednesday.

Gold Keg Beer makes merry with the tough old salts of Bristol.

Cmdr. John Buck, RN (ret'd.) and his old shipmates splice the mainbrace with Gold Keg.

Bless 'em.

In Bristol there are dozens of old pubs that are favoured by ex-Navy men.

Grand beerdrinkers all.

During Operation Gold Keg we spent many an hour in these pubs, testing Canada's celebrated Gold Keg Beer on the old salts.

Who, of course, loved it.

You see, Gold Keg is brewed with men in mind. Men who love a hearty, mellow kind of beer. A deep-flavoured beer.

So it's no surprise that Gold Keg is making friends all over England. And it's no surprise that Englishmen (bless 'em) compare it to their favourite English beers.

Why don't you try Gold Keg for a change? It's a grand brew for a man who likes beer.

Bless you.

ISLAND DIGEST

Centennial Arena Costs $270,000

NORTH COWICHAN — Reeve Donald Morton said Wednesday the municipality's centennial ice arena will cost $270,000.

He told council it would be unsafe to allow less in a plebiscite.

Highest cost mentioned previously was $225,000.

Coun. George Whitaker expressed strong opposition to the chosen Fullers Lake Park site.

Proposals for a regional community centre near Duncan, to include an arena, strengthened his view the centennial building should be in downtown Chemainus.

He said the ice arena should be within walking distance of the population it will serve.

Reeve Morton said there is insufficient land in Chemainus. Biggest downtown site available is five acres and planners say the arena will require three-and-a-half acres for parking alone.

If Duncan and the unorganized area don't respond soon to his idea of joint action on a swimming pool and community centre the arena vote will have to be put separately, he said.

Reeve Morton has suggested a composite municipal referendum of $600,000 for its share of the arena, swimming pool and centre.

BRISK TOWELLING RIDS ITCH

NORTH COWICHAN—Cedar poisoning? . . . No. . . . it's just swimmer's itch.

This was Councillor Gerry Smith's opinion at council meeting Wednesday. And he has it on good authority.

He told council that health inspector Douglas Roe has assured him there is no cedar poisoning in any of the district's fresh water lakes.

The inspector further added that "cedar poisoning is largely an old wives' tale."

However, some people are allergic to cedar and get a rash from water in which cedar trees stand.

Swimmers can get rid of the itch by brisk towelling as soon as they leave the water.

Construction Up

PORT ALBERNI — Building permit values here for the first six months of 1965 were up $450,000 to a high of $2,455,365, William Fraser, building inspector, said here Wednesday.

HIDDEN BY TREES from prying eyes, this stately old home was the scene of B.C.'s first kidnapping Tuesday. Abductors carried 82-year-old Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Knight from the house to a nearby potting shed where she was bound hand and foot and buried beneath a pile of boards and building material. Deep undergrowth surrounds the home, just outside Ladysmith, was object of intense search before Mrs. Knight was found Wednesday morning. She is in fair condition in Ladysmith hospital.

Australian Champ Among 125 Loggers Set to Go at Sooke

SOOKE — All-Sooke Day Saturday will star a record number of entrants in the famed logging events.

So far 125 top names in the logging world have signed up for the show.

At least three Australians will take part, including world champion all-round logger Clayton Stewart, of Tasmania.

Nine are coming from the U.S. and world champion birlers, Jubiel and Ardiel Wickheim will give their usual display on home ground.

The annual event gets underway at 12:30 p.m., starting with field sports for children.

Main logging sports will start at 2:30 and will feature tree falling, birling, log cutting and other annual logging spectacles.

For the first time in the history of All-Sooke Day winners in each logging contest will be recognized as Canadian champions.

Special attraction will be the tallest cedar pole ever cut in the province.

The 140-foot pole will be brought out of the forest just outside Sooke this week by Ted Shaw Logging Co. and erected on the grounds.

For non-logging enthusiasts there will be a midway, a ladies' nail-driving contest, a tug-o'-war, a boys' pie-eating contest, and a baby show.

Famed Sooke seafood in the form of salmon steak, clam chowder and barbecued beef will be served throughout the day.

Entry to the grounds at Sooke Flats on the main Sooke road, will be free.

Lieutenant - Governor George Pearkes will officially open the event at 1:30 p.m.

Donation to Village

Delegates at Wednesday night's meeting of Victoria Labour Council unanimously voted a donation of $10 to the Children's International Summer Village to be held in Shawnigan Lake.

BEACHES LITTERED BY CHIPS

NORTH COWICHAN — Maple Bay people don't like it when the chips are down.

Especially when they're pulp chips fouling the beach.

Coun. George Whittaker told North Cowichan Council Wednesday a vast amount of pulp chips is being washed up on Maple Bay and Crofton beaches.

The chips are lying a foot deep and a foot wide on Maple Bay Beach and appear to be falling off the scows passing down the narrows.

Coun. John Cannon said B.C. Forest Products Ltd. might have to consider a boom around the whole area of its mill.

He said the chips most likely were spilled at the mill.

Council accepted Reeve Donald Morton's advice and will make an approach to the company seeking a solution.

WATER BYLAW

Reeve Warns Against Vote

MORTON
. . . wait until Sept. 30

NORTH COWICHAN—Reeve Donald Morton warned Wednesday there will be trouble if a second vote is taken on supplying Duncan water to Somenos VLA subdivision.

He told council that local market gardener, Gus Windeyer, has hinted that if the vote succeeds he will challenge the bylaw's validity.

The reeve was commenting on a request by Harold Whitfield to hold a second vote before Sept. 30.

A vote on the issue June 26 failed to obtain the required majority.

Leader of a delegation favoring an early second vote, Mr. Whitfield said:

WELLS DRY

"There is danger of a spread of hepatitis and water shortage in the event of fire. Wells have gone dry in the area earlier than anyone can ever remember."

He pointed out that some 90 people had failed to cast their ballots at the first vote.

Reason, he said, was an erroneous belief that the bylaw would get a big majority anyway.

Coun. George Whittaker said it was bad tactics to press for an early vote.

He said the summer would be over anyway before Somenos could be connected with city water. And forcing the bylaw would only provide ammunition for those against it.

He suggested some re-drawing of the area to exclude people who don't wish to participate in the $140,000 venture.

But Mr. Whitfeild held his ground.

He said a survey taken after the first vote indicated a second poll would be successful.

Council's request for an order-in-council will go to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

Comox Aircraft In Air Exercise

COMOX—Voodoo fighter aircraft from the RCAF base here were to take part today in joint Canadian-U.S. air defence exercises.

The fighters joined up with units from the Seattle sector of the North American Air Defence Command for the exercises which lasted 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Most of the air action was over B.C., western Washington, western Alberta and off the West Coast.

Federal Plan Approved For PNE Livestock Show

Some classifications are being changed for dairy and beef cattle competing for prizes in the 1965 Pacific National Exhibition livestock show.

The livestock show will be one of the many highlights of the fair, which salutes "Vancouver — City of Lights and Flowers" and runs from Aug. 21 to Sept. 6.

John Farrow, PNE agricultural manager, said the cattle changes result from new plans laid down by the Canadian department of agriculture for fairs and exhibitions across Canada.

Mr. Farrow said the PNE will follow the federal program in some classes and use a modified plan in others.

REDUCE CLASSES

Dairy classes under the federal plan will be reduced from the usual 26 in past fairs to eight classes per breed plus one best udder class for interbreed competition.

These include two bull classes, five female classes and one group class.

Beef cattle classes under the federal plan will be reduced from 20 to seven, with three bull classes, three female classes, one of which is cow with calf at foot, and a group class of four animals.

The federal agriculture department's plan will be followed in the Ayrshire and Guernsey dairy cattle and the Aberdeen Angus and Shorthorn beef cattle classes.

A PNE modified plan will be used for Holstein and Jersey dairy cattle and Hereford beef cattle.

Mr. Farrow said the federal agriculture department will pay 50 per cent of prize money paid out in classes following the department's plan.

In addition, exhibitors will be allowed to enter only one animal in each class with the exception that he can enter two animals in each of two classes of his own choosing.

On the PNE modified plan, an exhibitor will be allowed to collect two prize monies in each class, Mr. Farrow said.

There will also be one steer class interbreed competition, in which the animal will first be judged live and again after slaughter. The carcass will be displayed in the new refrigeration case in the Agrodome.

A competition for herdsmen in beef or dairy cattle will also be held during the fair. Prize money ranges from a top of $150 down to $25.

Brentwood Ferry On Summer Hours

Summer hours for the Brentwood-Mill Bay ferry have begun.

Under the new schedule, the first run from Brentwood begins at 7:30 in the morning with subsequent runs on the half-hour until the last sailing at 6:30 p.m.

From Mill Bay, it begins at 8 a.m. and thereafter on the hour until the last trip at 7 p.m.

On Sundays and holidays there are two extra trips, extending the schedule so that the final runs are at 8:30 and 9 p.m.

Boat Explodes, Two Rescued; Another Missing

Two unidentified Victoria fishermen were plucked from the water unhurt after their boat blew up off the northern tip of Vancouver Island Wednesday.

As their vessel, the Lady Linda, burned nearby, the two were picked up by the crew of a second fishing boat, the Diane Nine.

The boat was a total loss.

Meanwhile, search and rescue aircraft from RCAF Comox tried to find another fishing boat with Herb Baker of Skidegate aboard, mising off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Officials said they had been notified by other fishermen that the Dolores L had failed to return with other vessels from the fishing grounds Tuesday.

CON DROPS IN ON JUDGE

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (UPI)—A prisoner who was sunbathing on the courthouse roof crashed through a glass skylight today and landed in the middle of court.

Glen Thompson, 49, a trusty at the Woodbury County Jail, landed inches from district court Judge George Paradise and a few feet from three attorneys as the judge held a juvenile hearing.

Thompson received possibly serious injuries in the fall. Paradise, unnerved by the incident, adjourned the hearing until tomorrow.

Sheriff Whitey Rosenberger said Thompson, who was serving a term for intoxication and vagrancy, was sunbathing with another trusty when the skylight broke. He was clad in prison trousers and slippers.

Rosenberger said the sunbathing was a health measure and part of the corrective program at the jail.

SASKATCHEWAN STUDENTS

24 Youngsters Touring District

Twenty-four young travellers from Saskatchewan arrived in Victoria Wednesday for a week-long visit.

The group, 18 girls and six boys, are high school students participating in an exchange program which will continue each summer until 1967, the national centenary.

A similar group from Victoria area high schools will leave shortly for Winnipeg.

The Saskatchewan group was officially welcomed by Chamber of Commerce president David Lawson at the Crystal Garden where the students met their host families.

The students are all 16 and 17 years-of-age and live in the Regina area.

PROGRAM SET

A number of functions have been planned for the students during their visit.

There is no official program for today, but Friday the group will be taken to see the Maritime Museum, Bastion Square, a reception at City Hall, provincial government lunch at the Empress Hotel, a tour and a swim in the Crystal Garden as well as roller skating.

Saturday they will be taken on a bus trip to the Malahat, a visit to Yarrow's shipyard followed by a beach party and dance at Oak Bay Senior Secondary School.

Monday they will tour the Legislative buildings and tour Craigdarroch Castle and the University of Victoria. There will also be a reception by the Lieutenant-Governor at Government House.

A sea tour has been laid on for Tuesday, the final day they will be here.

Husband Flees Rock, Woman Sleeps Alone

SULTAN, Wash, (AP)—What would you do if you were marooned overnight on a rock in the middle of a river?

"I stuffed my clothes with sand and moss to keep warm," said Mrs. Clark Farmer, 26, of Redmond, Wash. "I padded the bumps so I could lie down.

Mrs. Farmer and her husband were fishing below the Sultan River Dam, near this northwest Washington community, when storage water was released and she was trapped on a rock. Her husband made it to shore and summoned help. Mrs. Farmer was rescued at 6:45 Wednesday morning, 11 hours after being marooned and still clutching the 11 fish she had caught.

Meeting Planned on Gas Rate

B.C. Hydro regional manager L. E. Wight has agreed to meet a delegation of local restaurant operators seeking lower gas rates.

But, at the same time, he told them he could not forsee any reduction in the rates. BCH claims gas is supplied to Greater Victoria below cost.

Bill Webb, president of Victoria-Vancouver Island branch, Canadian Restaurant Association, said no date has been set for the meeting.

He said more than 200 persons have signed a petition asking for lower gas prices.

VICTORIA'S MIDNIGHT RAMBLERS

END B.C. TOUR

City Western Band 'Tops' With Carter

A four-man country music group has returned to Victoria after a week-long tour with Wilf Carter, a feature entertainer at Williams Lake stampede.

According to Norm Winquist and Norm Watson, leaders of the Midnight Ramblers, it was the first time a Victoria band, if not a B.C. band, had been chosen to make a tour with the durable Canadian western singer.

They covered the B.C. interior and lower mainland points, hitting Williams Lake during a 105-degree heat wave, but drawing more than 2,000 people.

Norm Watson, who acted as MC, played rhythm guitar and sang, said the Ramblers were picked after Carter heard an audition tape recording. Usually, the singer brings a band from Calgary or other prairie points in his B.C. tour.

Norm Winquist is lead guitar player, his brother Bob plays bass and violin, and Stan Bell plays steel guitar. When playing dance engagements, the group also includes Don Fischer on accordion and Fergus Heywood on drums.

Members have played together for eight years and are talking of making another tour in December.

They will be a feature of All Sooke Day dance July 10.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Most prices were firm today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in light trade.

There was some shipping demand in oats accompanied by reports of a modest sale to Europe. Barley trade was light.

Oilseeds were fairly steady despite declines in Chicago soybeans. A 1,500-ton sale of rapeseed to Italy was reported. Flax was slightly easier.

Rye moved narrowly in spite of losses at Chicago.

CHICAGO (AP) — Old crop soybean futures ranged from strong to weak today in active transactions on the board of trade but all other contracts started and remained weak most of the time.

July Soybeans traded about two cents a bushel higher to around four cents a bushel lower by early afternoon with speculators liquidaitng long positions, then selling short and buying those commitments back on the decline.

U.S. Denies Firm Grab In Europe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A high administration official has sought to calm European fears that U.S. corporate giants are threatening to devour European industry.

Assistant commerce secretary Andrew F. Brimmer said that while "quite a few" European companies have been bought up with American money, by far the greater part of the dollars invested in Europe have gone to set up new companies or to expand firms already established well before World War Two.

"On the whole, the U.S. share of total European industry is quite small and is not growing at a rate much out of line with over-all growth in Europe," Brimmer said. His remarks were contained in a speech prepared for delivery before the American Club of Paris.

Some Europeans, French President Charles de Gaulle among them, have expressed dismay over what they describe as the "expropriation" of European industry by U.S. money.

But Brimmer noted that Europeans have about $33 billion invested in the United States—some $6 billion more than Americans have invested in Europe.

He said that in 1963 European affiliates of U.S. companies accounted for only about 7.5 per cent of Europe's total investment in new plants and equipment. He admitted, however, that in some industries, the proportion is "much higher."

MARKET SUMMARIES

Whoops! Now N.Y. Is Up But Vancouver Declines

The New York stock market suddenly turned around and mounted a sharp gain late this afternoon.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials spurted four points in an hour.

Polaroid, up more than two points, appeared headed for the top of the day's most active list.

Volume for the day was estimated at 4,020,000 shares compared with 3,030,000 Wednesday.

AT VANCOUVER most issues declined in early trading.

Aluminum hit a new low of $28.62, a drop of 62 cents on 150 shares.

On the mining list, Continental Potash slipped two cents to .38 on 1,500 shares. New Imperial dropped .02 to .18. Dundee gained .02 to .59 on 7,000 shares.

Futurity was the only issue on the oil board to be traded. It dropped .03 to .41 on 4,500 shares.

AT TORONTO the main list trimmed earlier drops but was still down from Wednesday's close in light mid-afternoon stock exchange dealings today.

The 87-stock industrial index, a barometer of the group's health, fell more than a point at noon but recovered slightly.

Speculative trading perked up somewhat but prices were lower.

AT MONTREAL stocks continued to drop in moderate trading toward 2 p.m. today.

Industrial volume was 73,400 and mines and oils 501,500.

AT LONDON the stock market was quiet in light trading today.

Dollar stocks drifted lower, reflecting the early trend in the New York stock market. Canadian stocks losing a point or more were Abitibi, Algoma, Aluminium, British American Oil, Canadian Husky, Consolidated Paper, Imperial Oil, International Nickel, Massey-Ferguson and Trans-Canada Pipe Line.

Hollinger managed a slight gain but among the rails Canadian Pacific was nearly two points lower.

RUSSIANS SHIFTING TOWARD CAPITALISM

MOSCOW (UPI)—Russia took a giant step today toward basing its industry on the profit motive.

A high official of the Russian federation announced that profits and sales will govern all consumer goods production in Moscow and Leningrad, the nation's two largest cities.

Quota production—the output of masses of shabby goods to meet a quantitative target—is out, the Supreme Soviet (Parliament) of the federation was told. Quality production—the manufacture of attractive, fast-selling goods to turn a profit from increasingly choosy shoppers—is in.

One newspaper said the rapidly-growing experiment should be expanded to include heavy industry as well as consumer goods.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Mining Fraternity To Watch Experts

By JIM HUME
Business Editor

When Andrew Robertson and Morris Black start prowling the south end of the Island late this August their every move will be watched by B.C.'s mining fraternity.

Both men have a reputation for getting things done, for tackling the impossible and making it pay. Past efforts have made them extremely wealthy men with more than enough money to gracefully retire. But both love the challenge and gamble of exploration and development so much that they have no intention of shucking the harness:

Hume

Not yet, anyway. Not until they have checked 3,000 acres of reputedly hot property somewhere "on the south end of the Island but not on the west coast."

Like oil men, prospectors are reticent until their discoveries are well established and sewed up tight.

Both men are well known in mine and market circles for their brilliant coup at Endako—a long rejected property. Both have been tagged as lucky by their critics, men who struck it rich by good fortune rather than ability and effort.

CAREFUL LOOK

Let's take a look at Andrew Robertson and see how the criticism stands up.

Born in 1902 in Victoria, educated through high school in local schools and a graduate engineer from McGill, Andy, as he is affectionately known in the business, took his first crack at mining in 1926 in northern Quebec.

Like most of us he had some lean years but by 1956 The Northern Miner, the ready-reference for all who try to wrestle wealth from the ground, had this to say about him:

"Among the mining fraternity of northern Quebec he is known as 'Handy Andy.'

"Among Toronto's mine-makers and financiers he rates as a brilliant engineer, quick to grasp implications of a situation and instantly ready with a sound answer. His personality is a combination of warm friendliness and cold efficiency.

"He is not only a man of the slide rule but a true pioneer and scout of mining. Since 1926 Andrew Robertson the engineer, miner, prospector, geologist, metalurgist and executive, has travelled throughout northern Canada by dog team, canoe, plane and helicopter, snowshoes and on foot . . . As a young engineer Andy developed a keen sense of cost consciousness when he worked on the team that brought Howey Gold Mines at Red Lake into profitable production as Canada's lowest grade gold mine . . ."

MAKES PROFIT

Since 1956 Andy has established a whole string of successes similar to the Red Lake effort. Whether by design or chance his lot in life appears to be the taking of ailing properties to whip into profit-making organizations.

Endako, to date, is his crowning glory.

Discovered in 1927 by prospectors Charles Foote and Alfred Langdon and named the Stella Mine after a friend of Mr. Langdon, the property lay more or less dormant until 1961 when rugged "Handy Andy" paid his first visit to the area roughly 100 miles west of Prince George.

Throughout the years many companies had taken a look at Stella, or Endako as it is now known. All had rejected it.

Talking to Mr. Robertson earlier this week I asked him what convinced him that Endako was worth developing.

"Exploration isn't all geology and engineering know-how," he answered. "There's a matter of personality. It may sound silly, but it is very important that you have the right personality. I looked at Endako in 1961 and came out without all the answers but intrigued enough to want to go in there with equipment and find the answers."

LARGE MINE

The rest is history. Andy Robertson looked, Morris Black the financier believed his report and set about organizing the necessary capital. The result was the second largest molybdenum mine in the world.

Before coming to Victoria in August both men hope to have more molybdenum news to report. This month Utica Mines Ltd., of which Mr. Robertson is managing director, will be diamond drilling close to the Endako property.

Utica, based in Keremeos where Mr. Robertson has just reactivated the famed Horn Silver mine, holds properties adjacent to Endako where the main moly seam runs east and west.

Though involving the same principals, Utica is an independent company standing or falling on its own merits.

NEEDS MONEY

Mr. Black says the mining speculator needs "courage and money to be a success." Mr. Robertson, ever practical, growls, "Yeah, and you need ore, too. Courage and money aren't much good without that."

At Endako they had all three. In August they bring courage and the money to the Island to look for the third ingredient. If they find it we can look for startling developments in our own backyard.

Pickets Up In Clash Of Unions

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—Longshoremen Wednesday picketed a pulp mill and construction site after an inter-union dispute over unloading structional steel from two barges.

The longshoremen were protesting the use of ironworkers to unload steel from Commonwealth Construction Company barges, claiming it was the work of longshoremen.

Their picket lines block two entrances to Columbia Cellulose Company's pulp mill, and the entrance to the construction site where the steel was to be used for a Skeena Kraft Limited plant.

Ironworkers have said they will not handle the steel if it is unloaded by longshoremen.

Europe Expansion

VANCOUVER (CP)—MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited is considering purchase of additional manufacturing facilities in Europe, company chairman J. V. Clyne said Wednesday. Mr. Clyne said in an interivew the company is studying the prospects in Great Britaind and the European Common Market of "pulp and paper and that sort of thing." He said the ventures are near-term "in the sense of a year being near," but declined further comment.

Unadulterated Security

Victoria Mortgage Corporation's investment portfolio comprises only of charges on Real Properties. Funds are not used for building projects or promotions; nor is there company-owned furniture, motor vehicles or other assets of depreciable nature to cloud the financial picture. LOOKS AT SPORTS

COURTENAY—When they were small it was a race for George Roby and Tom Larscheid to survive.

Roby is the seventh child in a family of 12 children. Larscheid is one of a clan of nine. At their dinner tables those with short arms and demure tendencies had to plunge for the groceries or come up with empty plates.

Now they are embroiled in another struggle. They desire employment with the B.C. Lions.

TOM LARSCHEID . . . knees look fine

Since the Lions hold firm possession of the Grey Cup, the mightiest bauble in Canadian professional football, it is not just a question of presenting credentials. It is probably easier to apply for the presidency of General Motors.

But in the better liquid oases here the word is that Roby and Larscheid will be asked to exchange their signatures for tall stacks of money.

No candidates at the Lions' 10-day course in modified murder here come with more varying physical characteristics.

Puny poets coming across Roby for the first time suffer claustrophobia. If he doesn't overwhelm you, he is at least frightening.

From a trunk that would make distinguished Douglas firs feel undernourished hang arms that would make Charley Atlas appear underdeveloped. His legs would make an excellent companion piece for a Gemini IV launching pad.

After Roby's first workout, defensive coach Jim Champion, an orator with a southern succulence to his rhetoric, took a look at the 260-pound specimen and said: "That lad is not quite as svelte as my fondest hopes had dreamed. I must say he is breathing heavily—and very frequently."

Now Roby is down to waspish 248, barely visible on the horizon.

Larscheid could walk under Roby's legs without knocking his hat off. He comes in the handy pocket size, five-seven. His weight is charted at 170, usually after lunch.

They are the Mutt and Jeff of Dave Skrien's livestock collection, prepared to do battle.

Tom Never Really Decided to Quit

Why Larscheid is here at all amazes everybody. Two years ago he was the rookie marvel of the Western Conference. Nine touchdowns, eight on passes. Rushing: 597 yards. Second in kickoff returns. Then a large tackle landed on his knee, unhinging it.

Four months later, in Hamilton, two hungry Ticats made themselves a Larscheid sandwich. Stretcher-bearers were called to gather the remains. Surgery followed but the diagnosis was that his other knee, the right, was not repairable.

Predictably he retired, took a less hazardous job of hawking advertising for a Vancouver radio station.

But here he is, catching passes with those good hands, looking for large people to run over, combative as ever. His knees look fine, but perhaps something had come loose upstairs?

"No," he smiled. "I never really decided to quit football."

"It's a way of expression. Hell, you have all your life to work. When you can't play any longer, you can express yourself in other ways."

But there are some man-eaters out there, anxious to prove this is not an exercise for little boys.

"So what's new?" Larscheid asked. "I've been fighting this all my life."

Larsheid aspires to fit into the offensive backfield, replacing Ron Morris who has been moved to the backfield spot vacated by By Bailey. Other people have similar designs, among them Amos Bullocks.

Bullocks came to the Leos from Dallas in exchange for Bill Frank, the huge tackle who specialized in nocturnal scrimmages with Vancouver policemen.

Robust Roby Believes In Giving

Dewey Lincoln, once with the AFL Kansas City Chiefs and the United Football League, covets the position but is running a cool third. He may make it on defence.

Roby's situation is far less murky. Remember the axiom, the right man in the right place at the right time? That's George. He chose the year Lonnie Dennis retired. Leaving a massive hole at offensive tackle.

There is an ample shortage of sizeable tackles in camp, a reflection of Skrien's natural conviction that the Lions were loaded. Dennis' decision induced some bleeding among the intellectual forces, but Roby may be the tourniquet.

Roby had 28 college scholarships flung at him, including several offers from prestigious Big 10 foundries of learning and higher athletics.

He chose tiny Adams State College in Alamosa, Col. because it specialized in speech theatre.

He has produced several plays and directed others, notably Macbeth and The Perfect Idiot.

Ultimately he intends to pursue a theological career. There are players here who insist Roby is not strictly adhering to certain Biblical passages like "do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

But Roby maintains there is no malice in his behaviour.

"Doesn't the Bible also say," he asks with a grin, "That it is better to give than to receive?"

MEET GEORGE FULLER!

Young Infielder Senior Sparkler

By BARRY COSIER

For a youngster, George Fuller is making a lot of noise in Senior Amateur Baseball League circles this season.

It was Fuller's clutch hitting that helped Transport Workers rip into Rawlings 10-6 in a wild and wind-swept game at Royal Athletic Park Wednesday.

Victory pushed the Workers into a virtual first-place tie with Greaves.

TOP PRODUCER

Fuller, 19, and one of the most promising infielders to come out of Victoria's minor baseball system, now leads the league with 17 runs batted in.

He picked up his 15th and 16th RBIs in Transports' five-run first inning. In the eighth, Fuller drove in his third run of the game, connecting with a solid line drive to centre to contribute to a three-run rally which clinched the victory.

The young infielder, who took over at shortstop when John Yankoski relieved Cliff Rutledge in the second inning, has also displayed a wealth of fielding potential at third base this season.

When confident, he moves with grace and agility. His ability to backhand drives down the third base line, to sweep up balls to his left and charge slow rollers has been equalled by only a few senior third basemen.

Workers' infield performed capably again Wednesday but it was with the bat that the team excelled. In addition to Fuller's two hits were doubles by Barry Harvey, John McKeachie and Al Foster and two singles by Keith Dagg.

The victory set the stage for another important clash between Workers and Greaves tonight. The teams split in two previous battles for first place with George Hemming winning one and losing one for Greaves.

HOMER, SCHWERTFEGER SIGN . . . AT LIONS' TRAINING CAMP

'Hell Day' at Meat-Grinder

By HAL MALONE

COURTENAY—Dave Skrien, the B.C. Lions' peerless leader, called it a "Serious Day."

Frank Johnston, Lions' offensive coach, described it as "Opportunity Day."

The Lions called it "Hell Day."

This was Wednesday at the meat-grinder, officially the training quarters of the Lions, Grey Cup football champions.

Skrien's mood was difficult to understand. With no player injuries or defections, the Lion-tamer should have been promenading in his broadest smile, a Premier Bennett double-bicuspid special.

Instead he looked like somebody who had been forgotten at the altar.

The first serious scrimmage of the season left him singularly unimpressed.

"We were sloppy," he said. "Our timing was off, and we managed to drop the ball too much. Otherwise it wasn't bad, I guess."

Some of Skrien's sombre expression was erased when Sonny Homer and Gary Schwertfeger yielded to the persuasive powers of general manager Herb Capozzi.

Schwertfeger and Homer were senior citizens on the team that last year brought Lord Grey's spittoon to B.C. for the first time. As such they sought certain benefits, spelled money.

Homer was asked which side had capitulated.

"Life is a compromise," he replied in the academic manner befitting a man who has just received his bachelor of education degree.

Yes, yes, but did you get the deal you wanted?

"They gave me a pretty good deal," Homer answered. Then—"I didn't go to school for nothing, you know."

Capozzi declined to discuss unsavory details like money. But he said Homer had signed for three years and Schwertfeger for two.

Earlier in the day, Capozzi announced that end Pat Claridge—"the best short-pass receiver in Canada"—had been given a four-year pact.

All But Diaper Boys Can Make Club

Johnston's reference to "opportunity day" was readily understandable. In his eyes the scrimmage established "that there is nobody here who can't make the club."

This contrasts with past years when preliminary studies demonstrated that there was nobody who COULD.

Not included in Johnston's assessment were six young Canadians, fondly referred to as "the diaper squad."

They are present to gain experience, cannon fodder for the seasoned adults in scrimmages to follow.

SUMMER ARRIVED

"Hell day," as the players joyfully called it, bore out what natives in this part of the world strongly suspect—summer has arrived. The sun lashed out with considerable voltage, estimated at 83 degrees.

It turned heavily-garbed players into mobile sauna baths. Blubber sprayed out in all directions, forcing onlookers to run for their lives.

Skrien and aides, unburdened by pads and administrators but not participants in the vigorous exercises, were not visibly dismayed by the lack of air conditioning.

"We're farther ahead in preparation at this stage," Skrien said, "than we ever were before."

Then he pulled out his handkerchief and wiped his brow.

WANT TO SEE GIANTS? WAIT UNTIL NEXT YEAR

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Giants announced Wednesday a complete sellout of their entire seven-game home schedule of National Football League games for the 1965 season.

For the first time there will be no individual games sales, the club said.

Yankee Stadium, the Giants' home, has a seating capacity of 64,892 for football.

BRITISH OPEN GOLF

Devlin Shares Lead With Lema

SOUTHPORT, England (CP) — Defending champion Tony Lema of the United States held on to his one-stroke lead today in the British Open golf championship when he shot a one-under-par 72 for a 36-hole total of 140, but many of the top scorers still had to complete the second round.

* * *

SOUGHPORT, England (CP) —Bruce Devlin of Australia moved into a tie with defending champion Tony Lema for the lead in the British open golf championship today, each with a total of 140 for 36 holes.

Devlin added a 69 to his first-day 71.

* * *

Lema's slim lead was being challenged by several players, including diminutive Brian Huggett of Wales and Arnold Palmer, the Pennsylvania strongman.

Huggett, a member of Britain's Ryder Cup team, matched Lema's record-breaking, five-under-par 68 scored Wednesday. The Welshman fired a 73 in the first round and had a total of 141, the same as Palmer who shot a 71 today after a first-round 70.

Hugh Boyle, a young Irishman, had a second-round 69 which put him two strokes behind the leader with a total of 142.

Gary Player, the U.S. Open champion from South Africa, fired a respectable 71 after a horrendous 76 Wednesday and stayed alive with a total of 147. A pulled neck muscle handicapped Player.

Huggett, who is only five-foot-six, holed some good putts in fashioning a one-under-par 34 on the back nine. He had a five at the par-four 11th, where he was in the rough and bunkered his shot, but he followed with three threes including an eagle at the 13th.

Palmer turned loose one of his typical finishes, scoring an eagle on the 17th hole after scrambling most of the way, just as he had to do in the opening round.

Bidding for his third British Open title, he thrilled a huge gallery forming Britain's version of Arnie's Army with some spectacular recovery shots.

Lema, playing methodically, took the turn in even par 35 over the Royal Birkdale course at this seaside English town.

CRICKET WEEK

Murdoch Mauls California Foes

"Victoria Cricket Week" is still looking like a Southern California benefit.

Ray Murdoch kept the Southern California side on the unbeaten trail Wednesday at Beacon Hill, performing like a one-man gang as the tourists blasted out a six-wicket triumph over the B.C. Cricket Association president's XI.

The Californians, who were taking a rest today while Victoria and Vancouver battled on the Beacon Hill pitch, have won three and drawn one of their first four games.

Murdoch was just too much cricketer for the B.C. side Wednesday. The Hollywood spin bowler, a member of the U.S. team last year, took three wickets for a cost of only 14 runs and then staged a mighty batting display.

Murdoch blasted six sixes and five fours while scoring 70 runs in 42 minutes.

Peter Clarke and Ray Robins paced B.C. batsmen with 40 runs each.

Murdoch and his mates return to action at 1:30 Friday, meeting a Vancouver club. Saturday they'll tackle a Victoria squad before winding up their visit Sunday with an all-day tussle at 11:30 against a representative team from the Victoria and District Cricket Association.

Norm Avoids Goat's Role; Sinks Rocks

Vancouver 8, Shamrocks 7

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Norm Usselman doesn't like to wear the goat's horns.

Because he doesn't, and because Victoria Shamrocks' power-play unit was in a generous mood, the lanky Vancouver scoring ace emerged as the hero of Wednesday's Inter-City Lacrosse League tete-a-tete.

It was Usselman who scored the winning goal as second-place Vancouver walked out of Memorial Arena with an 8-7 triumph.

A fortunate fella.

He tried hard to get stuck with the horns, but the Rocks wouldn't let him. He drew three obvious and foolish penalties at crucial moments. Each time, however, Victoria's power-play proved to be as dangerous as a Sunday school teacher at a kindergarten picnic.

Goaded by Reg Foster, lanky Norman drew a double minor at 12:22 of the second quarter.

The Rocks trailed 5-4 at that point. After four fruitless and ho-hum minutes, the score still remained 5-4. The best that could be said about Victoria's power play is that Vancouver didn't score while Usselman cooled his heels.

Granted, they came close.

Usselman gave the Rocks another chance in the fourth quarter. This time, the score was deadlocked 6-6 and Usselman deliberately elbowed diminutive Nirmal Dillon.

Again, the Shamrocks failed to capitalize.

Less than two minutes after leaving the box, at 13:28, Usselman broke the deadlock with a soft-but-quick backhander. The sharp-angled shot fooled Victoria goalkeeper Skip Chapman, glanced in off a far post.

And that, dear kiddies, is how the goat became a scoring hero and enjoyed the many happy minutes that followed.

Marsh's Men Bat Three for Four

The Shamrocks, hoping to break a third-place deadlock with Coquitlam, gave it a try. Sadly out-classed and out-hustled in the first quarter, the Irish fought back from a 5-1 deficit to tie the match.

On that score alone, they deserve an "A" for effort.

In a game that was physically exhausting, the difference was the odd-man units. The Rocks failed to capitalize on their only three chances while Bob Marsh's marauders from the mainland connected on three of their four chances while playing with an extra man.

JAY'S SKEIN SNAPPED

Bill Robinson and Wayne Pecknold, a slicker on this particular evening, led Vancouver scoring with two goals each. Usselman, Sid Warick, Ross McDonald and Gordie Frederickson got the others.

Billy Gray (color him hustling) and Larry Clarkson each scored a pair for Victoria while Nirmal Dillon, junior John Lauvaas and Larry Biggs popped in singles.

The game marked the end of Ron Jay's scoring streak. Shamrocks' top point-getter, Jay failed to collect a point after clicking in 19 previous games.

Jay, checked hard by Vancouver goalie Norm Nestman on Tuesday night, was troubled by sore elbows and complained of difficulty in shooting.

* * *

REBOUNDS: It was a rough night for the game's minor officials . . . Scorer Don Wakelyn was hit in the ribs by a ball during the pre-game warmup . . . And late in the second quarter, goal judge Jim Robson was hit just under the eye with a ball that slipped through the wire screen . . . Robson was rushed to hospital and released after treatment . . . Arena equipment also suffered . . . The public address system, which has been behaving like an 89c bargain for the past three weeks, again acted up . . .

Prettiest goal of the night was scored by Larry Biggs . . . Victoria defenceman Ed Kowalyk aggravated an ankle injury and saw only limited duty . . . Vancouver, like Victoria, is also hit hard by injuries . . . Ted Hunt, Ron Hemmerling and Bill Chisholm all failed to dress . . . Shamrocks face an important series next week, meeting Coquitlam at the Arena on Wednesday and then playing a return game on the mainland Saturday.

Palmer Upsets McWha on 19th

MAUREEN CONNOLLY
. . . Britain's choice

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two teen-agers continue to surprise the gallery at the B.C. Women's Closed golf championship in Vancouver.

Blonde, deliberate Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops and bubbling, dark-haired Susan Brown of Vancouver each won her quarter-final match Wednesday against veteran golfers.

Miss Palmer downed Janet McWha of North Vancouver but had to go to the extra, 19th, hole to turn the trick.

Miss Brown had a shaky front nine but came on strong to close out with a two-and-one victory over Mrs. Peter Bentley of West Vancouver.

EASY VICTORIES

In other quarter-final matches Yvonne Clarke defeated Mrs. Lorraine Smyth five and three, while Mrs. Bryce Evans downed Mrs. Nettie Taverna five and four.

In matches today, Barbara Renwick will meet Mrs. Len Collett and Mrs. Marion Garnett plays Mrs. Dorothy McCormick of Victoria in consolation matches.

In the semi-finals for the title it will be Miss Brown against Mrs. Evans and Miss Palmer against Miss Clark.

'Little Mo' Coming Back As a Coach

LONDON (AP)—Mrs. Maureen Connolly Brinker—"Little Moe" the former Wimbledon champion—will coach the British women's tennis team for the Wightman Cup matches against the United States in Cleveland Aug. 7-9.

As Maureen Connolly, Mrs. Brinker won the all-England lawn tennis women's crown at Wimbledon in 1952, 1953 and 1954. She did television commentaries on the tournament last week.

Britain last won the Wightman Cup in 1960. Since the trophy was inaugurated in 1923, for competition between the women's teams in the two countries, the United States has won it 29 times and Britain only six times.

The British team consists of Ann Jones, Christine and Nell Truman, Liz Starkie and Virginia Wade, with Angela Mortimer as non-playing captain.

Mack League Loses Amps

War Amps have been forced to bow out of the Connie Mack Baseball League this week with summer work cutting the team's roster below the minimum of nine players.

The club, unable to field a team for the second straight time, defaulted to David Motors Wednesday at Windsor Park.

The win moves Motormen to within one-half a game of first-place Evening Optimists.

Future games in which War Amps were to play will be removed from the schedule.

Lund Trophy Race Scheduled Sunday

Pacific Northwest cyclists are wheeling for Vancouver Island this weekend.

The target is the seventh annual 100-mile Gary Lund Memorial Trophy race on Sunday.

About 30 cyclists are ready to chase for the trophy donated in 1959 by the parents of Gary Lund, a Seattle rider who was killed in a 1958 auto accident, a few months after competing in the 100-mile Daily Times Centennial race.

They'll run over the tough Island course that starts at Qualicum and winds up at Portage Inlet on Sunday. The first finishers are expected to hit the finishing line about 10 a.m.

Entries are expected from Seattle, Vancouver and as far south as California. Victoria's top threat will be Bill Wild, a member of the 1963 British Empire Games' cycling team.

Cricket Colts Draw In Rain

LONDON (CP) — The Canadian Colts cricket team drew the second game of its 16-game tour of England Wednesday, when rain stopped play in its match against Highgate School.

The Canadians had made 91 runs for seven wickets with 45 minutes remaining in the game when the rain became too heavy to continue.

Playoff Settles Junior Tee Title

VANCOUVER (CP) — Al Greenstreet of Vancouver birdied a playoff hole to win the British Columbia junior golf championship Wednesday.

Greenstreet, 18, who was in third place with 146 — three strokes behind leader Steve Cole of Seattle—at the end of 36 holes Tuesday, fired an even-par 71 in the last round to tie Cole who blew to a 74.

In the playoff hole Cole hit a par four, but Greenstreet came back with a birdie to take the title.

Jim Bradey of Seattle slipped to fourth place with a third-round nine-over-par 80. He was just one stroke behind at the end of the second round Tuesday with 144.

Jim Scully of Vancouver shot a 78 Wednesday for a 54-hole total of 217 to finish in third spot.

Hot Klippstein Keeping Twins In High Gear

(Times News Service)

Johnny Klippstein, who became a part of baseball history in 1956 when he pitched the front seven innings of the first three-man no-hitter, is one out away from pitching nine innings of no-hit ball without assistance.

This time, however, his name won't make the record book.

The 37-year-old Minnesota Twins' reliever again played a vital role for the American League leaders Wednesday, preserving their seventh consecutive victory with 3⅓ innings of no-hit pitching in a 5-2 victory over Boston Red Sox.

A well-travelled veteran who started his baseball career in 1944 and is playing with his seventh major league team, Klippstein now has made three appearances during the Twins' latest winning streak and has not allowed a hit in 8⅔ innings.

If he gets the next out, it won't get his name in the record book. That entry will have to rest with the 1956 game in which he pitched seven innings of no-hit ball for Cincinnati.

Klippstein was purchased from Philadelphia Phillies last season and had an 0-4 record despite an outstanding 1.96 earned run average. In 26 appearances this season, Klippstein is 3-3 with a 2.41 ERA.

While the Twins were continuing their streak, Cleveland closed within 1½ games of the top by defeating Chicago White Sox 4-2 in both ends of a double-header, the second in 11 innings.

Baltimore Orioles hopped over the White Sox into third place by blanking Kansas City Athletics 1-0, New York Yankees edged Detroit Tigers 4-3 and Washington Senators downed Los Angeles Angels 3-1.

Klippstein relieved starter Jim Kaat in the sixth inning with the bases loaded and one out. Bob Tillman's sacrifice fly produced the Red Sox' second run of the game but that was it.

Bernie Allen drove in three of the Twins' first four runs, slapping a two-run single in the second inning and hitting a sacrifice fly in the fourth.

Cincinnati shortstop Leo Cardenas lashed out a two-out homer in the bottom of the ninth to push the Redlegs into the National League lead.

Cardenas' homer clipped Los Angeles 7-6 and dropped the Dodgers two percentage points off the pace. In other National League games, San Francisco edged St. Louis 4-2, Philadelphia Phils blanked Pittsburgh 1-0, Milwaukee defeated Houston 5-2, and Chicago Cubs whipped New York Mets 8-3.

UNTIL SPRING . . .

Rowing Champ Out of Action

HENLEY ON THAMES, England (CP)—Olympic champion oarsmen George Hungerford of Vancouver said Wednesday night he will not row again competitively until next spring—all because he could not sleep one recent night.

Hungerford, 23, who won the Olympic pairs title with Roger Jackson of Toronto at Tokyo last fall, said a series of medical tests completed Wednesday have shown he is suffering from a mild form of anemia.

His British doctor has ordered him to limit himself to only normal activity until the hemoglobin count in his blood — part of the blood that carries oxygen to the muscles—rises to normal levels.

"I'll be at least six weeks off training," Hungerford said in an interview, "which means, of course, that I'll be finished for this summer."

"And since the season generally ends at the end of August that means I won't begin training for competition again until next spring."

He now has his eye on making the Canadian team to the 1966 world championships to be held in Yugoslavia.

CROTHERS STEPS OFF SECOND STRAIGHT WIN

OSLO, Norway (CP) — Bill Crothers, Canada's Olympic silver medallist from Markham, Ont., won his second 800-metre race in two days here Wednesday in a time of 1:49.5.

Crothers took the lead with 200 metres remaining and breezed to an easy win.

Tuesday in Stockholm, Crothers won a thrilling race in front of a star-studded international field in 1:47.5.

Main interest in the Oslo meet centred around Australian runner Ron Clarke's unsuccessful effort to break the world 3,000-metre record of 7:49, established recently by Michel Jazy of France. Clarke clocked 7:54.6 on a rain-soaked track for a stadium record.

Two other Canadians, Don McCarten and Dave McClure both of Toronto, placed first and second in the 400-metre run. McCarten's time was 48.4 and McClure's 48.9.

SYSTEM NEEDED

Whaling Ban Unlikely To Hurt B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A proposed international ban on killing blue and humpbacked whales next year in the Pacific would not affect the B.C. whaling industry seriously, the president of Western Canada Whaling Company said Wednesday.

K. F. Fraser said in an interview the whole conservation problem is serious, but B.C. whalers take less than 10 per cent of the catch, and need no quota.

Mr. Fraser was commenting on a resolution by the International Whaling Commission calling for conservation measures in the Pacific.

The 14-nation commission, meeting in London, said 3,991 fin whales were caught last year, while the estimated yield was only 1,600.

Mr. Fraser said there is a serious conservation problem in the north Pacific.

"Japan has a voluntary quota, but the Russians take everything they can catch," he said.

"There must be some sort of conservation system worked out, or the Pacific will become as depleted as the Antarctic," he said.

He said Canadian whalers fish within 150 miles of the coast where Japanese whalers never fish, but Russians have sometimes been seen.

"If they decided to move in in a big way, we'd be in trouble," he said.

The commission decided to forbid killing of blue whales in the Pacific and its dependent waters north of the Equator for five years beginning in 1966. Another rule was made to ban killings of humpback whales in 1966 in the North Pacific and its dependent waters north of the Equator.

Countries taking part in the talks were the U.S., the Soviet Union, Britain, Argentina, Australia, Denmark, France, Ireland, Japan, Mexico, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway and South Africa. Observers also came from Chile, Italy, Portugal and Peru.

STRICKEN with cancer and fighting what appears to be a losing battle, is Clyde Beatty, famed animal trainer who has several times appeared in Victoria. Beatty, 62, is in hospital at Ventura, Cal., in poor condition.

Magistrate, Psychiatrist Both Complain

VANCOUVER (CP) — Magistrate Cyril White has written to Attorney-General Robert Bonner criticizing a government-employed psychiatrist who objected to frequent examinations for persons charged with vagrancy.

Dr. J. C. Thomas objected to making a second examination of Charles Cochrane, 54, charged with vagrancy.

Dr. Thomas, in a letter read to the court earlier this week, said: "It is not the purpose of the court referral system to conduct monthly examinations of accused persons, especially when they are charged with vagrancy."

Magistrate White, who referred Cochrane to the psychiatrist, said Wednesday it is not up to the doctor to interpret the referral system.

He said a person frequently in court on a certain type of charge should be carefully watched from the psychiatric point of view.

Montreal's Tall Tower Cancelled

MONTREAL (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau announced cancellation Wednesday of a plan to build a 1,066-foot tower on the site of Expo 67.

Within hours of the announcement, Andrew Kniewasser, general manager of Expo 67, said he will seek to salvage the plan.

Mr. Drapeau, in a statement issued from city hall, said it appears to be impossible to limit the cost of building the tower to $20,000,000, originally estimated as the outside figure. The overall cost could come to about $25,000,000.

Mr. Kniewasser, commenting on the mayor's statement, said he will ask Mr. Drapeau for an appointment so that they can "explore other possibilities, other ways of achieving this monument or a similar thing.

The tower was to have been a joint project of the cities of Montreal and Paris, with each paying half of the cost. Completion by 1967 would come on the 325th anniversary of the founding of Montreal.

3 Gunmen Assassinate Arab Ruler

ADEN (Reuters)—Three gunmen shot and killed Sheikh Nasher Abdullah Al Sqladi, Naib ruler of Shaib sheikhdom, here Wednesday night.

Ten rounds from automatic pistols were fired at the Naib while he was leaving his car opposite his residence in Aden's old-town area.

Sheikh Nasher was a member of the South Arabian federal council legislative body.

His tiny sheikhdom bordering the Yemen republic recently joined the South Arabian federation.

About two months ago federal troops launched a military action in his sheikhdom against dissident tribesmen operating from across the border.

No arrests have been reported so far.

DISC JOCKEY BECOMES MAN ON STREET

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—All-night disc jockey Frank Frey stepped outside the studio of KFOG-FM at 2:15 a.m. Wednesday to investigate a noise.

He found nothing. Behind him the door to the studio closed—and locked.

Frey, who operates the station alone through the night, had no key. Listeners, alarmed at the station's silence, telephoned police, who arrived but were unable to force the lock on the new door.

Four hours later, relief announcer Gill Barr arrived with a key and KFOG returned to the air.

New York Told to Cut Water Use in Crisis

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—New York City, in the grip of a severe drought, has been ordered to cut its use of Delaware River water and also release water from its dams as part of a four-state water emergency declaration.

At a meeting here Wednesday, the Delaware River Basin Commission declared the 30-day water emergency immediately for the states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware. The commission directed New York City to reduce its consumption of Delaware Water by 75,000,000 gallons a day.

The commission, made up of representatives of the four states and of the U.S. department of the interior, also ordered New York to release 200,000,000 gallons of water daily from its dams in the western Catskills.

This action was taken to help maintain the flow of fresh water in the Delaware estuary in efforts to save the Philadelphia and Camden, N.J., water supplies from the imminent threat of salt contamination.

The water supply in the Delaware River basin, serving more than 20,000,000 persons, is extremely short from the fourth straight year of far-below-normal rainfall. The state of emergency runs to Aug. 10 but can be extended and, if necessary, tightened.

The emergency action was the first such by the commission since its creation in 1961 under the Delaware River compact, a joint venture of the four states and the federal government aimed at developing the area's water resources.

The commission, acting to stem the upstream creep of salt from the sea, also ordered the release of water from reservoirs in upper Pennsylvania

Mother Kills 3 Tots

NEW YORK (UPI)—A 36-year-old woman who tried to kill herself after suffocating her three young children in plastic bags was hospitalized in fair condition today, charged with triple homicide. Police said the mother, Mrs. Adele Groy, wife of a brokerage firm employee, had recently been under a psychiatrist's care for a "nervous disorder."

You think your old fridge is "good enough"? Wait till you see today's big beauties. They're about 40% larger on the inside (hardly any bigger outside, thanks to new thin-wall construction). And the extra space is nicely distributed. Shelf storage is more flexible and there's extra height in the door area for tall bottles. Many models have pull-out, adjustable or revolving shelves.

The freezer area is much larger. Has lots more room for frozen foods. And it's colder. Keeps ice cream firm, freezes other foods fast.

Defrosting? Forget it. The new refrigerators are either frost-free or self-defrosting. Some even have automatic ice cube makers.

Still think you're happy with the old box? Fine. But don't dare go near your appliance dealer's. Especially now when he's offering such attractive values.

EMPLOYMENT AID

Shorter Hours Need Stressed by Council

Working time must be reduced so more men and women may be employed, Victoria Labour Council delegates were told Wednesday night.

Robert Noble, chairman of the council's unemployment committee, said even with a brief economic picture, five per cent, or nearly 3,000, of Victoria's working force, was jobless at the end of last month.

A delegate from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, John Schibli, said between five and seven per cent of construction carpenters are out of work and there must be others in different unions.

Gus Gildemeester, business agent for the Brotherhood of Painters, said he didn't agree with "the haste" of the federal government in recruiting thousands of skilled immigrants.

Referring to the new Unemployment Insurance Commission and income tax building to be erected in Victoria, he said:

"Maybe we should build bigger and better unemployment offices."

Ambulance Services Promoted

Ambulance services should exist throughout B.C., delegates to the Victoria Labour Council were told Wednesday night.

Fred Bevis said there is always protection from fire and police departments for property, but not always for humans in the form of ambulances.

This seemed to be "a very cold-blooded attitude."

Gus Gildemeester, business agent for the Brotherhood of Painters, said the provincial government has millions of dollars to spend on matters other than ambulances.

Ambulance service should exist under the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service, he said.

Code Change Spurs Apartment Building

A last-minute surge by contractors to get permits before new national building code regulation has bolstered Victoria conseruction figures by at least $3,053,200 in the last two weeks.

Code changes are effective this month and relate to safety standards and a number of structural requirements.

The protective measures refer to the safety of occupants to avoid injury or loss of life due to being trapped by fire or overcome by smoke.

Many were already included in Fire Marshal's Act regulations, but greater uniformity will be achieved by the consolidation in building bylaws.

The last week of June saw new apartment construction valued at $980,000 granted permits. The following week up to today has brought an additional $2,073,200, of which $1,386,700 covers a federal public works departments office project at 1415 Vancouver.

All the rest is for apartment construction, and any other commercial or single family units, repairs and alterations would be additional to the $3.05 million.

'Summertime' Wrens To Train at Naden

Between 90 and 100 "summertime sailors" will descend on HMCS Naden during July and August for two weeks of naval reserve training.

The Wrens start arriving July 18 in groups of 30 every two weeks.

Under the leadership of "wren mother" Petty Officer Pat Luckman, the girls will receive basic naval training and instruction in seamanship, parade marching and their role in the reserve.

They come from all parts of Canada, from high schools, universities and business offices for training as part-time service women.

About eight of the girls making up the group are from Victoria.

They stay in the annex at Naden and are paid the same wages as regular servicemen of the same rank.

Strict discipline is enforced but, according to Miss Luckman, the girls adapt to military routine quickly and it soon becomes second nature to them.

"My job is to maintain routine, guide them and answer their questions. Every girl has to be treated as an individual," she said.

On a regular day the girls get up at 6 a.m., are dressed and have their beds made for inspection by 6:20.

Clean-up duties must be performed before breakfast. Classes begin at 7:45 and end at 4 p.m.

After that the girls are free to do whatever they like, providing they are not on duty watch.

Homesickness?

"It's there, but it's not a problem," Miss Luckman explained. "For many, it's the first time away from home and the novelty of routine is often a little frightening."

Repair Crews Adjust Hours After Protest

City road construction crews have adjusted their workhours following protests from Government Street merchants.

Last week merchants complained that the noise of jackhammers and other equipment was driving tourists away from stores in the 1000 block.

They complained to city hall and the chamber of commerce.

This week the smiles are back and the tourists are happy.

Work crews preparing manhole covers for a road paving project don't start work until 5:30 p.m. after stores are closed.

Chamber of Commerce officials reported this morning that the merchants "are very happy at the co-operation they have received from city hall."

SUDS WAITERS, BARTENDERS WIN INCREASE

The men who serve the beer in Victoria have won pay raises in a three-year contract which will bring their wages to more than $2 an hour.

Involved in the contract settlement are 16 beer parlors and 130 members of the Beverage Dispensers Union, Local 513.

Tapmen, who now earn $1.95 an hour, will receive a total hourly increase of 35 cents over the three-year period.

Waiters, now earning $1.75 an hour, get an extra 26 cents.

Labor Asks Uvic Post

Victoria Labour Council Wednesday requested labor representation on the board of governors at the University of Victoria.

The move stemmed from a request from the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 230.

Council secretary-treasurer A. W. Toone said the matter was discussed at a recent meeting between the executive and the university.

"I feel the suggestion was received at that time quite well," he said.

Car Wash Saturday

The Hi-C youth group of First United Church will hold a car wash Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Morrison's Esso Service, Yates and Quadra.

Stations Open As Rift Grows In Que. Dispute

MONTREAL (CP) — Numerous gasoline stations here reopened for business today although no settlement was announced in dispute between oil companies and retailers that had shut most of them down.

The reopening here followed a split in the ranks of the province's retailers Wednesday night that resulted in the reopening of Quebec City gasoline stations. The retailers want a larger slice of the profit on a gallon.

While members of the Gasoline Retailers Fraternity met with oil companies in Montreal, the 12-member fraternity board in Quebec City announced a 48-hour truce during which a new offer would be made to the oil companies.

Henri Roy, president of the Quebec City fraternity, declined to disclose contents of the proposal. He said 75 per cent of the area's 300 gasoline stations had been closed by the strike.

The truce began early today and applies only to Quebec City. Most stations in urban areas of Quebec will remain closed, a fraternity spokesman said.

In the Montreal area, a Quebec Superior Court judge issued interim injunctions against the fraternity Wednesday on behalf of several oil companies.

The injunctions forbid the fraternity from harassing or interfering with normal business of the companies.

CLAIMS PROFIT LOST

One of the companies, Canadian Import Ltd., accompanied its petition for an injunction with a writ against the fraternity alleging it lost $10,000 in profit because of disruption of its marketing centre operations in east-end Montreal.

The company said it sells fuel and diesel oil for heating and industrial use, but does not sell gasoline.

About 90 per cent of the 800 service stations on Montreal Island remained closed Wednesday and some tourists were having trouble finding stations open so they could drive to Quebec's borders.

The strike started Tuesday when the fraternity, which claims to represent 1,500 of the 8,000 service stations in Quebec, asked for an additional two cents a gallon to boost their margin on each gallon of gasoline sold to 8½ cents, plus a new system of station rentals based on the amount of gasoline sold rather than by location.

As the strike entered its third day there were reports of violence and a number of arrests in the province.

Arthur Mayse

Last week in this corner, I told you how a carload of night-riders slipped in between police patrols to hurrah a campful of vacationing families at Ivy Green provincial park between Ladysmith and Nanaimo.

The next night, at a private camping and trailer park north along the Island Highway, beered-up motorcyclists from Alberni district turned the trip to the outdoor privies into a gauntlet of hoots, catcalls and shouted obscenities for women and girls.

A few days later, when we checked in at Englishmen's River provincial park, we observed that several roads were barricaded with steel-wire logging lines stretched between fir trees.

"We're varnishing tables," a parks branch hand explained amiably, "and we don't want people using them."

Uh-huh. But, since steel-wire is hardly required to turn back honest campers, a more sinister reason presents itself!

★ ★ ★

These are minor incidents?

I very much doubt that the camp operator at White Rock would agree. You read about him a few days ago . . . he's the man who, when all else failed, protected his paying guests, his property and his life by turning a revolver on a hoodlum gang.

The plain fact, which I have no intention of soft-peddling, is that our parks have been in trouble for several years, and that the remedies so far applied have not been effective.

I do not suggest that any family call off a camping holiday because of this fact. But in honesty, you must add to the normal hazards of your trip the possibility of such hoodlum roustings as I have detailed above.

Should you find yourself in the middle of one, please disregard any impulse to be a lion. Stay with your family.

In the unlikely event that you get a look at a face or a set of licence numbers, give your information to the police later. Otherwise, sit tight: you're out to enjoy yourself, remember, not to risk a mauling.

BUT . . .

When you get home, shake up your provincial member. Tell the newspapers by letter or telephone. Because something concrete has to be done about this nuisance, and only by hollering loud and long enough will we get it cleaned up.

★ ★ ★

I don't see what a private park operator can do except deal with mass invasion by the off-scourings of some nearby town as best he can, meanwhile hoping the law will be prompt.

Where our provincial parks are concerned, however, it's a different story. Those are government property, paid for by our taxes; and for them, besides such protection as the police are able to afford, we should demand the prevention which is very much better than futile attempts at cure.

I'm convinced each provincial camping park needs a full-time, armed attendant quartered as close to the entrance as possible.

I think a locked gate, preferably of the heavy-duty tubular steel type used by loggers to guard their access roads, is essential.

And, much as I detest the idea, I feel the time has come when a park curfew must be enforced, with late admissions made at the discretion of the attendant.

Perhaps there are happier solutions. I hope so. But to delay is to court a bad name for our parks system, and to force a return to a condition we can get along handsomely without.

This is gun law, a form of anarchy in which men transfer their trust from official protective agencies to the weapons in their hands.

Ridiculous? I don't think so.

Nor is any man likely to who has listened helpless while the faceless, nameless park-busters make the night hideous.

Or who, later, has heard the sound that follows these raids. This is the crying of scared children who don't like camping any more. What they want, and all they want, is to go home.

ON TARGET are Constable Peter Bridgewood and Detective Alex Briggs, both of Victoria, as 46th annual Victoria Police Shoot winds up today. It began Wednesday at Thetis Lake Range with 60 entries from Pacific Northwest and California, in 12 events. Banquet ends proceedings tonight when winners in various contests receive awards and prizes.

More Instant Towns

Incorporation Plans Announced

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell today said he expects four more "instant towns" to be created in the next three months, three of them on Vancouver Island.

He listed them as Kelsey Bay, Port McNeil, Port Hardy and Hudson Hope.

Earlier this year, Gold River, on the west coast of the Island, became the first to win letters patent as a regular community under the "instant town" legislation adopted this year for isolated resource communities.

"It's just a question of the administrative load in getting out the letters patent to these other four," Mr. Campbell said. "I think we'll have them by the end of September.

"And by that time there no doubt will be four or five more petitions for establishment of these towns"

'Conscience Bothered' Safe Thief

A man with a record for armed robbery and assault pleaded guilty in city police court today to stealing a safe containing $76 Tuesday night.

Ernest Falconer, 711 Johnson St., was remanded until Friday morning for sentence. The safe was stolen from Blue Bird Cabs Ltd., 708 Johnson.

He was arrested at 1:30 a.m. today when he called police to his room "because his conscience was bothering him," court was told.

Const. Ivan Purdy testified Falconer broke a window in the rear of the cab company at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Then he returned with two other men and a truck to remove the safe at 11:30 p.m.

SAFE RECOVERED

But the safe fell from the truck as it made a left turn at Johnson and Blanshard streets. Police have recovered the get-away vehicle and the safe.

The safe was spotted falling from the truck by service station attendant Bob Dunsmuir, 94 West Maddock, who notified police.

City detectives said today they are searching for a third member of the gang.

Clifford Piper, 3943 Bridge St., Wednesday in court elected trial by judge and jury when charged with possession of the stolen safe.

Carr Exhibition Starts Tuesday

The annual summer exhibition of works by Emily Carr at Greater Victoria Art Gallery will be held from Tuesday to Sept. 12.

This year the works will be drawn from the Trust Collection and from the gallery's own collection.

Careless Drivers

In city court today:

Torie Carlson, 1320 Douglas, went through red light June 19 at Bay and Blanshard and was involved in a collision, fined $45.

Jose Costa Brum, 2539 Asquith, rear-end collision June 25 on Douglas St. near Market, fined $40, licence suspended.

David Jenkins, 3481 Plymouth, collided with another auto June 10 after making a U-turn at Dallas Rd. and Ontario St., fined $40.

Douglas Allan Bratt, 1136 Summit, rear-end collision June 18 at Hillside and Doncaster, fined $40.

FOR HUNTERS

Gun-Handling Test Starts Next Year

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said today written tests will start next year to bar potentially dangerous hunters.

Mr. Kiernan said the gun-handling test will be given to persons applying for the first time for hunting licences. He said failure of the test will mean denial of a hunting permit.

Mr. Kiernan said the test was provided for in the last session of the legislature in amendments to the British Columbia Game Act.

The form of the test was not immediately known but game department officials said it probably would resemble the province's multiple-choice drivers' examination.

BOOKLET PREPARED

Mr. Kiernan said a gun-safety booklet is being prepared and will contain the necessary information to pass the test.

"If a persont comes close to failing the test, he will probably have to take a practical field test and satisfy the examiner that he knows how to handle his weapons," he said.

The test would also be given to persons committing a breach of the Game Act, whether or not such a person is a novice hunter.

Mr. Kiernan said statistics showed the majority of accidents involve persons in the 16-25 age group.

"Act amendments are designed to reduce the accident rate in this age group," he said.

There were 10 firearms fatalities in 1964, compared with five in 1963 and the number of injuries increased from three to 11.

Fire Crisis Easing But Hazard Still High

Lightning Strikes Troublesome

Rain over much of B.C.'s northern forests helped keep large fires in check overnight but also brought dozens more spot blazes following lightning strikes, a forest service official reported today.

Fifty-seven blazes were reported this morning, half of them in the parched Kamloops region.

All told there are 140 fires burning in the province with 626 firefighters battling them. Most of the men are involved in a 8,000-acre fire near Fort Nelson and a 6,000-acre fire at Watson Lake in the Prince George forest district.

"Scattered rains fell on both and these fires are quiet now," said the official. "The men have been able to ring one with a guard and have a partial fire guard developed around the other."

Ten of the new fires occurred in the Vancouver forest district, which includes all of Vancouver Island.

RUBBISH FIRE

Two spot fires broke out in the Duncan area, one spreading from a garbage dump burning operation at Maple Bay and the other caused by a rubbish fire at Shawnigan Lake. Neither was considered serious.

Other fires were reported at Pemberton, Thurston Bay, Harrison and Hope in the Vancouver forest district.

"Things are quieter today," the official said. "There have been no water bombers in the air today except for one helicopter. However our air patrols may spot more lightning strikes before night."

Not all the fires have been blamed on nature or human carelessness.

In Ladysmith, 19-year-old John Aitken was charged Wednesday with arson after three small fires were investigated.

The Forest Service spokesman said experience shows some forest fires are set by persons wanting the $1.25 per hour work of fighting them but wherever arson is suspected persons from outside areas are hired so it is not worthwhile for would-be firefighters to set blazes.

The hazard has dropped back reduced a notch in most areas despite dry winds in the south part of the province.

Wind Damage To City Trees Totals $1,500

Wind-wrought damage amounting to $1,500 has been done to boulevard and park trees in Victoria in the last few days, parks administrator Herbert Warren estimated today.

He said most of the loss has involved young trees recently leafed out and not yet sturdy enough to carry a full head of foliage in the face of gale winds.

Other damage has been to older trees whose limbs have been torn by wind force.

Windy weather has also meant desiccation of park lawns, shrubs and flower beds.

Juvenile Kicked After Argument

An 18-year-old who kicked a juvenile in the face following an argument pleaded guilty in city court today to a charge of assault.

Carl Walker, 412 Superior, became involved in an argument with another youth at Scholefield Roller Rink June 25.

Later, as they were leaving, he kicked him on the left side of the face, breaking skin around the cheekbone and blackening his eye.

Walker was remanded to July 16 for pre-sentence report and sentence.

Youth Charged With Arson In Shed Fire

A juvenile has been charged with arson in connection with a $3,000 shed fire in the Gordon Head area this morning.

The shed, located at the corner of Tyndall Ave. and San Juan, is owned by contractor Ross W. Payne of Victoria.

Police estimated the value of the building at $1,500 and its contents of building supplies at another $1,500.

The fire was started underneath the front porch and old newspapers were used to kindle the blaze.

Saanich fire department received the alarm at 6:14 a.m. from a grocery store across the street and brought the blaze under control by 7:30 a.m.

TOTAL LOSS

The building, formerly used for fruit storage, is considered a total loss.

Meanwhile, recent hot, dry weather has kept Greater Victoria firemen busy dousing grass fires.

City firemen fought three Wednesday afternoon and another early today. Saanich firemen were also busy.

Two fires were in Beacon Hill Park, one near noon at the north end of the park and another about 5:30 p.m. near the world's tallest totem pole.

Other fires were at the intersection of Catherine and Wilson and early today at 55 Dock St.

Saanich firemen soaked a grass blaze on Alderley Wednesday afternoon.

Sidney Asks To Join Metro Group

Application by Sidney Village commission to join Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee was received at city hall today.

It is the first outside area to apply for representation on the committee, formed to discuss and provide guidance on matters of mutual significance in the immediate capital region.

But in view of Sidney's isolation from the nearest existing member of the committee—the municipality of Saanich—it is uncertain whether the village would be admitted on a formal, voting basis.

Central Saanich municipality and the unorganized area of North Saanich lie between Sidney and Saanich.

Central Saanich is connected with the intermunicipal committee only with respect to a joint capital region sewer study being undertaken with provincial government participation. North Saanich, being unorganized, does not qualify for membership.

The committee consists of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt representatives, who are elected persons delegated by councils and usually including the mayor and reeves.

MEN 'DESPERATELY' WANTED TO LEAD CITY LOYALISTS

A woman has finally admitted it!

They can't get along without men.

The "weaker sex" are desperately wanted by the United Empire Loyalists.

Mrs. Olive Wilson, who is re-establishing the organization in Victoria, says that response for members has been overwhelming, but the majority of applications has been from women.

"We need men in the organization," she said, "especially someone capable of taking over as president. Let's face it, we can't get along without them."

Anyone who is a descendant of an Empire Loyalist is eligible for membership in the group, by phoning Mrs. Wilson at 383-7073.

'Yolk Will Be on You' If These Aren't Used

By PENNY SAVER

This past week I have received three separate invitations to weddings. July and August seem determined to catch up to June as the month for brides! That means gifts and, whereas I don't mind buying wedding presents, finding something different in shower items taxes my poor little imagination beyond its ability.

However, I have found some items which I'd like to tell you about which fit the bill—monetary and otherwise—for showers.

A newly-wed couple can always use a set of egg-cups—especially the ones I found which contain a definitely Danish flavor. These are virtually unbreakable—they are made of a heat-resistant metal-ceramic combination which retains the heat of the object inside and yet does not conduct heat itself. (Caution—do not heat them in the oven.)

Sounds wonderful for that first-thing-in-the-morning egg, doesn't it? These are available in a wide variety of colors and you'll love the design of them.

They stand out on little feet with a simple curved holder above. They hold an egg firmly, too, allowing no danger of the egg to go slipping and tipping. Also, they are selling for $1.25 for a set of four.

This wonderful heat-resistant metal is also available in dishes as well—wonderful as a wedding present or a few pieces for a shower gift.

Take these soup dishes I discovered, which have the happy knack of combining the best of both worlds—practicality as well as good looks. Denmark-inspired, they are almost guaranteed to keep a plate of soup hot and to add a touch of elegance to any table at the same time. Price is $1.25.

Coffee mugs are also available in a slim long-line design, selling for 89 cents each. These are so light-weight, it's almost unbelievable!

Weddings coming up? Give Penny a call, then, at 382-3131.

Check Length of Skirt Often When Using New Pattern

Dear Eunice Farmer:

I have a very unexpected tunic dress because I didn't measure my pattern. I thought that if I wrote you, it might save others from my mistake. I haven't added to the length of patterns for years, even though I am rather tall. Suddenly, when I finished my latest dress, it was too short. Nothing to do but to make it a tunic by adding an under-skirt to extend about 3 inches below the tunic.

MRS. E. R.

Dear Mrs. E. R.:

Thanks for sending this worthy bit of advice. As we all know, skirts have been getting shorter for the last several years. Often we keep using old patterns over again and aren't aware of this. Suddenly, a new pattern with the latest length surprises us and we find out we should have added additional length. It's best to check the length of the skirt occasionally to avoid this very thing.

Dear Eunice:

I am trying to learn to sew on my own and I find your column interesting. Can you suggest anything that will make learning to sew a little easier?

MARY M.

Dear Mary M.:

First, I would begin with the simplest pattern available for either a blouse or a shift-dress. When you have mastered this go on to something more difficult. Perhaps you are trying to figure out instructions without the practical part of actually doing it.

PROMOTE INTEREST IN SCIENCE

Bring Fun Into Summer Holidays

WASHINGTON—Scientists are not just born — they are made. Two of the most important ingredients in making them scientists are their parents and a creative home environment.

What are some of the ways that parents can encourage their young child's interest in science?

One of the best approaches is to treat science as recreation, to be enjoyed for its own sake in the same way children enjoy painting a picture or climbing a tree. Your aim is to build curiosity, observation and communication skills through informal learning and games.

Here are a few ways to bring science as recreation into your home this summer.

The collector:

1. A youngster's natural inclination to collect can be used to further his scientific interests. One way to do this is through nature walks into a park or even around the block. Provide a young child with a special box or sturdy bag—one he can decorate himself — with which to bring back his "treasures."

He can collect different kinds of leaves, rocks, ferns, wild flowers, even insects. You can help him identify and label them, using library books that picture the specimens.

2. Leaves and ferns can be pressed into scrapbooks. Rocks can be exhibited in orange crates. (Again, let the child decorate them.) These make ideal summer exhibit cases for any kind of collection. Insects can be kept in glass jars with punctured lids. If the child wants to, he could work toward a home science fair.

3. Older children on longer hikes can use binoculars for identifying birds. They can use a magnifying glass, pad and pencil, possibly a compass and a camera.

Using the sun:

1. Make a home sun-dial with a stick in the ground, so that the child can observe how the sun at different places in the sky—and at different hours by the clock—casts varying shadows off the stick.

2. A child watering the lawn can make a rainbow, with the sun at his back. Looking closely at the fine spray he can see the color spectrum.

Science games:

Even young children enjoy "float or sink" where they use their wading pool to test whether different objects stay afloat or go to the bottom.

With men already walking in space, parents cannot afford not to encourage children's interests in science — which will be so much a part of their future lives.

Turner-Jones Vows Heard in St. Peter's

Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" was played by organist Mrs. Hilda Jones during the recent ceremony in St. Peter's Anglican Church, Lake Hill, which united Lorraine Audrey Jones and Allen Warren Turner.

Rev. Kenneth M. King heard vows exchanged between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Jones, 922 Ambassador Avenue, Victoria, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Turner, of Chesaw, Wash.

Baskets of gladioli, delphiniums, roses, carnations and sweet peas decorated the church for the evening ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lace-trimmed gown of white organza, with skirt lengthening into a flowing train, and a short veil misting from a flower tiara.

Her only jewelry was a pearl locket and earrings, and she carried a colonial bouquet of red roses.

Bridesmaids the Misses Lorna Harder and Marjory Jones, the bride's sister, chose pastel blue frocks in a floral lace over toning crepe, and carried bouquets of pink roses.

Silver candle-holders, roses and carnations decorated the bridal table at the reception at the Olde England Inn.

Charles Passmore proposed the toast to tthe bride.

The newlyweds cut the bridal cake with a silver sword.

Leaving for an up-Island honeymoon, she wore a French blue Italian knit suit, with white accessories and white carnations en corsage. Upon their return, the couple will both attend summer school at the University of British Columbia and will make their home in North Surrey.

To Swedish Camp

Mrs. William Reith of Brentwood left today by air for Montreal where she will join a group of 24 Girl Guides on a two-month trip to Europe. One of three Canadian Guiders chosen for the trip, Mrs. Reith will attend an International Camp in Sweden for 10 days, and will spend a week as guest of a Swedish family. She will then tour other northern European countries with the group before returning home early in September.

Drugs Treat Rare Cancer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A U.S. government researcher reported recently that a rare form of cancer which affects women of childbearing age now can be treated with drugs alone. Previously, surgery also was performed.

Dr. Griff T. Ross of the National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md., told a meeting of the American Cancer Society that the rare cancer usually strikes pregnant women. He said 15 women who have been treated with the drug methotrexate went on to have successful pregnancies.

He said when surgery hysterectomy is performed, childbearing usually is destroyed.

Ross told of more than 100 women suffering with cancers of the uterus occurring during pregnancy. In 44 such women, he said, only one had shown a recurrence of the disease, which occurred three years after treatment.

DEAR ABBY ...

Rules Are Rules!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old girl who was married with my parents' consent during my junior year in high school. (It wasn't a "have to" case, either.) I found out last February that I was expecting a baby in August. When I told my principal about it, I was not allowed to take part in the graduation exercises with my class because I wouldn't have had my baby then and it would have looked "bad." My doctor said my health is fine and he saw no reason why I could not graduate with my class. I earned the right to wear a cap and gown, but my principal had my diploma mailed to me. I checked and there is no "law" about this, it was all up to the principal. Do you think this was fair?

DISAPPOINTED.

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: No. In view of the fact that you are a respectably married woman, and chose to complete your high school education with your class, you should have been permitted to participate in the graduation exercises.

DEAR ABBY: A relative of mine has been sending me carbon copies of letters she sends to about five other people. The letters all begin with a general greeting like, "Howdy, stranger," or "Hi, all!" When I write to her I write personal letters containing news that I think would interest her. But in return I get these "form letters," full of references to people I don't even know. It's more like a newsletter or a diary. She has no children so she can't use that as an excuse for her carbon copies. She always closes with, "Why doesn't anybody write to me?" Apparently the others on her mailing list are about as fed up with her carbon copies as I am. Should I tell her off or let it go? I'm holding off writing to her until I hear from you.

FED UP.

DEAR FED: Sit down and write this relative a letter telling her exactly what you think of her carbon copy "newsletters." Then tear it up. The momentary satisfaction derived from "telling her off" would probably not be worth the regrets you'd have later. If her letters bore and irritate you, discard them unread. And don't bother to answer.

DEAR ABBY: We have always enjoyed a good reputation in town and now we are worried about what people will think and say. Our 26-year-old son, a college graduate, is now employed by a large firm. He has a bright future. He met and fell in love with a girl from another town, and he brought her home last weekend for us to meet her as they plan to marry. She is 23, a pretty little thing, and so quiet and polite. We all fell in love with her.

Last evening our son told us there was "something" he wanted us to know. It seems the girl has a 4-year-old illegitimate son. She made a mistake when she was younger and decided to keep the baby and raise it herself. With the help of her mother, she finished college, worked, and managed to do this. When she and my son marry, he wants to adopt the boy, and they will live in this town. My husband was horrified. I was shocked, but being a woman, I am more understanding. What should we tell people when she comes here with her child?

AFRAID TO TALK.

DEAR AFRAID: You owe the townspeople no explanations. They'll probably assume that the child is hers from a previous marriage. Let them assume it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO APPALLED: Don't blame the children. It's practically impossible for youngsters to learn good manners when they rarely see any.

A panel of Chantilly lace highlighted the skirt of the Empire-line gown, which featured lantern sleeves of similar lace. Her silk illusion net veil misted from a small rosette headpiece, starred with appliques of Chantilly lace and crystals. White stephanotis and pink roses were in her cascade bouquet.

Arrangements of pink and white gladioli were at the altar of St. Patrick's Church, Oak Bay, when Fr. M. Bell-skirted gowns of pink peau-de-soie were worn by maid of honor, Miss Sandra Bray; bridesmaids, the Misses Joan Gilmour and Lynn Garner, and little flower girl, Tracy Hutson. Pride In Housework Gone— Creativity a Substitute

MONTREAL (CP)—So much of the creative side of housework is gone that today's woman needs a way to express herself apart from her house and children, says Montreal playwright Maxime Fleischman.

"Our grandmothers had more dignity than our young married women have today. They knew their work mattered as a contribution to their family's comfort. That pride has been taken away from women of my generation."

Pride in creative cooking and sewing is gone, leaving chores like dusting, cleaning and ironing—"necessary but hardly creative jobs."

"I think a woman needs something of her own, something she has created with her own hands and her own intellect.

"Writing plays gives me an extra involvement in everything and everybody I meet. It gives me that extra stimulant I personally need to enjoy my role in life. Above all, it gives me satisfaction."

Mother of three children ranging from 10 months to 11 years, the 32-year-old Mrs. Fleischman says she first tried singing and acting but turned to writing for the theatre after her marriage.

Most of her writing is done in exercise books on the kitchen table after the children go to bed. "But when I'm involved in a play I can write anywhere, anytime."

As More Mothers Go to Work

CITY NEEDS DAY NURSERIES

The urgent need for a community organized day nursery has sparked a considerable amount of controversy among parents, kindergarten teachers and citizens in Victoria. Today and tomorrow, a two part series on the question will appear on the women's pages.

By JUDY CREIGHTON

The care and welfare of children of working mothers is becoming more and more a problem, both on the individual and community level.

As increasing numbers of married women with children in this country are entering the labor force every year, so the need of having baby sitters on a daily basis becomes more urgent.

'Situations Wanted' columns in newspapers often advertise day care in private homes, but the number is negligible as the number of working mothers increases.

In several major cities in Canada, central day nurseries have been established to which parents can take their pre-schoolers, but as yet, there is no such nursery in Victoria.

It is becoming less and less possible for the mother of tiny tots to get a qualified baby sitter to come into her home, and even if she does succeed, her own wages on an average basis rarely make it worthwhile, by the time she has paid for the help.

Gordon Wright, executive director of the Family and Children's Service feels there is a real need for the day nursery in this city.

However, Mr. Wright is more concerned with the low income family where a mother must work to assist the income.

"The local privately-owned kindergartens for the pre-school children serve most adequately those parents who can afford to pay, but the Family and Children's Service are deeply aware of the situations where mothers of tiny children have to work," he said.

During the past few months the service has been working on a scheme for day care for children in specially selected homes in which several youngsters would be looked after so that the mother of a low income family could work.

"Though this is only in the embryo stage" said Mr. Wright, "we are confident that such a program will be available."

The cost?

Mr. Wright explained that these day care homes would have to be subsidized by government and individuals as all other agency services.

"Where possible, the parents could pay a small amount—but it is hoped that subsidies would cover the cost." On the subject of a single organized nursery, Mr. Wright does not see such an establishment being set up in the near future.

In cities where day nurseries are available, a trained staff is on hand to give the children adequate care. The nurseries come under provincial health and welfare jurisdiction and staff includes social workers, nurses, pre-school teachers and volunteer workers. They are federally, provincially and privately subsidized but in most places parents must pay a fee.

Head of the Victoria Community Welfare Council, Jack Anguish feels that day nurseries serve a need only for the sake of the children when proper care is lacking. "Except for truly dire cases of need in a family, where mother must work, I am very much against this present "feminine mystique" attitude, which is really a feminine mistake on the part of today's mother," he said.

Mr. Anguish stressed great concern with what is happening to the fabric of family life due to women of higher income brackets going back to work. "Maybe I am old fashioned" he said, "but I am most concerned with children being brought up by somebody else."

WITH PLASTIC SURGERY

Bigger Eyes, Bosoms New Japanese Craze

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japanese girls trying to emulate Western charms are paying for wider eyes and bigger bosoms.

The answer is plastic surgery—from 20,000 yen ($56) at a time.

Enlargement of the eyes to Western proportions is eagerly sought by office girls, bar hostesses, princesses and wives of cabinet ministers.

So are operations to enlarge flat noses and meagre busts.

Although the original inspiration came from a general desire to look like Elizabeth Taylor, most girls today put down their money for a 15-minute operation simply because they believe it makes them more beautiful or because it is the fashion.

Operations under local anaesthetic to convert single lids into double, thus raising them and rounding the eye, make women look younger and prettier, said Dr. Fumio Umezawa, director of the Jujin Hospital in Tokyo, leader in plastic surgery in Japan.

"The women treated here become happier and more joyful as they discard their inferiority complexes," he said.

"When women are confident of themselves they look prettier.

"To beautify women by measures endorsed by science also benefits men and therefore society itself."

About 40 women a day visit his hospital for eye transformations. Most of them are girls between 19 and 25.

The installation ceremony was conducted by Miss Ruth Adams, past president.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. M. Laughlin thanked Mrs. E. Webster, retiring president, on behalf of the other members, and presented her with the past president's pin.

Mrs. Webster welcomed Mrs. D. Kent, a new member, Mrs. E. Evans, who has rejoined the club, and Miss Anne McMillan, a former Princeton member.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Older Person Can Serve As Eyewitness to History

Lowman

Dr. Donald P. Kent, Director of the Office of Aging, United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare, gave a most inspiring address recently in Chattanooga where he came to take part in the activities there during Senior Citizen month. I was fortunate to be there to hear him, and today want to pass along to you some of the things he said.

Dr. Kent said, "What are the basic needs of the older person? They are, a place to live, something to do and something to do with, and someone who cares." Of course those are the basic needs of everyone from birth until death.

I was interested that Donald Kent emphasized the fact that the younger and older generations are not races apart, that we should not say, "we and they, but US," that they are simply in a different place in the life cycle, that they are "us" some years hence.

I also loved what he said about the mistake of classifying people in age groups. I applaud his recognition of individuality. We have all known persons who are old at 20 and others who are young at 80.

We are too apt to think that all older people are alike.

Dr. Kent said, "People are individuals. Older people are no more alike than younger people are, probably less so, because the longer a person lives the more apparent the vast difference between individuals becomes." He mentioned the fact that the older persons have wisdom the younger ones cannot possibly have, that they have a certain detachment, since the rigorous obligations of youth are no more, which can give them a broader view. They are loyal, dependable, and on time.

He then described some of the very interesting things which are being done. I think I like best the idea of using older people as eye witnesses to history. These are people who lived through the First World War, went through the Great Depression, and have watched the many advances and developments of the 20th century. Told from the viewpoint of personal experience, I think this would make history come alive even for those who were not interested in history before.

This has a doubly wonderful impact. The student would gain from it and the eye witness would know that he or she is doing something very worthwhile. This is only one little example of what can be done in your community.

Medical Teams Needed For Delivery Problems

OTTAWA (CP) — A Philadelphia pediatrician says medical teams should be present at all births where difficulties are suspected.

Dr. Doris Howell, pediatrics professor at the Women's Medical College of Pennsylvania, said Monday this is one way to reduce the number of delivery deaths.

She was interviewed after delivering a paper on blood problems associated with birth at the annual meeting of the Canadian Pediatric Society.

A specialist in children's blood diseases, Dr. Howell, estimated that 10 per cent of all births require some sort of special attention requiring more than the services of a lone obstetrician.

Mother and child could run into a variety of problems. A single doctor sometimes could not handle them all, particularly if they occurred at the same time. A pediatrician should be on the job with the obstetrician.

Bridal Shower

Two lovebirds perched atop a flower-shaped gift container at a recent shower honoring bride-elect Brenda Rogers at the McNeill Avenue home of Mrs. O. R. Jull. A gardenia corsage was presented to the guest of honor and a pink rosebud corsage to her mother, Mrs. Roy Rogers, visiting from her North Vancouver home. Also present was Miss Maureen Rogers, the bride-elect's sister, on holiday from the mainland. Other guests were Mrs. R. M. Brown, Mrs. C. W. Roberts, Mrs. A. Mitchell, Mrs. K. Murphy, Mrs. D. Brown, Mrs. D. Toms, Mrs. A. Laundy, Mrs. P. Steele, Mrs. E. Napper, Mrs. L. E. Pope, Mrs. H. C. Molyneaux, Mrs. R. G. Williston, Mrs. F. A. Cook, Mrs. L. Palmer, Mrs. A. Irwin and Mrs. J. B. McCann. Also invited were the Misses Norlene McCann, Emilie Semko, Pamela Dann, Barbara, Marilyn and Wendy Jull.

Flowers Decorate Church For Creech-Woolcock Vows

Baskets of delphiniums, asters, roses and carnations decorated Knox Presbyterian Church recently for the wedding of Gill Woolcock and David Richard Palmer Creech.

Rev. A. G. Faraday officiated at the double ring ceremony which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Woolcock, 715 Kelly Road, and the only son of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Creech, 232 Irving Road. Organist was J. Alton.

Wearing a short, white dress of brocaded satin with a high neckline and three-quarter length sleeves, the bride was given in marriage by her father. Her short tulle veil misted from a floral headpiece, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Her only jewelry was a gold locket, gift of the groom.

Matron of honor Mrs. William Willbond chose a blue satin dress, and bridesmaid Miss Mollie Woolcock, the bride's sister, wore a yellow dress in the same style. Both wore headpieces en tone, and carried bouquets to complement their dresses.

Alfred Lincoln, Jr., was best man, and Page Wheatley ushered guests to their pews.

At the reception which followed at the Colonial Inn, J. E. Nimmo proposed the toast to the bride. Red roses topped the three-tier cake, centred on the bridal table.

Leaving for a honeymoon in the provincial interior, the new Mrs. Creech wore a dress of navy and white lace, with a blue coat and white accessories.

The couple are now making their home at 596 Judah Street.

Weekend Guest

A recent weekend guest in the Ash Road home of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Stewart was Mrs. Stewart's sister, Mrs. J. Lamb, of Vancouver.

BRIDGE LESSON

With all its advantages there is still a sound reason why the Gerber convention has never achieved great popularity except as an adjunct to Blackwood. That reason is because in many instances a player wants to give his four club bid a natural meaning. In this case it does not pay to use four clubs to ask for aces unless partner has just made a bid in no-trump.

Opening lead—♦Q

South is interested in a slam as soon as his partner opens the bidding and is mildly surprised to hear a jump rebid to three spades.

He also notes that the hand may be a total misfit and bids four clubs in an effort to find the right suit for the final contract.

North's three spade bid was somewhat doubtful but he raises his partner's club suit because his spades are not good enough for him to insist on a final spade contract.

South's five heart call is a cue bid designed to get to a grand slam if North can produce the right cards. North has no trouble recognizing that it is a cue bid but North also realizes that his club support is less than he would like to have, so North bids five spades.

South reads the message and realizes that his partner cannot have good enough clubs for a grand slam and settles for six.

The simpest line of play to make six is ace of diamonds, ace of clubs, ace of spades, spade ruff, king of clubs, spade ruff, then declarer runs off hearts and spades. East can ruff with his queen of clubs when he chooses but the rest of dummy will be good.

COMMON SENSE!
During the first six months of this year we at MERCURY MARINE have sold more MERCURY outboard motors than any one MERCURY dealer in this area has ever sold in a full year. We are proud of this accomplishment! However there are reasons why! First of all we sell the world's No. 1 outboard; Secondly we will and do take in trade whatever make outboard motor you may own; Thirdly we try in every deal to offer you the very best deal in town and with the very best deal we make sure you get the kind of service you deserve. For these and many other reasons we have set sales records. Now wouldn't it make COMMON SENSE for you to buy a MERCURY outboard and to buy your MERCURY outboard at

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

If you have to take the missus out for a night on the town but you feel you might miss your favorite television program, simply turn on your home video tape recorder and play the show back when you return.

Stephen

Sounds out of this world? Not really. There are various companies already set to put home video tape recorders on the market.

Nearly every television station is using the huge, expensive video tape recorders now. Smaller sets, weighing as little as 70 pounds, will soon be available to the consumer for a price.

The Ampex Corporation of Redwood, Calif., has promised a one-speed table top model that will retail at $1,095. A two-speed model will sell for $1,295. They may be available before this year is out.

The Sony Corporation of Japan is ready with a unit that weighs 70 pounds. It will sell for $995.

To top this, the homebody will soon be able to make his own pictures-with-sound productions and, in the future, to buy tapes of outstanding professional entertainment.

RCA Victor Recordings have mentioned marketing sight-and-sound tapes of Broadway musicals, operatic and ballet productions.

The educational systems have been making great use of video tapes. The light, portable recorders would also be handy to TV newsmen, for TV tape doesn't need developing or printing. Simply play it back at once.

The prices, mind you, make these articles almost prohibitive. But competition and mass production techniques could bring them down.

For those at home, the video tape recorder could solve the problem of two top programs scheduled at the same time. With two sets and the recorder, one show could be seen live; the other at a more convenient time.

That will solve the worry for the viewer but it creates one for television executives who live by rating service audience statistics. Even now they are concerned about the effect on viewers. Some sponsors might worry, and rightly so, about a recorder set to cut out all commercial announcements.

But that's a dream, isn't it?

TIDBITS: The producers of ABC-TV's Combat, a Second World War show set in Europe, are working on a new series called Attack, set in the Pacific during the same war . . . Ron Kelly's documentary, The Thirties: A Glimpse of a Decade, deserved the second annual Wilderness Award, Canada's top award. The repeat Tuesday proved it again . . . Bill Bixby of The Martian will get a girl friend next season.

NBC is planning a Soupy Sales special in color next season. He's the character who boasts he's had 14,000 pies thrown in his face during his television career.

CARS DENTED

Hail Batters Kootenay Town Damage Heavy

YMIR, B.C. (CP) — A freak summer storm with high winds, heavy rain and hailstones the size of golf balls slammed into this tiny town of Ymir, near Nelson, Wednesday.

Damage from the storm is estimated at several thousand dollars in ruined gardens, broken windows, washed out roads and dented automobiles.

The hailstones pitted paint jobs on automobiles, and several of them ripped through the tops of convertibles.

The roofs of several buildings were damaged by the hail, which covered the ground to a depth of six inches at the storm's height.

"Some of the hailstones were about the size of large marbles, and each time the hail began the stones were bigger and bigger," said Mrs. Muriel Anderson.

Trailers Clobbered

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — Hail stones as large as baseballs pounded the Medicine Hat area Wednesday, smashing greenhouses, ruining crops and causing an estimated $10,000 damage to 17 vacation trailers.

The storm cut a swath seven miles wide and about 15 miles deep as it came in from the northwest Wednesday afternoon lasting about 25 minutes.

Three commercial greenhouse operations at Redcliffe, three miles northwest of here, reported almost total damage to glass and greenhouse crops.

Gardens in Medicine Hat and Redcliffe were flattened and cars and houses damaged. One of the hardest hit areas was the municipal airport where the trailers were parked.

Power Cut In Interior

QUESNEL (CP)—An electrical storm, the second in the Cariboo within 24 hours, cut power supplies to Quesnel, Williams Lake and Prince George Wednesday.

The storm struck Williams Lake in the early afternoon and it was believed power would be out for some time. B.C. Hydro crews were reported working on the damage, though details of the storm were unknown.

Tuesday night high winds and lightning knocked down trees and snarled power and telephone lines in the Kersley district. Fallen trees partially blocked the Cariboo highway in several places, but were removed early Wednesday by highway crews.

Other men were reported still trying to restore telephone service in several areas when the second storm hit.

Recital, Dance To Raise Funds For 'Village'

Two fund raising events are planned Saturday for the Children's International Summer Village which will be held on Vancouver Island from July 15 to Aug. 15.

A summer recital featuring Joan Bulmer on the piano and singer Adele Lewis will take place at 8:15 p.m. in the Art Gallery and a dance will be held at 8:45 p.m. in Norway House on Hillside.

Proceeds from both functions will go to the Children's Village.

Forty children from 10 different countries will be attending the camp which will be held at Shawnigan Lake School for Girls.

Step-Up Patrols

NANAIMO — Police are to step-up beach and campsite patrols following increased reports of rowdyism.

Many of the complaints have come from Harewood Dam Beach and Newcastle Island.

RCMP said much of the trouble is caused by children and teen-agers camping without adult supervision.

Boycott Beatrix, Say Dutch Vets

ROTTERDAM (Reuters) — Members of the Dutch resistance who fought the Germans in the Second World War have distributed leaflets throughout Rotterdam, urging a boycott of Friday's visit to the city by Crown Princess Beatrix and her German fiance.

The leaflets tell people to stay indoors.

The engagement of the future queen to West German diplomat Claus von Amsberg has caused controversy in The Netherlands, because he was once a member of the Hitler Youth and served with the German army in the war.

The pamphlets were headed "warning" and urged the people of Rotterdam not to commit "undignified acts" such as daubing buildings and hanging out swastika flags.

"Be dignified. Stay at home on Friday, July 9. Empty flagpoles are not (yet) forbidden. Let Rotterdam be a city of empty flagpoles," the pamphlets said.

Rotterdam is the third main Dutch city to be visited by Crown Princess Beatrix and her 38-year-old fiance since their engagement was announced by Queen Juliana June 28. The series of visits is seen as a test of public reaction.

Their reception in The Hague, the most royalist of Dutch cities, was a triumph. But they got a cooler welcome in Amsterdam.

Rotterdam was hit hard by German bombers in 1940 and had to be extensively rebuilt after the war.

Noon Hour Concerts Start Again Monday

Lunchtime pop concerts are on again at the McPherson Playhouse beginning Monday.

Concert impresario Kenneth Gravenor and city hall have reconciled their difference in a signed six-month contract for rental of the McPherson.

New format for the noon shows calls for one continuous show from 12:15 to 1:15 p.m. for 35 cents admission.

Terms of the new contract stipulate a $25 rental charge for each performance or 25 per cent of the admission receipts.

Mr. Gravenor only paid $10 rent for each performance previously and a controversy ensued when the city suggested he should pay $35 a performance.

The new contract also calls for the city to provide a piano and stage hands when special light effects are required.

Bennett Offers Coliseum Aid

Premier Bennett Wednesday offered up to $10,000,000 to help build proposed coliseums in Vancouver and Burnaby.

The premier said the province would contribute up to $5,000,000 to each project, providing equal grants came from the federal government and respective city councils.

Vancouver and Burnaby both have announced intentions to build all-purpose coliseums, primarily to make their areas contenders for National Hockey League expansion.

There was an element of competition in the proposals. But the premier said the province would be willing to pay a share for two large coliseums.

Picasso Bid Rejected

PARIS (Reuters)—An appeal court has rejected painter Paulo Picasso's claim for seizure of a book about him by his former mistress, Francoise Gilot. The court, upholding the decision of another court last April, ruled Tuesday that Miss Gilot in her book My Life With Picasso had not sought to write scandal about the painter. She had simply described his life, it said.

Chokes on Gum

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP)—A San Pedro mother, apparently excited when her son hit a home run in a Little League baseball game, swallowed her chewing gum and choked to death Tuesday, police said. Mrs. Dolores F. Stanford, 37, was reported dead on arrival at a nearby hospital.

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP)—The Paraguayan government announced Tuesday night it had crushed a Communist plot to begin a guerrilla warfare campaign and "make Paraguay a second Cuba."

NEW BID TO END FIGHTING

Canadians Back Viet 'Gandhi'

TORONTO (CP)—Vo. Tranh Minh, the "Vietnamese Gandhi", is returning to his country after 16 years of self-imposed exile.

Dr. Vo, a university professor in Indochina until his departure in 1949, said in an interview here Wednesday he is returning to try to create the atmosphere in North and South Viet Nam for negotiations that will end the war in his divided country.

Three Canadians will join him in his efforts.

Dr. Vo was called the "Vietnamese Gandhi" when he pitched a tent outside a United Nations agency headquarters in Geneva in 1961 to protest the division of Indochina into North and South Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

In 1963, he was arrested for illegal parking when he went on a 10-day hunger strike in his little car outside UN headquarters in New York.

During the last week he has been living in Toronto where he has taken part in talks with representatives of the Canadian peace groups. The groups have decided to help finance Dr. Vo's return to Viet Nam and to send at least three Canadians with him.

One of the Canadians is Leslie Dewart, professor of philosophy at St. Michael's College at the University of Toronto. Two other Canadians will be chosen in Montreal and Regina.

Youth Charged In Girl's Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police charged an 18-year-old Vancouver youth with criminal negligence today after a Wednesday night accident claimed the life of an eight-year-old girl.

Geordie Tsamis was struck down by a car as she crossed a street on her way to a store.

Police charged Gregory Ravid Hardy in connection with the accident. The youngster was hurled 140 feet and skid marks 180 feet long were left by a car.

Fraser Crew Makes Gift To Clinic

Profits from HMCS Fraser's ship canteen, totalling $1,210 have been presented to the Cerebral Palsy Clinic in Victoria by the vessel's commanding officer, Cmdr. Richard Carle.

The officers and men of the ship donated the money with a request that it be used toward the new clinic and that one of the wards be known as the Fraser Ward.

The clinic has been given notice to move from its present location on the grounds of the Jubilee Hospital but has not yet found a new home.

The present facilities covering 3,500 sq. ft. will have to be extended to 12,000 sq. ft. if the clinic is to do the job it is supposed to do, the official said.

When a new location is decided upon, officials plan to launch a fund-raising campaign towards building and maintaining the new facilities.

Spitfire Ace To Retire Next Year

LONDON (Reuters) — Air Vice-Marshal James Edgar (Johnnie) Johnson, Britain's top-scoring Spitfire fighter pilot in the Second World War, is to leave the RAF early next year, when his tour as commanding officer of the Middle East Air Command in Aden runs out.

His career, spanning the years from Spitfires to supersonic jets, includes 38 "kills" in air combat. He holds the Distinguished Service Order with two bars and the Distinguished Flying Cross with bar.

He will retire next year at 50 years of age.

He led three Canadian fighter wings during the Second World War, one of these, No. 144, was the first Spitfire wing to operate from French soil after the D-day landing in Normany June 6, 1944.

After the war, he attended the RCAF College and served for two years in Korea during the conflict there.

NEXT GEMINI FLIGHT

U.S. to Practise Space Manoeuvres

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — U.S. astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad will launch their own private satellite during their eight-day Gemini 5 flight in August and for six hours will practise manoeuvring near it in a vital rehearsal for manned lunar and planetary trips.

Details of the rendezvous mission were described here Wednesday by officials of the Westinghouse Defence and Space Centre, which built the special satellite.

Nicholas V. Petrou, vice-president of the firm's aerospace division, said the flight will give astronauts the first opportunity to work out problems of rendezvousing in space with use of a radar system.

"The Gemini 4 flight demonstrated you cannot judge distances in space with the human eye alone," he said. "On Gemini 5, the radar system will provide motion, angle, range and azimuth data and information on the speed of the target satellite as it approaches or moves away.

"The astronauts will be able to determine how to make the most efficient use of fuel during a rendezvous manoeuvre."

During the Gemini 4 flight, James McDivitt and Edward White, air force majors, expended nearly half their fuel in a futile attempt to steer close to the orbiting second stage of their Titan II booster rocket. They used visual means only.

Cooper, an air force major and Conrad, a navy lieutenant-commander, are scheduled to make their marathon space journey starting Aug. 17.

Whale To Be Pen Pal —Perhaps

NAMU, B.C. (CP)—A two-ton killer whale was expected to begin a trip to Seattle today inside a steel and net pen towed behind a tugboat.

However, a spokesman at this remote coastal fishing village said the journey could be delayed while repairs are made to the welded steel pen.

The enclosure was dropped on a dock while it was being moved to the water, he said.

About 200 residents turned out to help in moving the pen to the water.

The 60 by 70 foot pen, which has one side open, will be floated to where the whale, purchased by Seattle's aquarium, is held captive by nets. The giant mammal will be coaxed inside the pen and the open side sealed with a strong net.

The Seattle tug Robert E. Lee arrived here Tuesday to make the tow.

A spokesman at the cannery here said the whale appears in good shape and that a pod of about 30 whales has remained in the area of the capture.

"They pop up around the enclosure periodically," he said.

Former Prof Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hunter C. Lewis, 68, a former English professor at the University of British Columbia for 33 years, died in hospital Monday. He retired from the university in 1963.

Gun Mishap Kills Woman

DANA, SASK. (CP) — Mrs. Lawrence Woodward, 38, wife of employee of the RCAF radar base at Dana, 50 miles northeast of Saskatoon, was killed Tuesday when accidentally shot.

The RCMP at Vanda, Sask., said the incident occurred when the Woodwards and their three-year-old son were out driving near Dana. They said Mr. Woodward got out of the car to shoot a skunk at the roadside. He stumbled in a ditch, and his .308-calibre rifle discharged, hitting Mrs. Woodward, picking flowers at the roadside, in the back.

Police said she died instantly.

High Price for Art

LONDON (AP)—A landscape by Joseph Mallard Turner sold Wednesday for £88,000 ($264,000), one of the highest prices ever paid for a painting by the 19th century artist. Owned by Viscount Allendale, it was auctioned at Sotherby's to a London art dealer.

What could a highland Scot possibly know about making good gin?

One hundred and ninety-five years ago, a dour old Scot named Gordon was the funniest joke in England—what could a highland Scot possibly know about making good gin?

But Gordon beat the English at their own game. And died in great spirits as the maker of the best gin in England.

The English retaliated by conveniently forgetting that Gordon was a Scot and publicly proclaiming him as one of their own.

(Exactly what it was Gordon knew, nobody knows except other Gordons. But a lot of gin-makers would give a pretty penny to find out.)

Today, Gordon's is the best-selling gin in the world. Because Gordon's descendants are as canny as he was:

Nobody but Gordon's makes Gordon's Gin, no matter where it's made—and it's made in nine different countries, including Canada.

The exact and original formula is never varied for any reason whatsoever. Ever.

And nobody but Gordon's can approve the finished gin for bottling.

If you've never tasted Gordon's Gin, taste it at a friend's home first. If you like it, you might want some for your own home. In case you get tied up. And can't get to your friend's home.

HIGHLAND EXPERT

50 Years of Dancing . . . Still Going Strong

By SUSAN PELLAND

James L. McKenzie is every inch a Scotsman from his green tartan cap down to his woollen-stockinged feet.

He is also an expert of Highland dancing, having captured the world championship trophy three consecutive years in 1951, '52 and '53.

Mr. McKenzie is visiting in Victoria for a week, staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Duncan, 2506 Wootton Crescent.

A native of Aberdeen, Scotland, he travels to Nova Scotia every summer to teach Highland dancing at St. Ann's School in Bedeck.

DANCE EXAMINER

As an examiner for the Scottish Dance Teachers' Alliance, his work has taken him four times across Canada, once to South Africa and many times to the U.S.

Mr. McKenzie began dancing as a young boy of eight and, 50 years later, he is still dancing.

In that time he has performed before several generations of the Royal Family at the Braemar gatherings in Scotland.

He remembers Princesses Margaret and Elizabeth as little girls swinging their feet to the music of the bagpipes while 40,000 people gathered on the hillside to see the annual event.

5,000 TESTS

Representative for the Scottish Official Governing Board of Highland Dancing, most of his time is spent judging contests and conducting as many as 5,000 tests in one three-month tour.

Mr. McKenzie will be judging at the Nanaimo Highland games this Saturday.

His trip to Victoria was organized by former pupil, Mrs. Heather Jolley, now a member of the Scottish Teachers' Alliance and living in Montreal. She is also staying with her parents at Wootton Crescent while in Victoria.

Mr. McKenzie leaves for Philadelphia Sunday and from there he will go to Montreal, winding up his tour at Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Abandoned Baby Seals Now Sought

It doesn't look as if Herbie is coming home.

The seal disappeared from Undersea Gardens June 26 and hasn't been seen since.

He escaped by chewing a hole in the wire mesh which enclosed him in the 48-by-48-foot pen at the gardens.

But manager Bill Starkey isn't too worried about finding a new pair of seals to replace the star attraction.

* * *

Anytime now the older seals will start having babies. And every year many of the baby seals are found abandoned on the beaches by their mothers who have sensed that something is wrong with them.

Mr. Starkey is confident that phone calls from persons finding the abandoned seals will turn up a suitable male and female.

But he can't guarantee that they will always live.

Seals are temperamental things and the foundlings have to be treated as human babies, fed on a special formula of cod liver oil regularly every four hours.

* * *

This means that the divers have to go down and force-feed the seals six times a day until they adapt to taking the bottle voluntarily.

When old enough, they then go on a fish diet.

It's a big chore trying to raise a baby seal—but TWO seals?

Herbie, you'd make it much easier if you just quietly came home.

Churchill Stamps Start Dealer Rush

LONDON (AP)—A special issue of memorial stamps for Sir Winston Churchill went on sale today and started a rush among dealers.

The first print order is for 159,000,000 stamps. But experts thought sales unlikely to top the record 415,000,000 set by the 1953 issue for the Queen's coronation.

Dealers set out early to get frankings at Bladon, the Oxfordshire village where Sir Winston is buried, and the neighboring village of Churchill. Covers franked there will have a special value to collectors.

The Churchill stamps show the head and shoulders of the late war leader. In the top right corner they carry, like all British stamps the head of the monarch.

WREATH-LAYING CEREMONY, TREE PLANTING

Lesson in Courage by Blind Vets

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Men who haven't seen the light of day for 20, 30, 40 and even 50 years gave us a lesson in courage Wednesday.

Their cheerfulness seemed incredible.

"How do you do it?" I asked one of the 200-odd war-blinded veterans who came here with their wives and children from a national convention in Vancouver and spent the afternoon in Victoria.

"It's an attitude of mind," he said, "an acceptance of the fact you will never see again and must develop your other senses to compensate for it.

"But to develop those senses you need training—and that is where St. Dunstan's and the Canadian Institute for the Blind are doing the most Christian work on earth today.

"They teach us to adjust."

Lord Fraser of Lonsdale, who was blinded on the Somme when he was only 18, gave a similar answer.

"All life is a matter of adjustment," he said. "People adjust to all kinds of handicaps — mental, spiritual and physical. No man is perfect. In some way or other, he is deficient. Therefore he must make the most of what he has."

An active member of Parliament before he was raised to the peerage in 1958, Lord Fraser has never seen his wife, but his devotion was clear to all.

"She has a gift for description," he said.

This was evident when Lady Fraser gave him a word picture of the Victoria Cenotaph, the stately Legislative Buildings behind and the three flags which fluttered in the breeze —the Union Jack, the new Maple Leaf flag and British Columbia's own sunset flag.

"I see your premier is playing it safe," laughed Lady Fraser.

Asked what she thought of Britain's present Labor government, she replied:

The 'Beasts'

"I hate the little beasts!"

But she qualified this statement by saying there were many fine dedicated people in the government.

"They are just deluded."

Lord Fraser was Conservative Member of Parliament for Lancaster and Morecombe for many years. He is also a barrister-at-law of the Inner Temple, and has been national president of the British Legion, and vice-president of the Royal National Institute for the Blind, and chairman of St. Dunstan's.

Hear Lions Roar

He and Lady Fraser live in a house in Regents Park, London—so close to the famous London Zoo they hear the lions roaring after they have gone to bed.

"You get used to it," said Lady Fraser.

Their home was bombed and burned to the ground during the Nazi blitz on London.

"We put up another," said Lady Fraser in matter-of-fact tones.

The blind veterans and their wives and children arrived at the Victoria Cenotaph in nine coaches at 12:30 p.m. and 15 minutes later took part in a wreath-laying service.

The blue flag of St. Dunstan's was added to the B.C. flag, the Maple Leaf flag and the Union Jack. Only the Red Ensign was missing.

Rev. George Turpin, former chaplain at Shaughnessy Veterans' Hospital and father of Rev. Howard Turpin of Esquimalt United, led the service.

Lord Fraser laid a wreath of Flanders Poppies at the foot of the Centotaph. Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson welcomed the blind veterans to Victoria.

The veterans gathered in the Empress Hotel ballroom for an informal luncheon that was distinguished by the absence of a head table and the fact no one made a speech.

Maple Planted

The visitors then drove in the nine coaches to Government House. After a friendly reception by Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George Pearkes, Lord Fraser planted a silver maple tree in the grounds.

"The tree is now about six years old," said bushy-bearded Frederick Hurn, the rose grower at Government House. "In about 30 years time it will be a really big tree."

Tour Area

After the ceremony, the veterans and their families were taken on a tour of the city before catching the 6 p.m. ferry at Swartz Bay for the return trip to Vancouver.

Capt. F. J. L. Woodcock, executive secretary in Toronto of the Sir Arthur Pearson Association of War Blinded, said the association now has 250 members of whom nearly 200 attended the convention in Vancouver.

"Surprisingly, we have no veterans from the Korean War," he said. "No one, it seems, was blinded in that conflict, but we are getting new members from the First World War. These are the men who suffered from the mustard gas attacks."

SCOUT ACTIVITIES

Proficiency badges were awarded recently to scouts and cubs of the Garry Oak District to:

First Garry Oak Group: (sea scouts) Silver Stage first aider, gardener, model railroader and stamp collector, Chris White; religion and life, Russell Horton.

Fifth Garry Oak Group: (scout) auto mechanic, Richard Kenton.

Sixth Garry Oak Group: (cub) woodsman, Ian Brethour.

Eighth Garry Oak Group: (scout) first class, Bruce Nicholson.

JOTTINGS IN PENCIL . . . Cafe Society's most ecstatic bride, Sybil Burton Christopher, is enjoying her second honeymoon so much she missed her own "coming home" party at Arthur. She was to have returned to New York with her rock 'n' roll groom in time to play hostess at her discotheque after the opening of the funny new movie "The Knack," but she's having such a marvelous time away from it all in Florida that she just rang up and told the staff she and Jordon were "more than two hours away from the airport," and then it would be another two hours to fly up here, and so they just decided to stay on Cloud 9 for another week . . . The buzz from Mayor Wagner's inner circle has it that His Honor would like best of all to become secretary of labor if President Johnson offers him a cabinet post after he leaves City Hall. At any rate, they feel he'll fit into the Washington scene beautifully with Barbara Cavanaugh to hostess all his social functions—once she becomes Mrs. Robert F. Wagner.

Peter Paul and Mary, the singing group, estimate that their stand on civil rights cost them $250,000 in cancelled bookings and diminished record sales in the South. But they plan to step up their work for the cause, nevertheless. Peter Yarrow says: "There's no sale price on our beliefs." . . . Sean Connery's going to Hollywood and Warner Brothers have him, Irvin Kershner will direct the former James Bond in the movie version of Elliot Baker's comedy novel, "A Fine Madness." . . . Top stage and screen personalities are learning that the easiest money in the world comes from doing TV commercials. George Burns, for example, will get $50,000 for less than five minutes of performing for a cigar company.

James Mason did a lot of moaning about all the alimony he had to pay Pamela when they got their divorce, but he had enough left over to buy a fabulous 500-year-old castle in Spain . . . Rudolf Nureyev was all set to appear on Carol Channing's upcoming TV special, but something happened to his schedule so he won't be able to shoot with her in Los Angeles in August.

When the Nederlander family take over the Palace Theater in New York, they want Harry Belafonte to act as "artistic director." Toronto's famous O'Keefe Centre has made him a similar offer—and small wonder. He just amassed $1,062,344 in ticket sales for 72 performances there, topping the records made by the Canadian Opera and "My Fair Lady." . . . Fabian certainly is growing up. He's currently dating Dorothy Provine, who once ranked as a Frank Sinatra favorite . . . Lord Snowden's father, Ronald Armstrong-Jones, is seriously ill in London, but they're keeping it quiet around the palace . . . Political insiders expect Dona Felisa, Mayor of San Juan, Puerto Rico, to announce her retirement soon because of poor health.

Rod Taylor has purchased an ancient pub in Dublin . . . Tom Hoover, the former New York Knicks basketballer, has embarked on a new career as a stand-up comic (and when he stands up—all six-feet-six of him—you've really got something!). His debut was arranged for Pip's Coffehouse in Sheepshead Bay, which is one of those showcases for brand new talent . . . There are three more weeks to go on shooting of "The Bible," just acquired by 20th Century-Fox, and the release date is already set. The world premiere will be held Sept. 17, 1966, and the company expects it to the biggest grosser in cinema history . . . Dina Merrill's clothes in her new flim, "I'll Take Sweden," are dazzling preview audiences. And no studio costumes, they; every dress and suit is from her personal wardrobe.

British singing idol Dave Clark wound up handcuffed to an enterprising 13-year-old girl in Baltimore the other night. She had the manacles all set for the big moment when he passed her in the Emerson Hotel, and when he put out his hand for a quick shake, she slipped the cuffs on him and gleefully screamed, "I have no key, either!" It took all the security guards and a lock specialist from the local detective bureau more than half an hour to free Dave from his overzealous admirer. All they found out—before she ran away—was that her first name was Diane . . . Peter Ustinov will trek to London July 16 to see his beautiful young daughter, Tamara, portray "Alice in Wonderland" for the Oxford University Dramatic Society. She's racking up quite a bit of experience; last summer she toured the English provinces in "The Plough and the Stars" and before that she did a season of repertory in Istanbul.

One of Shubert Alley's favorite denizens, Celia the Autograph Collector, was the victim of the Meanest Crook of the Month the other night. While she was having a snack at a little restaurant near Broadway, someone swiped her most prized book of celebrity scrawls—a priceless collection of 200 signatures.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Ronnie Bunn, age 9, of Philadelphia, Pa., for his question:

How old would I be after 10 years speed-of-light space travel?

The young people who lived long ago never dreamed of this idea. But Andy gets many questions like this from his young readers of the Space Age. As they watch and wonder about the space program, ideas like this just seem to pop naturally into their heads.

The idea behind this question is a big one. It is a part of the whopping notion called relativity. This notion was worked out on paper in figures so complicated that only a few minds in the world could grasp it. But as the Space Age unfolds, spacemen leave this world. They leave behind our old ideas of time and distance. And some of our watching, wondering minds go with them. Strange questions pop into our heads.

Many of these questions about time and space were set forth in that complicated theory of relativity. They did not make sense until spacemen left the earth and its old ideas behind and needed new ideas. For example, in relativity we were told that time slows down as a spaceman travels faster. The space program has made a start at proving this idea to be correct.

Speed of Light Fantastic

The speed of light, of course, is fantastic. It is 186,000 miles a second or almost 670 million miles an hour. A few things in the universe can reach this speed, but certainly no spacecraft could do it. Relativity suggests that time slows down and finally stops at the speed of light. If you could travel at this speed, earth time would stand still for you. If you returned after 10 earth years of traveling at this impossible speed, you would be the same age as when you left.

Someday it just might be possible for ships to travel almost as fast as light. Suppose you left behind a twin brother while you took off at almost the speed of light to visit Sirius, the Dog Star. The distance is some 8½ light years, and your twin might expect to greet you back after 18 earth years. For you the time would slow down to a few months. On your return you would be just a few months older. Meantime the earth would have stayed on its old time schedule, and your twin brother would have aged 18 years.

This idea of time and speed is fantastic. It does not make sense to people whose minds cannot reach beyond our little world. But space-minded people will work on through many more earth years. And perhaps when you have lived enough earth years to become old, everyone in the world will take it for granted that this fantastic idea is the simple truth.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Mark Scripsick, age seven, of Kiawa, Kan., for his question:

What caused the Carlsbad Caverns?

These famous caves are in New Mexico, but they were not always there. The experts tell us that 200 million years ago this part of the world was covered by a shallow sea, and Carlsbad Caverns did not exist. The Rocky Mountains did not exist either. They began to grow about 60 million years ago. And this tremendous upheaval shifted the shape of the land far and wide.

It caused the floor of that ancient sea over New Mexico to rise up out of the water. As this happened, the tumbled water bashed, battered, sloshed and splashed. It pounded the rising ground and hollowed out caves and tunnels deep in the earth. When the lifting was done, the new dry land was left riddled with the underground holes we call Carlsbad Caverns.

Cool Off Before Buying

By JACK HUTTON

So you're looking forward to lying on the beach and you're wondering about buying that new floppy hat and the bathing suit and maybe a scooter on the time plan?

Well, don't or at least, not until you've cooled off for a few days.

I've never done this in the five years this column has appeared across Canada. But I'm urging you (yes, you, old friend) to sit back and take a look at the pressures on you to spend, spend and spend some more.

The so-called teen market now ranks second to none across North America. And entire companies of experts are devoted entirely to advising other companies how they can best persuade you to buy on impulse. The faster the better.

$10 Billions

The U.S. market, far larger than ours, estimates that close to 21,000,000 teen-agers spend roughly $10 billion a year. By 1971, the experts say, that spending will be up to 21 billion dollars.

You've noticed a change in advertising in the last year? More commercials and ads aimed at the younger market? Well, that's because the barons of finance have suddenly decided you're rich. When I say you I mean the buying public between the ages of 13 and 21.

And you can see how they must think. They're thinking of a market composed of people who usually have no groceries to buy, rent to pay or medical bills to meet, hardly any overhead at all. Practically all their money can be spending money.

In the U.S. last year (you can scale down the statistics to fit Canada) teen-age girls were only 12 per cent of all the females in the country. But they bought one-quarter of all the cosmetics sold in 1964.

And males shouldn't sniff in disdain. The male counterparts spent $1,200,000 on such items as hair ointments and skin tonics. That's a market no businessman can overlook.

The man who has made possibly the closest study of the market and its future—is Prof. Phillip R. Cateora, assistant professor of marketing at the University of Colorado. His statistics are also the most frightening.

Teen-age girls are only six per cent of the entire U.S. population. But Prof. Cateora is the man who discovered that they spend $320,000,000 every year on records. More than half of all records bought everywhere go to girls in this age bracket.

Prof. Cateora claims that he can see three dominant characteristics in this generation: A growing sense of independence from the family; complete conformity in their own group; and what he calls "a kind of romantic idealism."

The independence, he says, accounts for the support of vocal groups like the Beatles or the Animals who have obviously kicked over parental iinfluences. The conformity helps merchandisers to predict what will sell across the country. And the idealism, he says, accounts for the superlatives in teen jargon.

I talked to the sales manager of a large company this week on the basis that he not be identified. The reason he was talking, he said, was that three of his own children are in the teen market.

Status Search

"I don't know whether I'd agree with Prof. Cateora's three characteristics," he said. "The one characteristic I think of first is a search for status. Suddenly it's 'in' to wear blue raincoats in one high school. That's status at work.

"Everyone wants to be happy and well-liked by others. This desire, however, is possibly stronger in the years before 21 than at any other time of our lives.

"And it's pretty easy to be tempted by advertising that shows you young people having a whale of a time on a beach, well-tanned, handsome or pretty, clutching or wearing a particular product. You're subtly urged to think the product will do the same for you.

"There is nothing wrong with such advertising. But I try in my home to emphasize the dangers of impulse buying. The best advice is not to buy anything right away. Walk around the block. Go home.

"One thing I can tell your readers, and that is to expect even stronger pressures. That means developing your own self-discipline, sticking to some form of a budget, avoiding on-the-spot purchases that you may regret later."

You've been warned. Have a good summer—not one you'll be paying for next October.

"He is the fire of life itself, a piece of the sun in the shape of a man"—Time.

Dief Proposes Canada Make 100-Year Plan

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker called Wednesday for a constitutional conference this year or in 1966 to determine Canada's course for the next 100 years.

Mr. Diefenbaker told a combined Kitchener - Waterloo Kiwanis and Rotary Club meeting there are many divisions in Canada today — race pitted against race, province against province with suspicion taking the place of trust.

"We need a new picture of Canada," he said. "It is my hope that we as a nation will be able to agree to meet as did the fathers of Confederation to amend weaknesses, obliterate inequities and keep Canada united."

The Progressive Conservative leader also called on the federal and provincial governments to pay the cost of all new university buildings, their plants and equipment.

He suggested the federal government pay 75 per cent while the provinces pay 25 per cent of all university capital costs. He said this is the only way Canada will be able to stay abreast of changes in technology in an age of rapid industrial evolution.

"While national defence remains vital, education in today's world is the surest means of national survival. Canada's front line in the fight for national survival is in the classroom. Education must be a matter of national concern."

Hatemongers Denied Use Of the Mails

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster General Tremblay today confirmed the denial of mail services for two men and an organization found to be distributing hate literature against Jews.

Affected are David Stanley, 20, of Vancouver and formerly of Toronto, and John Ross Taylor, 52, national leader of the National Order, of Gooderham, Ont.

A review board which studied the case last month found the literature they were distributing through the mails constituted "an intemperate attack, condemnation and vilification of the Jewish faith itself and the Jewish people, and was abusive, insulting, insolent and offensive, both in language and content," an announcement from the post office said.

Mr. Tremblay used his powers as postmaster general in May to prohibit the use of the mails to the two men and the organization when he believed they were sending scurrilous material through the post office, contrary to the criminal code.

APPEAL FAILED

The two men appealed the order and a three-member board of review was established, holding a public hearing of the case here June 14-15. It ruled that the literature was scurrilous.

In the hearing, Mr Taylor submitted a pamphlet, The Protocol of The Elders of Zion, as evidence of a Jewish conspiracy to take over the world. A 1946 U.S. Senate subcommittee on internal security had found the protocol fraudulent.

John M. Bentley, counsel for the post office, told the inquiry that two other pamphlets distributed by the organization invited anyone who read them to attack the Jews.

But Mr. Taylor questioned what was meant by scurrilous in the criminal code. He asked whether free speech was being curtailed.

KIDNAPPING

Man Lurked In Area

By DON DINGWALL and TERRY IZZARD

LADYSMITH — Police are on the lookout for a mystery man seen lurking in the bushes outside the beachfront home of Mrs. Mary Knight, scene of a brutal kidnapping attempt Tuesday.

The man was spotted at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday by a neighbor of the Knight's, Mrs. Judy Jones.

It was around that time police believe 82-year-old Mrs. Knight was bound and gagged and hidden in a potting shed at the bottom of her garden.

Mother of two, Mrs. Jones was passing the Knight's secluded home when she noticed a red panel truck parked on the wrong side of the road.

As she drove past on the old Island highway she saw a man dressed in dark clothes standing beside the truck.

When he spotted her he darted into the bushes fronting the Knight home.

IN A HURRY

Said 33-year-old blonde Mrs. Jones; "I thought it was rather suspicious at the time.

"But I was in a hurry to get my car to the garage and I didn't give it another thought."

She recalled the incident when a friend rang up and told her of the kidnap attempt on Mrs. Knight.

Police have since taken a statement from her.

Said Mrs. Jones: "There have been some rather strange goings-on around here recently.

"Locks have been broken and gas stolen from garages."

Council recently installed street lights at the request of residents.

DOOR-TO-DOOR

Meanwhile, police began a door-to-door campaign in the Ladysmith area.

Plainclothes and uniformed officers were asking residents for information concerning strangers or cars seen near the Knight's beachfront home Tuesday morning.

The intensive search includes checking the registers of 38 hotels and motels between Chemainus and Wellington.

The search was sparked Tues

MURDER CHARGE

2 Desperados Free Hostages

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—A pair of desperate ex-convicts from Oregon released six hostages, including a 12-year-old Toronto boy, and continued their flight today to avoid capture for a two-day, 600-mile rampage that included bank robbery, murder and kidnapping.

Police say the two suspects, Carl Cletes Bowles, 24, and Wilfred M. Gray, 30, began a reign of terror with a $13,400 bank robbery in Portland Tuesday afternoon. They allegedly shot a deputy sheriff to death at Springfield, Ore., that night, abducted a Springfield, Ore. woman and her son early Wednesday, and then kidnaped four vacationers from Washington in the rugged mountains of central Oregon.

District Otforney William Frye filed an information this morning at Eugene, Ore., charging the two with first degree murder.

The search for the heavily-armed desperados shifted suddenly to northern California late last night when the six hostages were released unharmed in the Sacramento area.

The Springfield woman, Mrs. Shriely Corbin, 33, immediately notified Oregon authorities, who contacted the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The other hostages, in addition to Mrs. Corbin, included her son, Clinton, 12; Mr. and Mrs. Uldis Riekstins, Renton, Wash.; their son, Janis, 14, and Zanis Bauze, Toronto, Ont., who had been visiting the Riekstins.

They were held under heavy guard at a motel in nearby Woodland for questioning, but were released shortly after 6 a.m. this morning and departed immediately for Oregon in the Reikstins' pickup truck.

"It wasn't bad for us at all," Mrs. Corbin told newsmen be-

NEW HOSTAGE GRAB FEARED

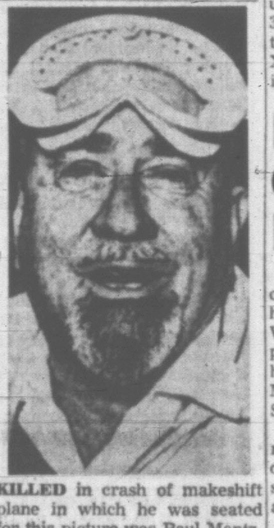
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) —The California highway patrol issued an all-points bulletin today for California finance director Hale Champion, his wife and their two-year-old daughter, missing from their Sacramento home.

A California highway patrol officer said the patrol was "concerned over the possibility" they might have been kidnapped by two ex-convicts now sought in the area for the slaying of an Oregon officer, a Portland bank robbery and the kidnapping of six hostages.

Capt. L. G. Wilillams said the bulletin was issued after Champion failed to arrive for a 9 a.m. appointment with Governor Edmund G. Brown.

Stand Kills Girl

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Muriel Fasthorse, 6, visiting relatives, died Wednesday after an iron flower-stand fell from a first-storey window and struck her on the head. Police said her three-year-old cousin accidentally dropped the stand from the window.



KILLED in crash of makeshift plane in which he was seated for this picture was Paul Mantz, 61, famed movie stunt pilot. He died near Yuma, Arizona, today while cameras recorded scene for the movie "The Flight of the Phoenix."

Dief Denounces Shift In Eskimo Authority

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker today denounced the transfer of the administration of Eskimos in Quebec to the Quebec government.

(See story page 6.)

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Eskimos were being "pushed around" as though they were "political chattels." He said it was a "scandalous perversion" of Eskimo rights, by Prime Minister Pearson.

He said, "The Eskimo people must be given the right of self-determination. They are constitutionally a responsibility of the federal government, whether or not they become subject to provincial control."

Mr. Diefenbaker suggested this was "another under-the-table deal" made by the prime minister. He said that Wednesday the prime minister could not remember what he and Premier Jean Lesage had talked about "until his memory had been shaken up."

"The minister of northern affairs has been honorable and fair in this matter, stating that nothing would be done without the consent of the Eskimos. Does this mean that the minister has been overruled?" asked Mr. Diefenbaker.

In Quebec, Premier Lesage said that "Mr. Pearson has simply confirmed what I said" in the legislature.

"Did you think this business would not be settled when Mr. Pearson and I had taken it in hand?" he asked.

Reading through a report of what Mr. Pearson said at his press conference on the subject of the Eskimos, Mr. Lesage made comments such as "That's true," "That's what I told you" and "That's right."

Wilson Emissary Flies to Hanoi

Allies Fight Together

SAIGON (Reuters)—An Allied brigade began to withdraw from the Viet Cong jungle stronghold of zone-D today, after killing an estimated 100 guerrillas in three days.

There were reports of increasing Viet Cong guerrilla strength, in the area invaded by two American, one Australian and one South Vietnamese battalions.

Unconfirmed American casualties were four dead and four wounded. The Australians have suffered three wounded.

The Viet Cong are believed to have 8,000 fighting men in the zone, only 35 miles north of Saigon at its nearest point.

Just outside zone-D, the Viet Cong ambushed a government battalion 37 miles northwest of Saigon today, and a U.S. spokesman said most of the battalion apparently was wiped out.

The battalion, reported to be under the normal strength of 300, was ambushed while trying to relieve a besieged outpost at Xom Dua in Binh Duong province.

NATO Talks On Viet Next Week

OTTAWA (CP) — A meeting of the NATO council will be held in Paris next week with Viet Nam expected to be the prime topic, it was learned here today. External Affairs Minister Martin will leave here Sunday for the meeting.

Though the meeting is a regular one of NATO's council of permanent ambassadors, several foreign ministers will attend.

It is understood that Undersecretary of State George Ball will represent the United States.

The foreign ministers of France, Italy, West Germany, and The Netherlands as well as of Canada will likely attend.

Mr. Martin will be accompanied by only one adviser, assistant undersecretary Basil Robinson.

Liberal MP Gets Boot From Party

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Pearson today ousted Yvon Dupuis, Liberal Member of Parliament for St. Johns-Napierville facing charges of influence peddling, from the Liberal party.

Pearson also repeated that he'd hoped for quick action on the federal-provincial investigation into the posibility of laying criminal charges as a result of the Dorion report.

Dupuis, former minister without portfolio, Wednesday was committed for trial this fall on a charge of influence-peddling—allegedly accepting $10,000 to use his influence in a bid to get a race track franchise in his riding.

He was quoted in a Montreal paper today as saying he will seek re-election to the Commons.

"I will continue to be a Member of Parliament," said Dupuis, "and following the conclusion of the present case, I will offer myself as a candidate for my constituency."

GETS ANNOYED

Referring to the story and obviously annoyed by it, Pearson said:

"Any Canadian can seek nomination at any convention. But if Mr. Dupuis stands for elec-

Great Train Robber Now Great Escapee

LONDON (UPI) — One of Britain's "Great Train Robbers" escaped from a London prison today with three other convicts after a fight with guards and the capture of a hostage. The fugitives fled in a fleet of getaway cars.

The escape apparently centred around Ronald A. Biggs, serving a 30-year sentence for his part in robbing the Glasgow-to-London Royal Mail train of $6.3 million in bank notes Aug. 8, 1963. The escape was as well planned and executed as the robbery itself.

Because another of the great train robbers had escaped in an equally intricate fashion special guards had been posted for Biggs. But he fled the prison today in this series of events:

—An accomplice threw a rope ladder and a tubular steel ladder into the prison exercise yard.

—The prisoners fought off guards and scurried over the wall onto the top of a waiting furniture van.

The prisoners slipped through a hole in the roof of the van into the vehicle while an accomplice held a prison officer hostage on top of the van with a gun at his back.

The men then jumped out of the van and scrambled across the road to one blue and two green cars which then streaked away.

Row Erupts In Commons

(Times News Services)

LONDON — Prime Minister Harold Wilson told Parliament today he has sent one of his junior ministers to Hanoi "to get a dialogue started" with the Communists on possible Viet Nam peace talks.

Wilson said the serious crisis in Viet Nam "should be brought for negotiations to the conference table."

Wilson identified his emissary as junior minister Harold Davies, joint parliamentary secretary at the Ministry of Pensions and National Insurance.

He is described as having friendly relations with North Vietnamese leader Ho Chi Minh.

Davies was a member of a parliamentary delegation which visited North Viet Nam in 1957.

Diplomatic officials here were skeptical of the chances of success of the mission.

The move was seen as an indication of Wilson's determination not to give up his plans for a Commonwealth peace mission on the Viet Nam crisis. Hanoi, Peking and Moscow have rejected such a proposal.

Last week Davies, 61, was approached by two North Vietnamese journalists with a suggestion that he should visit Hanoi. The journalists are accredited in London.

DETAILS SECRET

He left London earlier this week, en route to Laos and Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital. Details were kept secret until today.

It was reported that members of the Commonwealth peace mission were consulted and they agreed to the project.

Uproar broke out in Parliament today when Prime Minister Wilson and Opposition Leader Sir Alec Douglas-Home clashed over the mission.

Douglas-Home asked Wilson to say whether the United States was consulted first and stressed the dangers of any tendency toward appeasement in the Viet Nam crisis.

The row broke out on both sides of the lower chamber when Wilson started to retort: "Should there be any question of my wanting lessons in appeasement, I know who . . . ."

His voice was drowned by the uproar before he could finish his sentence.

Douglas-Home, as Lord Dunglass, was with Neville Chamberlain when the then British prime minister went to Munich in 1938 for talks with Hitler.

CALLED 'SWINE'?

A fresh outburst came when a Labor government supporter claimed a Conservative backbencher had called the prime minister "you swine."

After the speaker intervened, Wilson said the United States and all other interested parties were told of the flight to Hanoi by 61-year-old Harold Davies, a parliamentary secretary to the pensions ministry.

The prime minister said: "It will be his job there . . . to make plain what the purpose of the Commonwealth mission is, and to get a dialogue started."

Girl, 9, Snatched By Bandit

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—A 9-year-old girl who was sleeping near the office of a motel operated by her grandparents was kidnapped early today by a gunman who robbed the motel of $230.

Red-haired Denise Clinton of nearby Independence, Mo., was apparently seized by a bandit who robbed the grandmother shortly after 2 a.m.

No one saw the girl being abducted. But she was missing immediately after the robbery and police Lt. Elza Hatfield said "There is nothing to conclude except she has been kidnapped."

The gunman, a white man with short brown hair wearing a light blue sport shirt, rang the night bell to awaken Dorothy Reynolds, the child's grandmother. Mrs. Reynolds got a card for the man to register but he laid a gun on the counter and said "I want your money."

BOUND BOTH

The bandit forced Mrs. Reynolds, about 50, to go to a back room where her husband Chelsea was sleeping. He bound them both with adhesive tape he had brought with him and left them lying on a bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds worked their way free and went to the office to call police. Then they discovered Denise, who had been sleeping on a divan less than 10 feet from the office where the robbery occurred, was missing.

Police said it was likely the bandit came across her on his way out and decided on impulse to take her.

If she screamed, her cries were not heard by other guests in the motel.

Denise, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Russell Clinton of Independence, was spending the week with her grandparents.

OTTAWA TO SPEND $148 MILLION

CAUSEWAY, TUNNEL, BRIDGE

Prince Edward Island to Be Linked to Mainland

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson announced today that tenders will be called later this year for a combined tunnel, bridge and causeway between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Construction is expected to start next April and, Mr. Pearson said at a press conference, he hopes it will be completed in late 1970.

The cost is estimated at $148,000,000.

The federal government will bear the entire cost.

The prime minister said the "massive" undertaking will include a three-mile bridge, nearly a mile of underwater tunnel and five miles of causeway.

The nine-mile link between Jourimain Island, N.B., and Port Borden, P.E.I., will include both rail and highway facilities.

Mr. Pearson said the first tender will be called in December for the New Brunswick land approaches. This would be followed by tenders for the bridge piers, the tunnel, other causeway sections, the Prince Edward Island land approach and the steel bridge superstructure.

The prime minister said that no similar project had ever been attempted where tidal, weather and ice conditions were so severe.

He said the highway section of the link is designed to accommodate four lanes of traffic but that present plans call for the use of only two lanes. It would cost an additional $10,000,000 to convert the highway to four lanes later.

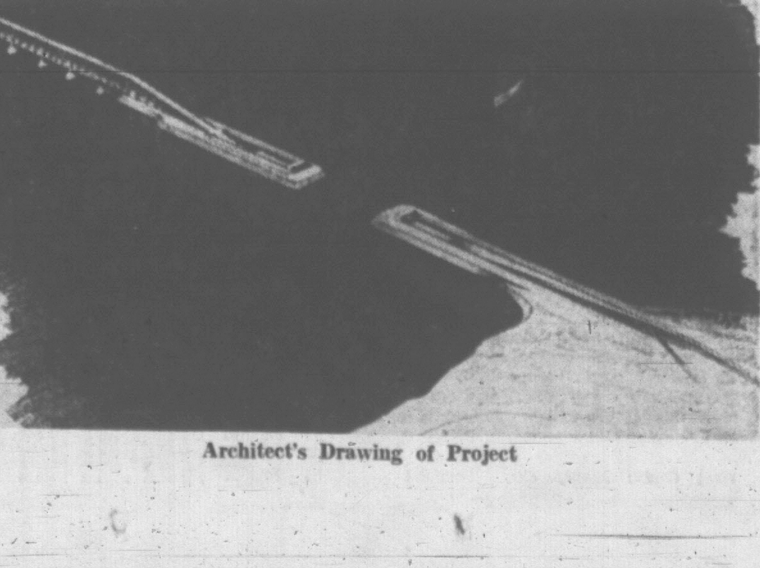
The project will begin at the New Brunswick shore with a 13,000-foot causeway supporting the railway line at an elevation of 26 feet. The highway will be on a structure above the rails at an elevation of 59 feet.

This section will lead to the 16,000-foot bridge which will carry the rail line at an elevation of 60 feet and the highway at 114 feet. This bridge section will connect with another 7,000 feet of causeway, then the tunnel and finally a 5,000-foot section of causeway to the P.E.I. shore.

The intention to build the causeway was first announced by former Conservative prime minister Diefenbaker during the 1962 federal election campaign.

Mr. Pearson said the decision to call tenders was followed by studies by the fisheries department which indicated that neither the lobster nor oyster fisheries would be adversely affected.

The decision to proceed fulfilled what many considered to be part of the terms under which P.E.I. entered Confederation.



Architect's Drawing of Project

U.S. Denies Firm Grab In Europe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A high administration official has sought to calm European fears that U.S. corporate giants are threatening to devour European industry.

Assistant commerce secretary Andrew F. Brimmer said that while "quite a few" European companies have been bought up with American money, by far the greater part of the dollars invested in Europe have gone to set up new companies or to expand firms already established well before World War Two.

"On the whole, the U.S. share of total European industry is quite small and is not growing at a rate much out of line with over-all growth in Europe," Brimmer said. His remarks were contained in a speech prepared for delivery before the American Club of Paris.

Some Europeans, French President Charles de Gaulle among them, have expressed dismay over what they describe as the "expropriation" of European industry by U.S. money.

But Brimmer noted that Europeans have about $33 billion invested in the United States—some $6 billion more than Americans have invested in Europe.

He said that in 1963 European affiliates of U.S. companies accounted for only about 7.5 per cent of Europe's total investment in new plants and equipment. He admitted, however, that in some industries, the proportion is "much higher."

WINNIPEG (CP) — Most prices were firm today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in light trade.

There was some shipping demand in oats accompanied by reports of a modest sale to Europe. Barley trade was light.

Oilseeds were fairly steady despite declines in Chicago soybeans. A 1,500-ton sale of rapeseed to Italy was reported. Flax was slightly easier.

Rye moved narrowly in spite of losses at Chicago.

CHICAGO (AP) — Old crop soybean futures ranged from strong to weak today in active transactions on the board of trade but all other contracts started and remained weak most of the time.

July Soybeans traded about two cents a bushel higher to around four cents a bushel lower by early afternoon with speculators liquidaitng long positions, then selling short and buying those commitments back on the decline.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Whoops! Now N.Y. Is Up But Vancouver Declines

The New York stock market suddenly turned around and mounted a sharp gain late this afternoon.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials spurted four points in an hour.

Polaroid, up more than two points, appeared headed for the top of the day's most active list.

Volume for the day was estimated at 4,020,000 shares compared with 3,030,000 Wednesday.

AT VANCOUVER most issues declined in early trading.

Aluminum hit a new low of $28.62, a drop of 62 cents on 150 shares.

On the mining list, Continental Potash slipped two cents to .38 on 1,500 shares. New Imperial dropped .02 to .18. Dundee gained .02 to .59 on 7,000 shares.

Futurity was the only issue on the oil board to be traded. It dropped .03 to .41 on 4,500 shares.

AT TORONTO the main list trimmed earlier drops but was still down from Wednesday's close in light mid-afternoon stock exchange dealings today.

The 87-stock industrial index, a barometer of the group's health, fell more than a point at noon but recovered slightly.

Speculative trading perked up somewhat but prices were lower.

AT MONTREAL stocks continued to drop in moderate trading toward 2 p.m. today.

Industrial volume was 73,400 and mines and oils 501,500.

AT LONDON the stock market was quiet in light trading today.

Dollar stocks drifted lower, reflecting the early trend in the New York stock market. Canadian stocks losing a point or more were Abitibi, Algoma, Aluminium, British American Oil, Canadian Husky, Consolidated Paper, Imperial Oil, International Nickel, Massey-Ferguson and Trans-Canada Pipe Line.

Hollinger managed a slight gain but among the rails Canadian Pacific was nearly two points lower.

RUSSIANS SHIFTING TOWARD CAPITALISM

MOSCOW (UPI)—Russia took a giant step today toward basing its industry on the profit motive.

A high official of the Russian federation announced that profits and sales will govern all consumer goods production in Moscow and Leningrad, the nation's two largest cities.

Quota production—the output of masses of shabby goods to meet a quantitative target—is out, the Supreme Soviet (Parliament) of the federation was told. Quality production—the manufacture of attractive, fast-selling goods to turn a profit from increasingly choosy shoppers—is in.

One newspaper said the rapidly-growing experiment should be expanded to include heavy industry as well as consumer goods.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Mining Fraternity To Watch Experts

By JIM HUME
Business Editor

When Andrew Robertson and Morris Black start prowling the south end of the Island late this August their every move will be watched by B.C.'s mining fraternity.

Hume

Both men have a reputation for getting things done, for tackling the impossible and making it pay. Past efforts have made them extremely wealthy men with more than enough money to gracefully retire. But both love the challenge and gamble of exploration and development so much that they have no intention of shucking the harness.

Not yet, anyway. Not until they have checked 3,000 acres of reputedly hot property somewhere "on the south end of the Island but not on the west coast."

Like oil men, prospectors are reticent until their discoveries are well established and sewed up tight.

Both men are well known in mine and market circles for their brilliant coup at Endako—a long rejected property. Both have been tagged as lucky by their critics, men who struck it rich by good fortune rather than ability and effort.

CAREFUL LOOK

Let's take a look at Andrew Robertson and see how the criticism stands up.

Born in 1902 in Victoria, educated through high school in local schools and a graduate engineer from McGill, Andy, as he is affectionately known in the business, took his first crack at mining in 1926 in northern Quebec.

Like most of us he had some lean years but by 1956 The Northern Miner, the ready-reference for all who try to wrestle wealth from the ground, had this to say about him:

"Among the mining fraternity of northern Quebec he is known as 'Handy Andy.'

"Among Toronto's mine-makers and financiers he rates as a brilliant engineer, quick to grasp implications of a situation and instantly ready with a sound answer. His personality is a combination of warm friendliness and cold efficiency.

"He is not only a man of the slide rule but a true pioneer and scout of mining. Since 1926 Andrew Robertson the engineer, miner, prospector, geologist, metalurgist and executive, has travelled throughout northern Canada by dog team, canoe, plane and helicopter, snowshoes and on foot . . . As a young engineer Andy developed a keen sense of cost consciousness when he worked on the team that brought Howey Gold Mines at Red Lake into profitable production as Canada's lowest grade gold mine . . ."

MAKES PROFIT

Since 1956 Andy has established a whole string of successes similar to the Red Lake effort. Whether by design or chance his lot in life appears to be the taking of ailing properties to whip into profit-making organizations.

Endako, to date, is his crowning glory.

Discovered in 1927 by prospectors Charles Foote and Alfred Langdon and named the Stella Mine after a friend of Mr. Langdon, the property lay more or less dormant until 1961 when rugged "Handy Andy" paid his first visit to the area roughly 100 miles west of Prince George.

Throughout the years many companies had taken a look at Stella, or Endako as it is now known. All had rejected it.

Talking to Mr. Robertson earlier this week I asked him what convinced him that Endako was worth developing.

"Exploration isn't all geology and engineering know-how," he answered. "There's a matter of personality. It may sound silly, but it is very important that you have the right personality. I looked at Endako in 1961 and came out without all the answers but intrigued enough to want to go in there with equipment and find the answers."

LARGE MINE

The rest is history. Andy Robertson looked, Morris Black the financier believed his report and set about organizing the necessary capital. The result was the second largest molybdenum mine in the world.

Before coming to Victoria in August both men hope to have more molybdenum news to report. This month Utica Mines Ltd., of which Mr. Robertson is managing director, will be diamond drilling close to the Endako property.

Utica, based in Keremeos where Mr. Robertson has just reactivated the famed Horn Silver mine, holds properties adjacent to Endako where the main moly seam runs east and west.

Though involving the same principals, Utica is an independent company standing or falling on its own merits.

NEEDS MONEY

Mr. Black says the mining speculator needs "courage and money to be a success." Mr. Robertson, ever practical, growls, "Yeah, and you need ore, too. Courage and money aren't much good without that."

At Endako they had all three. In August they bring courage and the money to the Island to look for the third ingredient. If they find it we can look for startling developments in our own backyard.

Pickets Up In Clash Of Unions

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—Longshoremen Wednesday picketed a pulp mill and construction site after an inter-union dispute over unloading structional steel from two barges.

The longshoremen were protesting the use of ironworkers to unload steel from Commonwealth Construction Company barges, claiming it was the work of longshoremen.

Their picket lines block two entrances to Columbia Cellulose Company's pulp mill, and the entrance to the construction site where the steel was to be used for a Skeena Kraft Limited plant.

Ironworkers have said they will not handle the steel if it is unloaded by longshoremen.

Europe Expansion

VANCOUVER (CP)—MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited is considering purchase of additional manufacturing facilities in Europe, company chairman J. V. Clyne said Wednesday. Mr. Clyne said in an interivew the company is studying the prospects in Great Britaind and the European Common Market of "pulp and paper and that sort of thing." He said the ventures are near-term "in the sense of a year being near," but declined further comment.

Arthur Mayse

Last week in this corner, I told you how a carload of night-riders slipped in between police patrols to hurrah a campful of vacationing families at Ivy Green provincial park between Ladysmith and Nanaimo.

The next night, at a private camping and trailer park north along the Island Highway, beered-up motorcyclists from Alberni district turned the trip to the outdoor privies into a gauntlet of hoots, catcalls and shouted obscenities for women and girls.

A few days later, when we checked in at Englishmen's River provincial park, we observed that several roads were barricaded with steel-wire logging lines stretched between fir trees.

"We're varnishing tables," a parks branch hand explained amiably, "and we don't want people using them."

Uh-huh. But, since steel-wire is hardly required to turn back honest campers, a more sinister reason presents itself!

★ ★ ★

These are minor incidents?

I very much doubt that the camp operator at White Rock would agree. You read about him a few days ago . . . he's the man who, when all else failed, protected his paying guests, his property and his life by turning a revolver on a hoodlum gang.

The plain fact, which I have no intention of soft-peddling, is that our parks have been in trouble for several years, and that the remedies so far applied have not been effective.

I do not suggest that any family call off a camping holiday because of this fact. But in honesty, you must add to the normal hazards of your trip the possibility of such hoodlum roustings as I have detailed above.

Should you find yourself in the middle of one, please disregard any impulse to be a lion. Stay with your family.

In the unlikely event that you get a look at a face or a set of licence numbers, give your information to the police later. Otherwise, sit tight: you're out to enjoy yourself, remember, not to risk a mauling.

BUT . . .

When you get home, shake up your provincial member. Tell the newspapers by letter or telephone. Because something concrete has to be done about this nuisance, and only by hollering loud and long enough will we get it cleaned up.

★ ★ ★

I don't see what a private park operator can do except deal with mass invasion by the off-scourings of some nearby town as best he can, meanwhile hoping the law will be prompt.

Where our provincial parks are concerned, however, it's a different story. Those are government property, paid for by our taxes; and for them, besides such protection as the police are able to afford, we should demand the prevention which is very much better than futile attempts at cure.

I'm convinced each provincial camping park needs a full-time, armed attendant quartered as close to the entrance as possible.

I think a locked gate, preferably of the heavy-duty tubular steel type used by loggers to guard their access roads, is essential.

And, much as I detest the idea, I feel the time has come when a park curfew must be enforced, with late admissions made at the discretion of the attendant.

Perhaps there are happier solutions. I hope so. But to delay is to court a bad name for our parks system, and to force a return to a condition we can get along handsomely without.

This is gun law, a form of anarchy in which men transfer their trust from official protective agencies to the weapons in their hands.

Ridiculous? I don't think so. Nor is any man likely to who has listened helpless while the faceless, nameless parkbusters make the night hideous.

Or who, later, has heard the sound that follows these raids. This is the crying of scared children who don't like camping any more. What they want, and all they want, is to go home.

ON TARGET are Constable Peter Bridgewood and Detective Alex Briggs, both of Victoria, as 46th annual Victoria Police Shoot winds up today. It began Wednesday at Thetis Lake Range with 60 entries from Pacific Northwest and California, in 12 events. Banquet ends proceedings tonight when winners in various contests receive awards and prizes.

More Instant Towns

Incorporation Plans Announced

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell today said he expects four more "instant towns" to be created in the next three months, three of them on Vancouver Island.

He listed them as Kelsey Bay, Port McNeil, Port Hardy and Hudson Hope.

Earlier this year, Gold River, on the west coast of the Island, became the first to win letters patent as a regular community under the "instant town" legislation adopted this year for isolated resource communities.

"It's just a question of the administrative load in getting out the letters patent to these other four," Mr. Campbell said. "I think we'll have them by the end of September.

"And by that time there no doubt will be four or five more petitions for establishment of these towns"

'Conscience Bothered' Safe Thief

A man with a record for armed robbery and assault pleaded guilty in city police court today to stealing a safe containing $76 Tuesday night.

Ernest Falconer, 711 Johnson St., was remanded until Friday morning for sentence. The safe was stolen from Blue Bird Cabs Ltd., 708 Johnson.

He was arrested at 1:30 a.m. today when he called police to his room "because his conscience was bothering him," court was told.

Const. Ivan Purdy testified Falconer broke a window in the rear of the cab company at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Then he returned with two other men and a truck to remove the safe at 11:30 p.m.

SAFE RECOVERED

But the safe fell from the truck as it made a left turn at Johnson and Blanshard streets. Police have recovered the get-away vehicle and the safe.

The safe was spotted falling from the truck by service station attendant Bob Dunsmuir, 94 West Maddock, who notified police.

City detectives said today they are searching for a third member of the gang.

Clifford Piper, 3943 Bridge St., Wednesday in court elected trial by judge and jury when charged with possession of the stolen safe.

Carr Exhibition Starts Tuesday

The annual summer exhibition of works by Emily Carr at Greater Victoria Art Gallery will be held from Tuesday to Sept. 12.

This year the works will be drawn from the Trust Collection and from the gallery's own collection.

Careless Drivers

In city court today:

Torie Carlson, 1320 Douglas, went through red light June 19 at Bay and Blanshard and was involved in a collision, fined $45.

Jose Costa Brum, 2539 Asquith, rear-end collision June 25 on Douglas St. near Market, fined $40, licence suspended.

David Jenkins, 3481 Plymouth, collided with another auto June 10 after making a U-turn at Dallas Rd. and Ontario St., fined $40.

Douglas Allan Bratt, 1136 Summit, rear-end collision June 18 at Hillside and Doncaster, fined $40.

WITHIN A WHISKER of top scores is Rick Flanagan, a college student from Van Nuys, Calif., who is on a shooting tour prior to entry in U.S. national matches. With him, with ear-protectors, is Sgt. Mary Stowe of Seattle police department, who also is classified as a sharpshooter.

DON'T GET FRESH with Mary Frazer of Vancouver police. She handles a pistol like an expert and also is classed as a sharpshooter. (Times photos by Irving Strickland.)

FOR HUNTERS

Gun-Handling Test Starts Next Year

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said today written tests will start next year to bar potentially dangerous hunters.

Mr. Kiernan said the gun-handling test will be given to persons applying for the first time for hunting licences. He said failure of the test will mean denial of a hunting permit.

Mr. Kiernan said the test was provided for in the last session of the legislature in amendments to the British Columbia Game Act.

The form of the test was not immediately known but game department officials said it probably would resemble the province's multiple-choice drivers' examination.

BOOKLET PREPARED

Mr. Kiernan said a gun-safety booklet is being prepared and will contain the necessary information to pass the test.

"If a persont comes close to failing the test, he will probably have to take a practical field test and satisfy the examiner that he knows how to handle his weapons," he said.

The test would also be given to persons committing a breach of the Game Act, whether or not such a person is a novice hunter.

Mr. Kiernan said statistics showed the majority of accidents involve persons in the 16-25 age group.

"Act amendments are designed to reduce the accident rate in this age group," he said.

There were 10 firearms fatalities in 1964, compared with five in 1963 and the number of injuries increased from three to 11.

Fire Crisis Easing But Hazard Still High

Lightning Strikes Troublesome

Rain over much of B.C.'s northern forests helped keep large fires in check overnight but also brought dozens more spot blazes following lightning strikes, a forest service official reported today.

Fifty-seven blazes were reported this morning, half of them in the parched Kamloops region.

All told there are 140 fires burning in the province with 626 firefighters battling them. Most of the men are involved in a 8,000-acre fire near Fort Nelson and a 6,000-acre fire at Watson Lake in the Prince George forest district.

"Scattered rains fell on both and these fires are quiet now," said the official. "The men have been able to ring one with a guard and have a partial fire guard developed around the other."

Ten of the new fires occurred in the Vancouver forest district, which includes all of Vancouver Island.

RUBBISH FIRE

Two spot fires broke out in the Duncan area, one spreading from a garbage dump burning operation at Maple Bay and the other caused by a rubbish fire at Shawnigan Lake. Neither was considered serious.

Other fires were reported at Pemberton, Thurston Bay, Harrison, and Hope in the Vancouver forest district.

"Things are quieter today," the official said. "There have been no water bombers in the air today except for one helicopter. However our air patrols may spot more lightning strikes before night."

Not all the fires have been blamed on nature or human carelessness.

In Ladysmith, 19-year-old John Aitken was charged Wednesday with arson after three small fires were investigated.

The Forest Service spokesman said experience shows some forest fires are set by persons wanting the $1.25 per hour work of fighting them but wherever arson is suspected persons from outside areas are hired so it is not worthwhile for would-be fire-fighters to set blazes.

The hazard has dropped back reduced a notch in most areas despite dry winds in the south part of the province.

Wind Damage To City Trees Totals $1,500

Wind-wrought damage amounting to $1,500 has been done to boulevard and park trees in Victoria in the last few days, parks administrator Herbert Warren estimated today.

He said most of the loss has involved young trees recently leafed out and not yet sturdy enough to carry a full head of foliage in the face of gale winds.

Other damage has been to older trees whose limbs have been torn by wind force.

Windy weather has also meant desiccation of park lawns, shrubs and flower beds.

Juvenile Kicked After Argument

An 18-year-old who kicked a juvenile in the face following an argument pleaded guilty in city court today to a charge of assault.

Carl Walker, 412 Superior, became involved in an argument with another youth at Scholefield Roller Rink June 25.

Later, as they were leaving, he kicked him on the left side of the face, breaking skin around the cheekbone and blackening his eye.

Walker was remanded to July 16 for pre-sentence report and sentence.

Former fruit-packing shed was reduced to charred ruin.

Youth Charged With Arson In Shed Fire

A juvenile has been charged with arson in connection with a $3,000 shed fire in the Gordon Head area this morning.

The shed, located at the corner of Tyndall Ave. and San Juan, is owned by contractor Ross W. Payne of Victoria.

Police estimated the value of the building at $1,500 and its contents of building supplies at another $1,500.

The fire was started underneath the front porch and old newspapers were used to kindle the blaze.

Saanich fire department received the alarm at 6:14 a.m. from a grocery store across the street and brought the blaze under control by 7:30 a.m.

TOTAL LOSS

The building, formerly used for fruit storage, is considered a total loss.

Meanwhile, recent hot, dry weather has kept Greater Victoria firemen busy dousing grass fires.

City firemen fought three Wednesday afternoon and another early today. Saanich firemen were also busy.

Two fires were in Beacon Hill Park, one near noon at the north end of the park and another about 5:30 p.m. near the world's tallest totem pole.

Other fires were at the intersection of Catherine and Wilson and early today at 55 Dock St.

Saanich firemen soaked a grass blaze on Alderley Wednesday afternoon.

Sidney Asks To Join Metro Group

Application by Sidney Village commission to join Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee was received at city hall today.

It is the first outside area to apply for representation on the committee, formed to discuss and provide guidance on matters of mutual significance in the immediate capital region.

But in view of Sidney's isolation from the nearest existing member of the committee—the municipality of Saanich—it is uncertain whether the village would be admitted on a formal, voting basis.

Central Saanich municipality and the unorganized area of North Saanich lie between Sidney and Saanich.

Central Saanich is connected with the intermunicipal committee only with respect to a joint capital region sewer study being undertaken with provincial government participation. North Saanich, being unorganized, does not qualify for membership.

The committee consists of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt representatives, who are elected persons delegated by councils and usually including the mayor and reeves.

The "weaker sex" are desperately wanted by the United Empire Loyalists.

Mrs. Olive Wilson, who is re-establishing the organization in Victoria, says that response for members has been overwhelming, but the majority of applications has been from women.

"We need men in the organization," she said, "especially someone capable of taking over as president. Let's face it, we can't get along without them."

Pride In Housework Gone—Creativity a Substitute

MONTREAL (CP)—So much of the creative side of housework is gone that today's woman needs a way to express herself apart from her house and children, says Montreal playwright Maxime Fleischman.

"Our grandmothers had more dignity than our young married women have today. They knew their work mattered as a contribution to their family's comfort. That pride has been taken away from women of my generation."

Pride in creative cooking and sewing is gone, leaving chores like dusting, cleaning and ironing—"necessary but hardly creative jobs."

"I think a woman needs something of her own, something she has created with her own hands and her own intellect.

"Writing plays gives me an extra involvement in everything and everybody I meet. It gives me that extra stimulant I personally need to enjoy my role in life. Above all, it gives me satisfaction."

Mother of three children ranging from 10 months to 11 years, the 32-year-old Mrs. Fleischman says she first tried singing and acting but turned to writing for the theatre after her marriage.

Most of her writing is done in exercise books on the kitchen table after the children go to bed. "But when I'm involved in a play I can write anywhere, anytime."

As More Mothers Go to Work

CITY NEEDS DAY NURSERIES

The urgent need for a community organized day nursery has sparked a considerable amount of controversy among parents, kindergarten teachers and citizens in Victoria. Today and tomorrow, a two part series on the question will appear on the women's pages.

By JUDY CREIGHTON

The care and welfare of children of working mothers is becoming more and more a problem, both on the individual and community level.

As increasing numbers of married women with children in this country are entering the labor force every year, so the need of having baby sitters on a daily basis becomes more urgent.

'Situations Wanted' columns in newspapers often advertise day care in private homes, but the number is negligible as the number of working mothers increases.

In several major cities in Canada, central day nurseries have been established to which parents can take their pre-schoolers, but as yet, there is no such nursery in Victoria.

It is becoming less and less possible for the mother of tiny tots to get a qualified baby sitter to come into her home, and even if she does succeed, her own wages on an average basis rarely make it worthwhile, by the time she has paid for the help.

Gordon Wright, executive director of the Family and Children's Service feels there is a real need for the day nursery in this city.

However, Mr. Wright is more concerned with the low income family where a mother must work to assist the income.

"The local privately-owned kindergartens for the preschool children serve most adequately those parents who can afford to pay, but the Family and Children's Service are deeply aware of the situations where mothers of tiny children have to work," he said.

During the past few months the service has been working on a scheme for day care for children in specially selected homes in which several youngsters would be looked after so that the mother of a low income family could work.

"Though this is only in the embryo stage" said Mr. Wright, "we are confident that such a program will be available."

The cost?

Mr. Wright explained that these day care homes would have to be subsidized by government and individuals as all other agency services.

"Where possible, the parents could pay a small amount—but it is hoped that subsidies would cover the cost." On the subject of a single organized nursery, Mr. Wright does not see such an establishment being set up in the near future.

In cities where day nurseries are available, a trained staff is on hand to give the children adequate care. The nurseries come under provincial health and welfare jurisdiction and staff includes social workers, nurses, preschool teachers and volunteer workers. They are federally, provincially and privately subsidized but in most places parents must pay a fee.

Head of the Victoria Community Welfare Council, Jack Anguish feels that day nurseries serve a need only for the sake of the children when proper care is lacking. "Except for truly dire cases of need in a family, where mother must work, I am very much against this present "feminine mystique" attitude, which is really a feminine mistake on the part of today's mother," he said.

Mr. Anguish stressed great concern with what is happening to the fabric of family life due to women of higher income brackets going back to work. "Maybe I am old fashioned" he said, "but I am most concerned with children being brought up by somebody else."

WITH PLASTIC SURGERY

Bigger Eyes, Bosoms New Japanese Craze

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japanese girls trying to emulate Western charms are paying for wider eyes and bigger bosoms.

The answer is plastic surgery —from 20,000 yen ($56) at a time.

Enlargement of the eyes to Western proportions is eagerly sought by office girls, bar hostesses, princesses and wives of cabinet ministers.

So are operations to enlarge flat noses and meagre busts.

Although the original inspiration came from a general desire to look like Elizabeth Taylor, most girls today put down their money for a 15-minute operation simply because they believe it makes them more beautiful or because it is the fashion.

Operations under local anaesthetic to convert single lids into double, thus raising them and rounding the eye, make women look younger and prettier, said Dr. Fumio Umezawa, director of the Jujin Hospital in Tokyo, leader in plastic surgery in Japan.

"The women treated here become happier and more joyful as they discard their inferiority complexes," he said.

"When women are confident of themselves they look prettier.

"To beautify women by measures endorsed by science also benefits men and therefore society itself."

About 40 women a day visit his hospital for eye transformations. Most of them are girls between 19 and 25.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. M. Laughlin thanked Mrs. E. Webster, retiring president, on behalf of the other members, and presented her with the past president's pin.

Hail Batters Kootenay Town Damage Heavy

YMIR, B.C. (CP) — A freak summer storm with high winds, heavy rain and hailstones the size of golf balls slammed into this tiny town of Ymir, near Nelson, Wednesday.

Damage from the storm is estimated at several thousand dollars in ruined gardens, broken windows, washed out roads and dented automobiles.

The hailstones pitted paint jobs on automobiles, and several of them ripped through the tops of convertibles.

The roofs of several buildings were damaged by the hail, which covered the ground to a depth of six inches at the storm's height.

"Some of the hailstones were about the size of large marbles, and each time the hail began the stones were bigger and bigger," said Mrs. Muriel Anderson.

Trailers Clobbered

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — Hail stones as large as baseballs pounded the Medicine Hat area Wednesday, smashing greenhouses, ruining crops and causing an estimated $10,000 damage to 17 vacation trailers.

The storm cut a swath seven miles wide and about 15 miles deep as it came in from the northwest Wednesday afternoon lasting about 25 minutes.

Three commercial greenhouse operations at Redcliffe, three miles northwest of here, reported almost total damage to glass and greenhouse crops.

Gardens in Medicine Hat and Redcliffe were flattened and cars and houses damaged. One of the hardest hit areas was the municipal airport where the trailers were parked.

Power Cut In Interior

QUESNEL (CP)—An electrical storm, the second in the Cariboo within 24 hours, cut power supplies to Quesnel, Williams Lake and Prince George Wednesday.

The storm struck Williams Lake in the early afternoon and it was believed power would be out for some time. B.C. Hydro crews were reported working on the damage, though details of the storm were unknown.

Tuesday night high winds and lightning knocked down trees and snarled power and telephone lines in the Kersley district. Fallen trees partially blocked the Cariboo highway in several places, but were removed early Wednesday by highway crews.

Other men were reported still trying to restore telephone service in several areas when the second storm hit.

Recital, Dance To Raise Funds For 'Village'

Two fund raising events are planned Saturday for the Children's International Summer Village which will be held on Vancouver Island from July 15 to Aug. 15.

A summer recital featuring Joan Bulmer on the piano and singer Adele Lewis will take place at 8:15 p.m. in the Art Gallery and a dance will be held at 8:45 p.m. in Norway House on Hillside.

Proceeds from both functions will go to the Children's Village.

Forty children from 10 different countries will be attending the camp which will be held at Shawnigan Lake School for Girls.

Step-Up Patrols

NANAIMO — Police are to step-up beach and campsite patrols following increased reports of rowdyism.

Many of the complaints have come from Harewood Dam Beach and Newcastle Island.

RCMP said much of the trouble is caused by children and teen-agers camping without adult supervision.

Boycott Beatrix, Say Dutch Vets

ROTTERDAM (Reuters) — Members of the Dutch resistance who fought the Germans in the Second World War have distributed leaflets throughout Rotterdam, urging a boycott of Friday's visit to the city by Crown Princess Beatrix and her German fiance.

The leaflets tell people to stay indoors.

The engagement of the future queen to West German diplomat Claus von Amsberg has caused controversy in The Netherlands, because he was once a member of the Hitler Youth and served with the German army in the war.

The pamphlets were headed "warning" and urged the people of Rotterdam not to commit "undignified acts" such as daubing buildings and hanging out swastika flags.

"Be dignified. Stay at home on Friday, July 9. Empty flagpoles are not (yet) forbidden. Let Rotterdam be a city of empty flagpoles," the pamphlets said.

Rotterdam is the third main Dutch city to be visited by Crown Princess Beatrix and her 38 - year - old fiance since their engagement was announced by Queen Juliana June 28. The series of visits is seen as a test of public reaction.

Their reception in The Hague, the most royalist of Dutch cities, was a triumph. But they got a cooler welcome in Amsterdam.

Rotterdam was hit hard by German bombers in 1940 and had to be extensively rebuilt after the war.

Noon Hour Concerts Start Again Monday

Lunchtime pop concerts are on again at the McPherson Playhouse beginning Monday.

Concert impresario Kenneth Gravenor and city hall have reconciled their difference in a signed six-month contract for rental of the McPherson.

New format for the noon shows calls for one continuous show from 12:15 to 1:15 p.m. for 35 cents admission.

Terms of the new contract stipulate a $25 rental charge for each performance or 25 per cent of the admission receipts.

Mr. Gravenor only paid $10 rent for each performance previously and a controversy ensued when the city suggested he should pay $35 a performance.

The new contract also calls for the city to provide a piano and stage hands when special light effects are required.

Bennett Offers Coliseum Aid

Premier Bennett Wednesday offered up to $10,000,000 to help build proposed coliseums in Vancouver and Burnaby.

The premier said the province would contribute up to $5,000,000 to each project, providing equal grants came from the federal government and respective city councils.

Vancouver and Burnaby both have announced intentions to build all-purpose coliseums, primarily to make their areas contenders for National Hockey League expansion.

There was an element of competition in the proposals. But the premier said the province would be willing to pay a share for two large coliseums.

Picasso Bid Rejected

PARIS (Reuters)—An appeal court has rejected painter Paulo Picasso's claim for seizure of a book about him by his former mistress, Francoise Gilot. The court, upholding the decision of another court last April, ruled Tuesday that Miss Gilot in her book My Life With Picasso had not sought to write scandal about the painter. She had simply described his life, it said.

Chokes on Gum

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP)—A San Pedro mother, apparently excited when her son hit a home run in a Little League baseball game, swallowed her chewing gum and choked to death Tuesday, police said. Mrs. Dolores F. Stanford, 37, was reported dead on arrival at a nearby hospital.

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP)—The Paraguayan government announced Tuesday night it had crushed a Communist plot to begin a guerrilla warfare campaign and "make Paraguay a second Cuba."

NEW BID TO END FIGHTING

Canadians Back Viet 'Gandhi'

TORONTO (CP)—Vo Tranh Minh, the "Vietnamese Gandhi" is returning to his country after 16 years of self-imposed exile.

Dr. Vo, a university professor in Indochina until his departure in 1949, said in an interview here Wednesday he is returning to try to create the atmosphere in North and South Viet Nam for negotiations that will end the war in his divided country.

Three Canadians will join him in his efforts.

Dr. Vo was called the "Vietnamese Gandhi" when he pitched a tent outside a United Nations agency headquarters in Geneva in 1961 to protest the division of Indochina into North and South Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

In 1963, he was arrested for illegal parking when he went on a 10-day hunger strike in his little car outside UN headquarters in New York.

During the last week he has been living in Toronto where he has taken part in talks with representatives of the Canadian peace groups. The groups have decided to help finance Dr. Vo's return to Viet Nam and to send at least three Canadians with him.

One of the Canadians is Leslie Dewart, professor of philosophy at St. Michael's College at the University of Toronto. Two other Canadians will be chosen in Montreal and Regina.

Police charged Gregory David Hardy in connection with the accident. The youngster was hurled 140 feet and skid marks 180 feet long were left by a car.

Fraser Crew Makes Gift To Clinic

Profits from HMCS Fraser's ship canteen, totalling $1,210 have been presented to the Cerebral Palsy Clinic in Victoria by the vessel's commanding officer, Cmdr. Richard Carle.

The officers and men of the ship donated the money with a request that it be used toward the new clinic and that one of the wards be known as the Fraser Ward.

The clinic has been given notice to move from its present location on the grounds of the Jubilee Hospital but has not yet found a new home.

The present facilities covering 3,500 sq. ft. will have to be extended to 12,000 sq. ft. if the clinic is to do the job it is supposed to do, the official said.

When a new location is decided upon, officials plan to launch a fund-raising campaign towards building and maintaining the new facilities.

Spitfire Ace To Retire Next Year

LONDON (Reuters) — Air Vice - Marshal James Edgar (Johnnie) Johnson, Britain's top-scoring Spitfire fighter pilot in the Second World War, is to leave the RAF early next year, when his tour as commanding officer of the Middle East Air Command in Aden runs out.

His career, spanning the years from Spitfires to supersonic jets, includes 38 "kills" in air combat. He holds the Distinguished Service Order with two bars and the Distinguished Flying Cross with bar.

He will retire next year at 50 years of age.

He led three Canadian fighter wings during the Second World War, one of these, No. 144, was the first Spitfire wing to operate from French soil after the D-day landing in Normany June 6, 1944.

After the war, he attended the RCAF College and served for two years in Korea during the conflict there.

NEXT GEMINI FLIGHT

U.S. to Practise Space Manoeuvres

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — U.S. astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad will launch their own private satellite during their eight-day Gemini 5 flight in August and for six hours will practise manoeuvring near it in a vital rehearsal for manned lunar and planetary trips.

Details of the rendezvous mission were described here Wednesday by officials of the Westinghouse Defence and Space Centre, which built the special satellite.

Nicholas V. Petrou, vice-president of the firm's aerospace division, said the flight will give astronauts the first opportunity to work out problems of rendezvousing in space with use of a radar system.

"The Gemini 4 flight demonstrated you cannot judge distances in space with the human eye alone," he said. "On Gemini 5, the radar system will provide motion, angle, range and azimuth data and information on the speed of the target satellite as it approaches or moves away.

"The astronauts will be able to determine how to make the most efficient use of fuel during a rendezvous manoeuvre."

During the Gemini 4 flight, James McDivitt and Edward White, air force majors, expended nearly half their fuel in a futile attempt to steer close to the orbiting second stage of their Titan II booster rocket. They used visual means only.

Cooper, an air force major and Conrad, a navy lieutenant-commander, are scheduled to make their marathon space journey starting Aug. 17.

Whale To Be Pen Pal —Perhaps

NAMU, B.C. (CP)—A two-ton killer whale was expected to begin a trip to Seattle today inside a steel and net pen towed behind a tugboat.

However, a spokesman at this remote coastal fishing village said the journey could be delayed while repairs are made to the welded steel pen.

The enclosure was dropped on a dock while it was being moved to the water, he said.

About 200 residents turned out to help in moving the pen to the water.

The 60 by 70 foot pen, which has one side open, will be floated to where the whale, purchased by Seattle's aquarium, is held captive by nets. The giant mammal will be coaxed inside the pen and the open side sealed with a strong net.

The Seattle tug Robert E. Lee arrived here Tuesday to make the tow.

A spokesman at the cannery here said the whale appears in good shape and that a pod of about 30 whales has remained in the area of the capture.

"They pop up around the enclosure periodically," he said.

Gun Mishap Kills Woman

DANA, SASK. (CP) — Mrs. Lawrence Woodward, 38, wife of employee of the RCAF radar base at Dana, 50 miles northeast of Saskatoon, was killed Tuesday when accidentally shot.

The RCMP at Vanda, Sask., said the incident occurred when the Woodwards and their three-year-old son were out driving near Dana. They said Mr. Woodward got out of the car to shoot a skunk at the roadside. He stumbled in a ditch, and his .308-calibre rifle discharged, hitting Mrs. Woodward, picking flowers at the roadside, in the back.

Police said she died instantly.

High Price for Art

LONDON (AP)—A landscape by Joseph Mallard Turner sold Wednesday for £88,000 ($264,000), one of the highest prices ever paid for a painting by the 19th century artist. Owned by Viscount Allendale, it was auctioned at Sotherby's to a London art dealer.

What could a highland Scot possibly know about making good gin?

One hundred and ninety-five years ago, a dour old Scot named Gordon was the funniest joke in England—what could a highland Scot possibly know about making good gin?

But Gordon beat the English at their own game. And died in great spirits as the maker of the best gin in England.

The English retaliated by conveniently forgetting that Gordon was a Scot and publicly proclaiming him as one of their own.

(Exactly what it was Gordon knew, nobody knows except other Gordons. But a lot of gin-makers would give a pretty penny to find out.)

Today, Gordon's is the best-selling gin in the world. Because Gordon's descendants are as canny as he was:

Nobody but Gordon's makes Gordon's Gin, no matter where it's made—and it's made in nine different countries, including Canada.

The exact and original formula is never varied for any reason whatsoever. Ever.

And nobody but Gordon's can approve the finished gin for bottling.

If you've never tasted Gordon's Gin, taste it at a friend's home first. If you like it, you might want some for your own home. In case you get tied up. And can't get to your friend's home.

MYSTERY MAN LURKED IN BUSH

Police Probe Kidnap Clues

By DON DINGWALL and TERRY IZZARD

LADYSMITH—Police today are on the lookout for a mystery man seen lurking in the bushes outside the beachfront home of Mrs. Mary Knight, scene of a brutal kidnapping attempt Tuesday.

The man was spotted at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday by a neighbor of the Knight's, Mrs. Judy Jones.

It was around that time police believe 82-year-old Mrs. Knight was bound and gagged and hidden in a potting shed at the bottom of her garden.

Mother of two, Mrs. Jones was passing the Knight's secluded home when she noticed a red panel truck parked on the wrong side of the road.

As she drove past on the old island highway she saw a man dressed in dark clothes standing beside the truck.

When he spotted her he darted into the bushes fronting the Knight home.

IN A HURRY

Said 33-year-old blonde Mrs. Jones: "I thought it was rather suspicious at the time.

"But I was in a hurry to get my car to the garage and I didn't give it another thought."

She recalled the incident when a friend rang up and told her of the kidnap attempt on Mrs. Knight.

Police have since taken a statement from her.

Said Mrs. Jones: "There have been some rather strange goings-on around here recently.

"Locks have been broken and gas stolen from garages."

Council recently installed street lights at the request of residents.

DOOR-TO-DOOR

Meanwhile, police began a door-to-door inquiry in the Ladysmith area.

Plainclothes and uniformed officers were asking residents for information concerning strangers or cars seen near the Knight's beachfront home Tuesday morning.

The search was sparked Tues-

Wilson Envoy Flies to Hanoi

(Times News Services)

LONDON — Prime Minister Harold Wilson told Parliament today he has sent one of his junior ministers to Hanoi "to get a dialogue started" with the Communists on possible Viet Nam peace talks.

Wilson said the serious crisis in Viet Nam "should be brought or negotiations to the conference table."

Wilson identified his emissary as junior minister Harold Davies, joint parliamentary secretary at the Ministry of Pensions and National Insurance.

He is described as having friendly relations with North Vietnamese leader Ho Chi Minh.

Davies was a member of a parliamentary delegation which visited North Viet Nam in 1957.

Diplomatic officials here were skeptical of the chances of success of the mission.

The move was seen as an indication of Wilson's determination not to give up his plans for a Commonwealth peace mission on the Viet Nam crisis. Hanoi, Peking and Moscow have rejected such a proposal.

Last week Davies, 61, was approached by two North Vietnamese journalists with a suggestion that he should visit Hanoi. The journalists are accredited in London.

DETAILS SECRET

He left London earlier this week, en route to Laos and Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital. Details were kept secret until today.

It was reported that members of the Commonwealth peace mission were consulted and they agreed to the project.

Uproar broke out in Parliament today when Prime Minister Wilson and Opposition Leader Sir Alec Douglas-Home clashed over the mission.

Douglas-Home asked Wilson to say whether the United States was consulted first and stressed the dangers of any tendency toward appeasement in the Viet Nam crisis.

The row broke out on both sides of the lower chamber when Wilson started to retort: "Should there be any question of my wanting lessons in appeasement, I know who . . . ."

His voice was drowned by the uproar before he could finish his sentence.

CALLED 'SWINE'?

Lodge Replaces Taylor In Viet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson today announced the resignation of Gen. Maxwell Taylor as U.S. Ambassador to South Viet Nam and the selection of Henry Cabot Lodge as his replacement.

Lodge was ambassador to Saigon before Taylor. He left the post in early 1964 to campaign in behalf of Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania for the GOP presidential nomination.

At Johnson's request, Lodge and Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara will fly to Saigon Wednesday for a week of on-the-spot conferences with Taylor and American and South Vietnamese officials.

Liberal MP Gets Boot From Party

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Pearson today ousted Yvon Dupuis, Liberal Member of Parliament for St. Johns-Napierville facing charges of influence peddling, from the Liberal party.

Pearson also repeated that he'd hoped for quick action on the federal-provincial investigation into the posibility of laying criminal charges as a result of the Dorion report.

Dupuis, former minister without portfolio, Wednesday was committed for trial this fall on a charge of influence-peddling—allegedly accepting $10,000 to use his influence in a bid to get a race track franchise in his riding.

He was quoted in a Montreal paper today as saying he will seek re-election to the Commons.

"I will continue to be a Member of Parliament," said Dupuis, "and following the conclusion of the present case, I will offer myself as a candidate for my constituency."

GETS ANNOYED

Referring to the story and obviously annoyed by it, Pearson said:

"Any Canadian can seek nomination at any convention. But if Mr. Dupuis stands for elec-

MURDER CHARGE

2 Desperados Free Hostages

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—A pair of desperate ex-convicts from Oregon released six hostages, including a 12-year-old Toronto boy, and continued their flight today to avoid capture for a two-day, 600-mile rampage that included bank robbery, murder and kidnapping.

Police say the two suspects, Carl Cletes Bowles, 24, and Wilfred M. Gray, 30, began a reign of terror with a $13,400 bank robbery in Portland Tuesday afternoon. They allegedly shot a deputy sheriff to death at Springfield, Ore., that night, abducted a Springfield, Ore. woman and her son early Wednesday, and then kidnapped four vacationers from Washington travelling in the rugged mountains of central Oregon.

District Attorney William Frye filed an information this morning at Eugene, Ore., charging the two with first degree murder.

The search for the heavily-armed desperados shifted suddenly to northern California late last night when the six hostages were released unharmed in the Sacramento area.

The Springfield woman, Mrs. Shriely Corbin, 33, immediately notified Oregon authorities, who contacted the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The other hostages, in addition to Mrs. Corbin, included her son, Clinton, 12; Mr. and Mrs. Uldis Riekstins, Renton, Wash.; their son, Janis, 14, and Zanis Bauze, Toronto, Ont., who had been visiting the Riekstins.

They were held under heavy guard at a motel in nearby Woodland for questioning, but were released shortly after 6 this morning and departed immediately for Oregon in the Reikstins' pickup truck.

"It wasn't bad for us at all," Mrs. Corbin told newsmen be-

Allies Fight Together

SAIGON (Reuters)—An Allied brigade began to withdraw from the Viet Cong jungle stronghold of zone-D today, after killing an estimated 100 guerrillas in three days.

There were reports of increasing Viet Cong guerrilla strength, in the area invaded by two American, one Australian and one South Viétnamese battalions.

Unconfirmed American casualties were four dead and four wounded. The Australians have suffered three wounded.

The Viet Cong are believed to have 8,000 fighting men in the zone, only 35 miles north of Saigon at its nearest point.

Just outside zone-D, the Viet Cong ambushed a government battalion 37 miles northwest of Saigon today, and a U.S. spokesman said most of the battalion apparently was wiped out.

The battalion, reported to be under the normal strength of 300, was ambushed while trying to relieve a besieged outpost at Xom Dua in Binh Duong province.

NEW HOSTAGE GRAB FEARED

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—The California highway patrol issued an all-points bulletin today for California finance director Hale Champion, his wife and their two-year-old daughter, missing from their Sacramento home.

A California highway patrol officer said the patrol was "concerned over the possibility" they might have been kidnapped by two ex-convicts now sought in the area for the slaying of an Oregon officer, a Portland bank robbery and the kidnapping of six hostages.

Capt. L. G. Wililams said the bulletin was issued after Champion failed to arrive for a 9 a.m. appointment with Governor Edmund G. Brown.

OTTAWA (CP) — A meeting of the NATO council will be held in Paris next week with Viet Nam expected to be the prime topic, it was learned here today. External Affairs Minister Martin will leave here Sunday for the meeting.

Though the meeting is a regular one of NATO's council of permanent ambassadors, several foreign ministers will attend.

It is understood that Undersecretary of State George Ball will represent the United States.

The foreign ministers of France, Italy, West Germany, and The Netherlands as well as of Canada will likely attend.

Great Train Robber Now Great Escapee

LONDON (UPI) — One of Britain's "Great Train Robbers" escaped from a London prison today with three other convicts after a fight with guards and the capture of a hostage. The fugitives fled in a fleet of getaway cars.

The escape apparently centred around Ronald A. Biggs, serving a 30-year sentence for his part in robbing the Glasgow-to-London Royal Mail train of $6.3 million in bank notes Aug. 8, 1963. The escape was as well planned and executed as the robbery itself.

Because another of the great train robbers had escaped in an equally intricate fashion special guards had been posted for Biggs. But he fled the prison today in this series of events:

—An accomplice threw a rope ladder and a tubular steel ladder into the prison exercise yard.

—The prisoners fought off guards and scurried over the wall onto the top of a waiting furniture van.

The prisoners slipped through a hole in the roof of the van into the vehicle while an accomplice held a prison officer hostage on top of the van with a gun at his back.

The men then jumped out of the van and scrambled across the road to one blue and two green cars which then streaked away.

OTTAWA TO SPEND $148 MILLION

CAUSEWAY, TUNNEL, BRIDGE

Prince Edward Island to Be Linked to Mainland

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson announced today that tenders will be called later this year for a combined tunnel, bridge and causeway between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Construction is expected to start next April and, Mr. Pearson said at a press conference, he hopes it will be completed in late 1970.

The cost is estimated at $148,000,000.

The federal government will bear the entire cost.

The prime minister said the "massive" undertaking will include a three-mile bridge, nearly a mile of underwater tunnel and five miles of causeway.

The nine-mile link between Jourimain Island, N.B., and Port Borden, P.E.I., will include both rail and highway facilities.

Mr. Pearson said the first tender will be called in December for the New Brunswick land approaches. This would be followed by tenders for the bridge piers, the tunnel, other causeway sections, the Prince Edward Island land approach and the steel bridge superstructure.

The prime minister said that no similar project had ever been attempted where tidal, weather and ice conditions were so severe.

He said the highway section of the link is designed to accommodate four lanes of traffic but that present plans call for the use of only two lanes. It would cost an additional $10,000,000 to convert the highway to four lanes later.

The project will begin at the New Brunswick shore with a 13,000-foot causeway supporting the railway line at an elevation of 26 feet. The highway will be on a structure above the rails at an elevation of 59 feet.

This section will lead to the 16,000-foot bridge which will carry the rail line at an elevation of 60 feet and the highway at 114 feet. This bridge section will connect with another 7,000 feet of causeway, then the tunnel and finally a 5,000-foot section of causeway to the P.E.I. shore.

The intention to build the causeway was first announced by former Conservative prime minister Diefenbaker during the 1962 federal election campaign.

Mr. Pearson said the decision to call tenders was followed by studies by the fisheries department which indicated that neither the lobster nor oyster fisheries would be adversely a fected.

The decision to proceed fu filled what many considered be part of the terms und which P.E.I. entered Confeder tion.

3 Gunmen Assassinate Arab Ruler

ADEN (Reuters)—Three gunmen shot and killed Sheikh Nasher Abdullah Al Sqladi, Naib ruler of Shaib sheikhdom, here Wednesday night.

Ten rounds from automatic pistols were fired at the Naib while he was leaving his car opposite his residence in Aden's old-town area.

Sheikh Nasher was a member of the South Arabian federal council legislative body.

His tiny sheikhdom bordering the Yemen republic recently joined the South Arabian federation.

About two months ago federal troops launched a military action in his sheikhdom against dissident tribesmen operating from across the border.

No arrests have been reported so far.

Montreal's Tall Tower Cancelled

MONTREAL (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau announced cancellation Wednesday of a plan to build a 1,066-foot tower on the site of Expo 67.

Within hours of the announcement, Andrew Kniewasser, general manager of Expo 67, said he will seek to salvage the plan.

Mr. Drapeau, in a statement issued from city hall, said it appears to be impossible to limit the cost of building the tower to $20,000,000, originally estimated as the outside figure. The overall cost could come to about $25,000,000.

Mr. Kniewasser, commenting on the mayor's statement, said he will ask Mr. Drapeau for an appointment so that they can "explore other possibilities, other ways of achieving this monument or a similar thing.

The tower was to have been a joint project of the cities of Montreal and Paris, with each paying half of the cost. Completion by 1967 would come on the 325th anniversary of the founding of Montreal.

Magistrate, Psychiatrist Both Complain

VANCOUVER (CP) — Magistrate Cyril White has written to Attorney-General Robert Bonner criticizing a government-employed psychiatrist who objected to frequent examinations for persons charged with vagrancy.

Dr. J. C. Thomas objected to making a second examination of Charles Cochrane, 54, charged with vagrancy.

Dr. Thomas, in a letter read to the court earlier this week, said: "It is not the purpose of the court referral system to conduct monthly examinations of accused persons, especially when they are charged with vagrancy."

Magistrate White, who referred Cochrane to the psychiatrist, said Wednesday it is not up to the doctor to interpret the referral system.

He said a person frequently in court on a certain type of charge should be carefully watched from the psychiatric point of view.

DISC JOCKEY BECOMES MAN ON STREET

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—All-night disc jockey Frank Frey stepped outside the studio of KFOG-FM, at 2:15 a.m. Wednesday to investigate a noise.

He found nothing. Behind him the door to the studio closed—and locked.

Frey, who operates the station alone through the night, had no key. Listeners, alarmed at the station's silence, telephoned police, who arrived but were unable to force the lock on the new door.

Four hours later, relief announcer Gill Barr arrived with a key and KFOG returned to the air.

New York Told to Cut Water Use in Crisis

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—New York City, in the grip of a severe drought, has been ordered to cut its use of Delaware River water and also release water from its dams as part of a four-state water emergency declaration.

At a meeting here Wednesday, the Delaware River Basin Commission declared the 30-day water emergency immediately for the states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware. The commission directed New York City to reduce its consumption of Delaware Water by 75,000,000 gallons a day.

The commission, made up of representatives of the four states and of the U.S. department of the interior, also ordered New York to release 200,000,000 gallons of water daily from its dams in the western Catskills.

This action was taken to help maintain the flow of fresh water in the Delaware estuary in efforts to save the Philadelphia and Camden, N.J., water supplies from the imminent threat of salt contamination.

The water supply in the Delaware River basin, serving more than 20,000,000 persons, is extremely short from the fourth straight year of far-below-normal rainfall. The state of emergency runs to Aug. 10 but can be extended and, if necessary, tightened.

The emergency action was the first such by the commission since its creation in 1961 under the Delaware River compact, a joint venture of the four states and the federal government aimed at developing the area's water resources.

The commission, acting to stem the upstream creep of salt from the sea, also ordered the release of water from reservoirs in upper Pennsylvania.

You think your old fridge is "good enough"? Wait till you see today's big beauties. They're about 40% larger on the inside (hardly any bigger outside, thanks to new thin-wall construction). And the extra space is nicely distributed. Shelf storage is more flexible and there's extra height in the door area for tall bottles. Many models have pull-out, adjustable or revolving shelves.

The freezer area is much larger. Has lots more room for frozen foods. And it's colder. Keeps ice cream firm, freezes other foods fast.

Defrosting? Forget it. The new refrigerators are either frost-free or self-defrosting. Some even have automatic ice cube makers.

Still think you're happy with the old box? Fine. But don't dare go near your appliance dealer's. Especially now when he's offering such attractive values.
